Or is it that one of his brothers has died due to a drug overdose? Or that his younger sister has left family and ended as a street prostitute? SCNR!!
Well, all very problematic family situation, I agree.

But even then, is it a way to compensate via PM spamming? How do the other posters i nthis group think about it.

PS: Well, I guess most of you knew about Pauls situation, didn't they?
So, just in case the above mentioned is new to you.

Well, just for those people in the future that encounter this problem with the ICOM 706-MKii powering up and are searching for an answer I will post my solution. It appears that this problem was caused by a small piece of dirt. I removed the detachable face plate, undid the 2 screws in the back of the detachable face plate. Remeved the back and blew the dust out of it, paying special attention to the corner with the power switch. upon a reassembly the rig powered up just fine. Watch for the springloaded latch i fyou turn the face plate over as you might wonder where the spring magically came from.

Who would have thought that a small piece of dust would have caused me such greif.

Did you retain the original subject in your reply? I do have an incoming E-mail filter to block junk-mail as an understandable self-defense in this day and age of SPAM, but I specifically pass anything with "radio" in its subject. If you had replied with the original subject, it would go right through. You can reply by E-mail to this specific message, for example, and it will go right through. If anyone receiving the welcome message receives the original subject in the reply (e.g., "WELCOME to rec.radio.amateur.misc") the reply will go right through. My original assertion that you can send me feedback in response to the message is factually correct.

Thank you for your opinion, but your opinion is clearly in the minority. The overwhelming majority of the newsgroup participants support this project.

Oh wow, a death threat! Mind if I pass this along to your site administrators, and the relevant authorities in your country?

Seeking any assistance on wiring up PSK to my Icom IC-751. Understand it can be done with two wires utilizing the VOX instead of the three which requires the serial port for PTT. Is it possible to send the signal (out) from the sound card into the back of the rig or must I use the eight pin mic connector to the front of the rig?

Thanks.

Gee whiz, fellas; all I did was express my opinion to which I'm entitled about apparently a unrehabilitated screwball who is now trying to convice the FCC of his rehabilitation. It's not conjecture on my part either; I heard what I heard when I heard it and FZ is no better than he was in his screwball days. Neither the punishment nor the medicine took effect. I didn't mean to start a war over the Saint Croix Crotch.

You call people cowards, but take a look who the real coward is. They post reply's to your posts and then you report them to their ISP's. THAT is cowardness Roger. Thats like a little kid hitting someone, then gets hit back, and runs to someone crying about it. Grow up. Stop playing childish games. Get a life. I see your a 5 word per minute General. What wrong... cant copy 13 or 20??? How does that feel? Oh, thats right... you dont care what you say. You are out to upset people. Well, someday, you will do it to the wrong person. Roger, you need help. You REALLY need help. Something is wrong with you mentally. Normal people dont act the way you do on a daily basis.

Poor bean boy, what's the matter bean boy, your illegal alien ass too stupid to figure out what's going on, retardo? This is one of your sockpuppets, isn't it, Eduardildo?

No no no Woger, I am not with the Indiana University! I am with the Lettuce Co. You can easily find it in the phone book. We ship all over the U.S.

I heard that you also have cucumbers in those fields, but they have a hard time selling them with your shit all over them. You've got to quit inserting them up your rectum, or at least lick them clean before you pack them, fudgepacking Ed.

Well Roger, YOU are the one that everyone attacks in the group. How does that feel? Does it hurt your feelings? How is it not to be able to get on HF without someone running you off a freq? Im on alot, and never hear you.
Hmmm... where do you hang out?

Some new stuff has been added at www.ab7sl.com in the past few weeks....

1. Site search - the entire site is now indexed and searchable from the homepage

2. Arizona Repeaters Page - covering all repeaters statewide on ALL bands. Sorted by county,band and frequency.
This added some 20 pages to the site.....

3. Weather Page - shows temps for selected US cities , full weather conditions for Prescott,AZ and USA - World weather maps and forecasts...

4. Added a Grand Kids Photos page....they are so cute and adorable!

What is wrong, DUMBO......Hits too close to home talking about your EX-wife and the 2 kids? HOHOHOHO Bet they are REAL PROUD to have a father like you who could not even keep the marrage together, HOHOHOHOHOHO!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

What does MARIE think about all of this? Just breaks her heart I bet. Anyway, her CANCER will do her in soon enough. Got that 6' hole dug in your backyard for her yet?

I don't blame that EX WHORE wife of yours for leaving you........You are lucky the kids were at such a young age when you MOLESTED them that the POLICE did not believe them.

How about all of that BOOK CLUB & MUSIC CLUB crap that I sent you? Are you still getting things addressed to ROGER WIDEASS? HOHOHOHO!!!!!!!

Hey, do you know that wife beating and kiddiefucking KKKKevin Strom? Did you know he used to beat his kids with coax with the PL-259's attached which left big scars on their bodies?
Is that what happened to you, Pissbull, or di you justSUCK OFF your fahter until he came into your HERPES-RIDDEN mouth?

> Too bad that DRUNK father of yours DIED from SMOKING like a truck for

Or the DIVORCE might be just bullshit on my part to throw your STUPIDASS off the track and see how far you'll run from it, bitch boy.

Or I might not have any kids because you'll never know for sure, will you, fuckhead? BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHHAHA Poor Pissbowl, a LOSER from the time he was SHIT down his whore mommy's leg.

> What do the kids do when asked about their father at school?

My kids are grown and not in school, you fucking IGNORAMUS. If they exist <snicker>, they would be in their mid-twenties approaching 30.
Of course, you're too INEPT to find out for sure, aren't you, SHEEPFUCKING

No, SHEEPFUCKING PERVERT. Hit too close to home about you being all MOUTH and NO ACTION, you chickenshit little punk? you said you were going to come around here and take care of me, but as usual, you PUSSIED OUT.

>HOHOHOHO Bet they are REAL PROUD to have a

Says the guy who NEVER quits beating his wife and kids. How many times have you had those Domestic Violence charges filed on you now? That is IF youeven GOT MARRIED, you cocksucking faggot.

> What does MARIE think about all of this? Just breaks her heart I bet.

Nope, doesn't bother her or me in the least, because you don't have any information, just like you didn't have information on AF2Y.

> Anyway, her CANCER will do her in soon enough. Got that 6' hole dug in

No, because she doesn't have CANCER, you fucking fool.
Is that how Ray Davies bought it? Is that why Llllardasssss Lllllllloyd runs up to visit the INCONTINENT SYPILLIS-RIDDEN Mommy of his (read yours) in Belle Plaine, IA? When he goes up there he does a PITBULL AND LAPS HER CUNT.
How about your mommy, Pissbull? Didn't she die of that brain tumor? Didn't you keep her body in your living room propped up, bent over for easy access for you to have SEX with her?

> I don't blame that EX WHORE wife of yours for leaving you.....

She did? That's not what the DIVORCE PAPERS contend. (Pauses for the ill-educated and chronic alcoholic Pissbull to sober up long enough to look that up)

That is, if it isn't all something I just made up and stood back and see how far you would run with it. Guess you'll never really know for sure, huh, fuckhead?

>...You

But that isn't the case at the PITBULL HOVEL, with the human excrement in the front and back yards. Not to mention the rusted, non-working farm machinery which litters that trash dump you call your property.

They did? Wrong again, shit-for-brains. Gopherfaced Steve Turdeater sent in a doctored tape, and Riley believed his lies. Now, submitted tapes aren't permissible as evidence. BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHHAHAAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA

What about your cuntlapping of Mrs. Ray Davies when you go back for a visit, Llllardasssss?? Fatass Ray Davies bought the farm when he choked on that submarine sandwich he was trying to eat whole, one big swallow, which is what technique he passed on to his IDIOT son before he passed away with that bad heart and diabetes.
Mwhahahahahahahahahahaha!!!!!!

> What about your two kids?

What about them? Even my daughter could kick your fatass.

no i did not block you. Your name does not show up. I've been tired and not feeling well the last few days. Hello and I'm glad you had a good time.
As far Christmas goes, I'm afraid I am not going to be able to come down. I have other plans.

Thanks for your picture. you look very pretty and professional. I have had a long day of work today. I have to work tomorrow and then get packed up to head to iowa. I'll be there for about a week over Thanksgiving. Means I'll be here by myself for Christmas. I'm tired tonite. I've had alot on my mind. More than usaual.

Take care and have a good weekend,

Did you have a good weekend? Had to work all weekend. I'm getting ready to visit my Mom next week in Iowa. I'll be gone all next week for Thanksgiving.
You got Thanksgiving plans? You'll probably goto warm Florida! Iowa gets
very cold this time of year.

I'm gonna get my picture taken this week to send to you. I have a digital camera. I'll send it as soon as I get it taken.

Are you still in School? I did'nt know If you were or not.

Love,

I think its shocking how quikly some of us degenerate into cbism (that is the act of acting like a cb'er - or a two year old).

Do what I did - report him to his ISP (looks like alt.net) - and tell his isp that if they don't do anything you'll talk to their upstream provider. I used to work for a software companies IT department (until they layed me off) - I know how to get a company kicked off their line. I noticed some guy thought he was using the local public library - anyone think of calling them up? - they can ban him from their terminals. I will if no-one else wants to. Could be though someone hacked his machine at home - hacked the libraries machine and are using them to forward messages - happens a lot more often then you think. At any rate his isp needs to let him know whats happening. Also - someone could use this to look up his phone number http://www.qrz.com/detail/KC8JBO .

Last time I complained to alt.net - it looks like it worked - this time the message originated from cox.net - so I forwarded a complaint to where it says to forward complaints to (and another one to abuse@alt.net)

Also - anyone ever try calling him up? According to people.yahoo.com his phone number is 304-845-0109

Man I should become a private eye - this took me all of 10~15 minutes :). (and I need a new job...)

Ummm...as I thought, not a sound.
BWWWWWWWWWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAH.
In fact, lets go further than that. Newsgroup readers, post your reply, do you believe 2test woger was framed by a doctored tape as he claims, or not? Post your answers please.

Hell yes. Didn't you see the poll? Why, we just fell all over ourselves begging Paul to send us unsolicited email. The fact that nobody's really been asked is irrelevant. Paul decides what constitutes a majority, and who belongs to it. I'll bet that when election time comes in his home town, he knows how to get the dead people to vote. ;-/

The real truth is that Paul is going to do whatever he wants, no matter what anyone else thinks. Killfile his email, or else use pseudonyms so that his email will bounce, but don't issue personal threats. Alternatively, put your email address in a header somewhere where his software will miss it. Check this post for one example.

The Harvard Wireless Club is offering a course on all aspects of Ham Radio this Monday and Tuesday Jan 28th and 29th.

It is designed to cover everything you need to get your first FCC license or help you upgrade to a higher class license.

The course is free and is open to all members of the Harvard and MIT community. It will be held from 9AM to 5PM each day in Room B-09 of the Harvard Science Center, off Oxford St.

Contact David Allred at 617 661 9046 or at allred@photoninc.com for more information.

FCC license exams for all clases of Amateur license will be held in the same room on Tuesday evening at 7PM. The exams will be open to all members of the class and the public.

There is a $10 exam fee, you will need to bring two forms of ID and the original and copies of any amateur license or certificates of completion you want to claim credit for.

For more information on Amateur exams see http://web.mit.edu/w1mx/www/exams.html

The exam session will be conducted by the MIT Radio Exam Team.

Wogie is weel good at pwinting bad wurds. He gets buzzed with anger and yells at "biotch's" (bitches) and calls everyone a "faity" (fairy), then he calls everybody in earshot "defgenerates". Yup, Wogie does it "tiome" after "tiome" (time after time), day in, day out.
Not to fear, tho. Wogie calims to this purposely. He sends these "sumbliminal" messages just to keep the rest of us on our toes. When that fails, well he does the next best thing. He whines that some "anoinymous" poster is post-editing.
Yeah, right.

What's with the EBONICS of "2test," are you sure you aren't black? Maybe just your father was. If you can figure out who your alcoholic father is.

That the story you going to tell the FCC when they bust you again for jamming the repeaters and HF, Jizzswallowing Retard?

I have an industrial wireless application in mind that would require data rates on the order of 100K bytes/sec over a 5+ mile distance. Equipment must be off the shelf.

The head end is reasonably unrestricted and includes a good antenna.
It has to connect to a PC to a LAN with standard TCP protocols. The mobile end must fit in a small backpack and run from batteries. I expect it will connect to a small laptop PC via a CAT5, USB or Fireware cable. I don't care. The antenna will be minimal.

I don't mind getting an FCC license for the site if required.

It's a commercial app, which excluded HAM solutions. I'm posting to rec.radio.amateur.misc to get the collective expertese of that group, not to bootleg on ham bands.

Any suggestions about bands and equipment suppliers ?

Thanks

Gee, guys. No need to post ALL of the thread...no need to post a 6 or 8k message with all of the previous crap. Especially where Roger is concerned.
After all, his posts are all the same.
We've all read Rogie's posts time after time after time.
Cut to the quick, willya?
Keep it simple.
Keep it short and direct.

1256. JBO on 14.313...fawns over AMP.

Wogie was on 14.313 this evening. He fawned all over W4AMP and told AMP that he understands that AMP is just trying to be a "good" radio operator. He told AMP that the two of them are being unfairly set upon by fellow Hams and are being unjustly criticized in the news groups.
Wogie bwoke wadio silence, thus pwoving that he is capable, nay, pwobably guilty of some of the jamming going on. A Zebwa doesn't change it's stwipes, eh Wogie?
Part of the qso was lost because of all the jammers who pile up on W4AMP every time he gets on the air. It happens wegularly.
AMP ain't the bwightest bulb on the twee is he?

You may find the web pages at http://www.orinocowireless.com/

to be a useful starting point. Lucent / Bell Labs / Orinoco was once selling 802.11 industrial wireless equipment with a directed range of several miles (you needed outside, directional antennas). There are other commercial wireless options available too, and a google search should come up with something of interest.

A group of Australian 802.11 enthusiasts have set up a WAN in Canberra using home brew helical antennas for the long distance connections. As I recall, the antenna I have bookmarked at http://users.bigpond.net.au/jhecker/is able to connect nodes together which are several miles apart. The Canberra effort itself is discussed at http://www.air.net.au/

and it makes packet radio look obsolete.

No, fuckwit, I had a good QSO, it's better than what you do over the air.
But your WIDE and shreiking into the microphone has gotten you in trouble hasn't it?

How does having a QSO equate with being capable of the jamming that's going on, you slobbering, HIV positive moron?

1267. Baby Monitor Receives Microwave Oven - Dangerous?

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.misc
Date: 2002-01-26 16:28:21 UTC
From: Pete Ritter <SeeSig@Below.com>
Message-ID: <FOA48.12401$RD5.29245@rwcrnsc52.ops.asp.att.net>

Our 2.4 gHz baby monitor receives a raspy, staticy signal when our microwave oven is turned on. I know that mw ovens operate in that area of the em spectrum, but I'm concerned that it may be leaking too much. The monitor receives the signal everywhere in the house, about a 25-ft radius and through a couple walls. The signal strength increases to closer to the oven the monitor is, as indicated by the row of leds that serves as the monitor's signal strength meter. Three leds light when I run the monitor's antenna along the door-body joint of the oven. In contrast, I can just get three to light when I place the monitor next to the transmitter and blow hard on the microphone. I don't know what the output power of the monitor's transmitter is.

What are others' thoughts on this? Is the oven too leaky?

Thanks.

It takes a bigger hole for a microwave oven to leak thru than people think and in fact no oven produced (and maintained) under the 1972 standards has ever leaked badly enough to be a hazard. And I know that this will be of no comfort whatsoever.

Because the oven uses unfiltered DC, its sound would in fact be the rasp you describe.

I would suggest that you contact the warranty servicer in your area for the brand you own and more than likely run it by there for a check with the gizmo he has to have to do the warranty work. Failing that, the warranty doer for any major brand will have a test instrument that is designed to sweep the doors (that black plastic has lampblack in it to do the absorption) and other gaps in the case for radiation. No sense in paying for a house call. There is also the chance that the manufacturer will pick up the tab if you bring it in so call them and play stupid; baby monitors tend to cause concern.

I am assuming this is a countertop unit, be aware there is a recall out on several rangehood models, for fire not radiation.

I think you will find that there is no radiation anywhere near hazardous levels present but you may well get a slight rf leakage thru a vent in the back or somewhere. You may also get enough power line coupling to have the effect you are mentioning. I suspect that both the oven and the monitor are on the same side of the 240 line.

The odds of anything being really wrong are infinitesmal but you won't sleep nor will your wife.
Check it out.

Please do not take it apart without knowing what you doing, it is about 4kv on the cathode. While there is an internal bleeder, the old saying about blessed are those who trust bleeders for they shall be known as dead applies.

You are quite simply out of your mind.

Perhaps instead of simply repeating this lie you could back up your claim with facts or reason.

Suuuuuuuure they were, you peon bean-boy. FCC monitoring stations take orders from unidentified, anonymous COWARDS. They listen when Riley gives them orders to do so, not on the orders of some drug-addict with a disfigured face.
I already let Riley know it was you jamming W4AMP. That was the first time in alomost a year I was on 14.313, and I was listening and answered AMP, but I've heard they DFed your signal, Bean BOY.

Get a clue on how to run a spectrum analyzer...if you know what one even is.
My 920 wasn't wide, you ignorant fuckwit. And how strong a splatter can only 100 Watts generate, with no processing in, you ignoramus. But Riley is aware that you've

which I've outlined in my URL page:

If anyone would care to construct the likely nighttime environments at BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!!!!! Riley has, by now, all the details about your FELONY convictions, Weeno, your "credibility" as a "star witness" (witLESS, more in your case) is shot to hell, frog faggot.

COLOSTOMY BAGBOY RETURNS TO CIVILIAN LIFE IN OKLAHOMA, REFLECTS ON SIMPLE PRISON RECREATIONS

Recently, Paskell "Geno" Paris called Crypt to inform readers he had returned from a two year stay in federal prison in connection with events that are well known to readers of "The Virus Creation Labs."

In 1993 Paris travelled under the handle "Colostomy Bagboy" while lurking on the Fidonet as sysop of the "Oklahoma Institute of Virus Research" in Oklahoma City. While a Fidonet sysop, Paris engaged in a well-publicized public feud with Edwin Cleton, a former moderator of one of the network's "Virus Information" message feeds.

As a computer virus exchange bulletin board sysop, Colostomy Bagboy edited two issues of the underground publication, Vortex. Vortex was a profane, hideously violent e-zine that mixed extreme bad taste and off-color humor with exhortations to join the author in the "stylish destruction" of the data of others found in the silicon vortex -- Paris' euphemism for the world computer network. To most users accustomed to driving slowly down the middle lane of the information highway, Vortex read as evidence that menacing electronic bogeymen lurked under every rock in cyberspace. However, like many electronic magazines from the underground it was exaggerated for effect, talking the talk and walking the walk of many such underground publications.

Federal and local lawmen indicted and arrested Paris the same year.
He was subsequently convicted on charges apparently unrelated to his underground persona. A fraud charge stemming from the creation or usurpation of a false identity and a forgery charge resulting from attempts to counterfeit treasury bills landed him in prison. Paris also maintained computer tampering was also part of the conviction, coming down from what he claimed was an unsuccessful attempt to access and meddle with the FBI's National Crime Information Center computer database.

While serving his two year sentence, Paris said he was contacted by reporters looking for a scoop on the underground world of computer hacking. However, no stories resulted. Paris added he was allowed to be part of a computer club at one of the minimum security facilities -- a work camp -- where he was incarcerated. In addition, Paris told Crypt News fisticuffs is a common recreation in American jails.

RANDOM NOTES: A DISPATCH FROM PASKELL PARIS; TOM TOMORROW VISITS
COMPUSERVE

Over the holidays, Paskell "Geno" Paris mailed Crypt a number of dispatches including a Christmas greeting. Paris, recently admonished by a two year stint in prison, has resumed travel in cyberspace under the handle "Colostomy Bagboy." Any who are interested in swapping correspondence with him can send mail to:

jesus.christ@webcitement.com .

Paris indicated he was once again involved in tormenting users of the Fidonet, referring to them in one electronic document as "[the] Filthy Fido Capitalist PigDogs." Bagboy's current operations are somewhat reminiscent of those of the character Jesus Bernal in Carl Hiaasen's black humor/crime story, "Tourist Season" (Warner Books).
In neo-Bernal style, Paris vows to "smite [enemies] until they are most smote" by employing mass distribution of nuisance electronic leaflets and political statements.

Here's the thing, no they are not getting rid of the entire line of components. They are trimming back some of the stuff that has little to no movement as these product take up 30-50% of most stores and only accounts for 2% of the revenue. You wouldn't make the biggest rooms in your house closets would you? No, you use them for what you do most; eat, sleep and recreation. Secondly alot of the stuff they are eliminating I think you will see return in the form of more variety pack (I know you're all gonna moan, "but I just want this one, why do I need to buy all the others?") Also some stores I have heard are going to be getting a drawer setup, kinda like what you might see at a hardware store to keep the packages in to minimize the space taken up, but maximize what they can carry. Most Shack customers tend to be understanding from my observation. Hopefully those of you who enjoy reason will find solace in this note.

Is radio Shack the only electronics store in town? I dont know about you, but i can buy hand fulls of damn near any resistor, cap, diode, choke, etc from one of at least 2 electronics stores that sell parts here in town. If nothing else, order them from offline lol.. i know, its rediculas to order 2 resistors and pay 4 or 5 bucks in S&H, but its amazed me how many people actually are bent over this. Well they've discontinued a number of small things i've bought tons of over the years that i recently couldnt find any of. What the hell happened to their cigarette adaptore ends that you wired yourself? Thats only one of about 6 things hehe.. anyway i can somewhat share the frustration, but i've bought 99.98% of all my parts from other sources, hell even a CB shop at the truck stop was a source way back in the day lol.

They wish they had answers, what a stupid slogan for a company such as this...
You would be lucky to find more than 1 radio shack employee per county that has half a brain. The rest are drones that almost always have to ask the manager, who has to call FW Texas for assistance before you can find out if they have a Germanium diode they can mail you for $0.02 and $29.95
S&H or if they have a AAA battery.

I live in NJ, and as populated as it is, RS is the only local store has discrete components. Just out of curiosity David, where are you from? Silicon Valley area?

Years ago there was a store about 1/2 hour away that had several hundred bins of components and surplus parts. No shrink wrap, just the parts moderately priced.
Any electronic enthusiast who went there felt like a kid in a candy store.

Roger misses his Air Force days. He fondly recalls the days of training when he was taught how to take cover. He would jump into a trench, kneel down, cover his head with his hands and yell "incoming!" Then he would wait with baited breath for one of his butt buddies to jump in behind him and cover his ass. Roger always liked that part the best.

Hi ! I bought recently a FT90-R, wich, apart from the known few defaults (!?!), gives me total satisfaction !!!
BUT... there is one thing : it comes with a computer program wich allows to set all the different datas, memory frequencies, modes, etc...
This program isn't practical at all : whenever you have writen the datas, and you would like to squezze another QRG inside the list, IT IS IMPOSSIBLE !!! You have to re-write the whole damn list...
Is there any other program wich would work with the FT90-R, or is this one the only one usable ?
Thanks to answer via E-Mail...

Do you own a Yaesu FT-7 or FT-7B ? or do you have useful documentation on either of these transceivers ?

The radio is a mobile HF transceiver covering 80/40/20/15/10m (not all of 10m avauilable of the FT-7 model). Power output is 10W on a straight 7 and 50W on a 'B'.

I picked up one of these radios (FT-7) at a recent rally and have had a lot of fun operating /QRP using simple antennas and powered by a sealed lead-acid battery (all fitted into a small napsack). Best DX ?
UK to Japan on 20m, UK to Oman on 15m, UK to Kenya 80m. All 10W SSB.

So, I thought there must be other users of this 'forgotten radio' out there ? I have decided to set up a website.

I hope to include:

Scans of articles from RADCOM/QST/CQ etc
Scans of modifications
Scans of manuals / operators guides Circuit diagrams etc etc

Suggestions will be welcome to: ft7world@yahoo.com

If you have anything to contribute, ie. Scans as listed above, etc.
Please get in touch, or simply send them to me direct.

I hope to have the webpage up within the next few days.

Please please, if you have some useful info pop it in the scanner and email it to me !

Thanks and 73 !

I don't know why you people don't simply go to the info you need. I'm even thinking about paying them to dig into Wiseman's background.

Oh Ye who paints with such a wide brush: Your right in that out of over 7000 stores nationwide your going to run into people who either a) haven't a clue or b) are new and still is learning. Has every employee at Autozone or PepBoys been an actual auto mechanic? Keep in mind also that over two thousand of the Radio Shack stores are privately owned Franchise stores of which mine is one. We are able to stock more items than the average company store simply because of available space. Additionally, as for having answers, out of eight employees at my store, Three are at least Juniors in electronics engineering at university, two others are extra class amateur radio operators, and two women that have been around it for years (my wife and my daughter). As for myself, 26 years as an Extra class(and very active) amateur radio operator, prior Navy communications tech, five years experience installing satellite systems, certified Hughes satellite system repair center, etc etc etc. So next time you start painting all of us with your broad brush, remember that there are some of us that do have answers, care about our customers, and are extremely proud of Radio Shack as a whole. Any other questions?

most of us are just bitching for fun... we all go to Rat Shack and will continue to do so. its a great franchise. some of the employees are really good, others are not... this is no different than anywhere else... staff is the toughest part of running a business.

actually... how is it owning a RS franchise? has business been getting better or worse? have you noticed a change in your types of customers? what is the most sold electronics components at your store? have you sold more radios since 9/11? any items in your store you do real well on if you sell? has corporate RS been helpful to you?

curious,

Only 2% of the buisness? Try more like 15%...and that was in a smaller store that I worked in. I really wouldn't notice it that much until I started going over my month end reports when I was managing a store...but it does stack up more than people would think.

Now, keep in mind, this would account for much more than just the electrical components themselves, but also the project boxes, battery holders, wire ties, and all the other little small electronic components sold in the stores.

Did you know that the house Wogie lives in was appraised at a $37,000 value?
It is just a modest little two bedroom home, one that is ideal for a mother and her middle aged never-do-well dependent.

I do? BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!
That sounds like almost as plausible as Georgie Girl Arsics (Arselicks) working overseas as a consultant, he probably works in the grocery store with you, Jizzswallowing Retard. Been jamming repeaters and getting DFed by the FCC, Retard?
BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA...I know of a couple of time you did.

Poor Jizzswallowing Retard, ran to Canada instead of going in the service, what an un-American traitor. JR has a big framed, lighted picture of Osama Bin Laden in his ramshackle hovel, and he blows the roaches off Bin Laden's picture.

Au contrare!!!

I was told by a Shack employee, who just happen to be a hobbyist like us, that RS will be getting out of the electronic component biz at the end of this year.

I just snipped a ling essay about such, just like to say that Steve at my local parts house, oughtta welcome the news. Been hanging on, as the TV shops have died out this last decade, and It'd be great for him to take up the slack! His stuff is better (and less expensive) than Shack anyway..

here in British Columbia. I was told by the owner they were too. gettingout of the electronic parts buisness. Everyday I see less and less parts.
Luckily I am now distributing hard to find electronic parts and common electronic parts. Atleast someone has a place to turn to. Why pay almost 1 buck for a 10 cent capacitor.

Well i would like to say, i wish we had Radio Shack's such as your's here. I only knew of one franchised Radio Shack here in CO and he closed shop about 6 years ago and was about 30 miles from here. Nice guy though, wish he was still around, and no i do understand that not everyone there is going to be knowlegable, but around here, and im not being sarcastic, i havent found one radio shack that anyone there had a clue about anything they sold other than Cell phone's. To me, thats sad. I used to spend hours when i was younger, roaming around the radio shacks, after school on Mondays and Tuesdays they did stocking and i was able to help out there... So its not that i hate them, i just wish they were a little more like their ad's around here. RadioShack.Com stores are MUCH different, the people there usualy are fairly knowlegable or can find someone who can help you, unfortunatly they are closing that store down as quickly as Tech America disapeared heh.

And as for "Painting" im sorry i generalized there, but im serious when i say Colorado radio shacks are nearly worthless unless its stocked, and you know what and where it is. I still think they are rediculas when it comes to replacement components for scanners, etc. I spend 12 bucks on a stupid transformer (Audio) in a pro-2006, 5 bucks for a transistor in the same scanner and 35 for a EL replacement. the EL used to be like 10 bucks. I can understand those being pricing since they are scarse now, but come on.. a transistor and transformer that they probably still use any numerious products, priced that high is beyond me. I will say that i've never had a bad experience as far as employee's go, they are fairly nice people on most occasions :)

And if you ever deside to move to CO, let me know, i would much rather visit your store..

Boy, that's the truth. There isn't a Radio Shack employee anywhere, I'd bet, with any knowledge of what the name represents, or what a real parts house is. Damn shame. Once a good name, Tandy pretty much ruined it when he bought it, but the JC Penny approach to "electronics" is sad. Thankfully I still have a couple of parts houses, and a Frys here in Austin. But Tandy has been aiming for lowest common for years, and got there finally.

Their slogan would be much more accurate if it was:

"You've got questions?...We've got blank stares"

I've lived all over the state, if you look in out phonebook there are a number of electronics shops all over the state, in the "Big City" as you call it and out on the plains. Sure they are less common the further you go into the country, but i've never had much of a hard time finding parts no matter where i lived. Either way, i see your point and the irritance level but if i needed parts or did alot of work, i would purchase at least $100 worth of parts that are fairly common from MCM Electronics or any number of other stores online. And yes before anyone asks, there are parts you can't get because its either A: not in stock or B: not a stocked part. So i have had to order stuff online and spend a little extra, but at least i have my parts. I dont always have to order online if i cant find it, generally the shop/store will order ir for me and i only pay the normal rate and no S&H or minimum ammounts. Guess i would be a little spoiled being here in the "Burbs" heh, but i do have friends who live in the mountains and they drive a couple hours for parts so i do know what you are talking about and understand.

73's and hopefully you will get a local parts house other than radio shack because i KNOW they cant/wont/dont stock or even carry everything you need :)

Well, actually Phil, things have been pretty good overall in our business.
The slowing economy has had some effect flattening out sales, but 2001 was as good as 2000. Cell phone sales are up, satellite sales down, computer sales almost non-existent but computer accessories are doing well. I have been thinking about carrying more amateur radio related items but have held off for the last five years in respect to my former employers at R & L Electronics, they are only 40 minutes drive away. Try my website at "My" criminal record? You don't even know my name. I'm sure that Riley (who is an attorney) would really enjoy those "court records" of three different people (none of which is me) if you did send them to him. Of course anyone who has had any dealings with you Woger knows that you are a pathological liar and a moron.

Liar. They ARE you, the felonies, the bad debt from the hospital, the divorce.
Why do they have the same names on all of the papers, you backpedaling shitworm?
Not to mention your OWN confession:

Weeno Pussy Paris admits to serving time in prison and confesses his profit margin while being a prison bitch in Message-ID: <3A06AFCF.4F7D1989@home.com>:
"My federal convictions were actually ones <bullshit excuses>(not before I did 12 months in federal prison anda 6 month violation of probation <...>"
"I've fought a long hard battle with the feds and state and while I can't say that I've won,
I more or less broke even, minus 16 months of my life."

Not to mention your prison sentence is discussed in the Crypt Newsletter. Funny how, that Eugene Paskell "Geno" Paris is mentioned going back to Oklahoma City, where you are.

http://www.philosophy.niu.edu/~crypt/other/crypt39

COLOSTOMY BAGBOY RETURNS TO CIVILIAN LIFE IN OKLAHOMA, REFLECTS ON SIMPLE PRISON RECREATIONS

Recently, Paskell "Geno" Paris called Crypt to inform readers he had returned from a two year stay in federal prison in connection with events that are well known to readers of "The Virus Creation Labs."

In 1993 Paris travelled under the handle "Colostomy Bagboy" while lurking on the Fidonet as sysop of the "Oklahoma Institute of Virus Research" in Oklahoma City. While a Fidonet sysop, Paris engaged in a well-publicized public feud with Edwin Cleton, a former moderator of one of the network's "Virus Information" message feeds.

As a computer virus exchange bulletin board sysop, Colostomy Bagboy edited two issues of the underground publication, Vortex. Vortex was a profane, hideously violent e-zine that mixed extreme bad taste and off-color humor with exhortations to join the author in the "stylish destruction" of the data of others found in the silicon vortex -- Paris' euphemism for the world computer network. To most users accustomed to driving slowly down the middle lane of the information highway, Vortex read as evidence that menacing electronic bogeymen lurked under every rock in cyberspace. However, like many electronic magazines from the underground it was exaggerated for effect, talking the talk and walking the walk of many such underground publications.

Federal and local lawmen indicted and arrested Paris the same year. He was subsequently convicted on charges apparently unrelated to his underground persona. A fraud charge stemming from the creation or usurpation of a false identity and a forgery charge resulting from attempts to counterfeit treasury bills landed him in prison. Paris also maintained computer tampering was also part of the conviction, coming down from what he claimed was an unsuccessful attempt to access and meddle with the FBI's National Crime Information Center computer database.

While serving his two year sentence, Paris said he was contacted by reporters looking for a scoop on the underground world of computer hacking. However, no stories resulted. Paris added he was allowed to be part of a computer club at one of the minimum security facilities -- a work camp -- where he was incarcerated. In addition, Paris told Crypt News fisticuffs is a common recreation in American jails.

Over the holidays, Paskell "Geno" Paris mailed Crypt a number of dispatches including a Christmas greeting. Paris, recently admonished by a two year stint in prison, has resumed travel in cyberspace
under the handle "Colostomy Bagboy." Any who are interested in swapping correspondence with him can send mail to:

jesus.christ@webcitement.com .

Paris indicated he was once again involved in tormenting users of the Fidonet, referring to them in one electronic document
as "[the] Filthy Fido Capitalist PigDogs." Bagboy's current operations are somewhat reminiscent of those of the character Jesus Bernal in Carl Hiaasen's black humor/crime story, "Tourist Season" (Warner Books).
In neo-Bernal style, Paris vows to "smite [enemies] until they are most smote" by employing mass distribution of nuisance electronic leaflets and political statements.

7 a.m. flood of posts to the 11 p.m. hour on the 27th.
Pzzzzt! Woger! wrong. All your posts with the time of 11 p.m. on the 27th were really postid during the 7 a.m.
hour on the 28th. Your patturn is too well established Wogey!
So, looks like one or two of the posters were right. You do work a nite shift! vewy vewy interesting wogey! Now run from the truth Woger, spin your lies. you done been caught.

Fuck, that wouldn't even buy a plot of land where I live, let alone a house. You can't even get a condo for under 60k.

Why would they need two bedrooms, 8L0J08 sleeps with his mother. Perhaps he uses the spare bedroom for a meth lab?

IKYABWAI. Shameless really. Tell us more about this Melinda that I "live" with Woger. And more about how a building zoned for business has all these people living in it :) Oh yeah, it's pretty funny that a

I have new factory fresh 3-500zg tubes for sale. These tubes are fully tested before they are shipped. I stand behind every tube i sell. If you would like to see some references about my tubes and service, just go to my web site http://www.tomstubes.com and look for the reference section near the bottom of the page.
My 3-500zg tubes are really great. I have sold dozens of these, and I have never had to replace a single tube! As I said, each tube is fully tested and that is the only time the tubes have been removed from their factory shipping boxes.
The price of my 3-500zg tubes is $110.00 plus shipping. I will warranty each tube for 6 months.....no ouestions asked....If you are not completely satisfied with any tube you buy from me, send it back for an exchange or refund....your choice.....no hassle.
I also have 4cx800a tubes new in the box for $190.00 per PAIR!
Thanks for your time and 73.

Hi ngr's, hi om's and (x)yl's,

I'm looking for the specification of the antenna tuner interface of the Kenwood TS50 amateur-radio transceiver.
The tuner terminal connector consist of five pins:

antenna-tuner-connector (front view)

+---+---+---+
| 1 | 2 | 3 |
+---+---+---+
| | 5 | 6 |
+---+---+---+
```

When the transceiver is switched off but connected to power supply (+13,4V) the pins have the measured voltage values:

Pin 1: +0,6V
Pin 2: 0V
Pin 3: 0V
Pin 5: 0V
Pin 6: +13,4V

When the transceiver is switched on (RX-Mode) the pins are in the following condition:

Pin 1: +0V
Pin 2: +5V <-- this voltage (+5V) could be tied down by a 1 kOhm resistor to 0,8V
Pin 3: +0V and by a 500 Ohm resistor to 0,4V.
Pin 5: +0V
Pin 6: +13,4V

During the power-on period, some dynamic condition appear on pin 1 and 2:

Pin 1: goes up to +5V for 1.2 sec and then down to +0V for ever until switching the transceiver off, independent of pressing the antenna tuner push button at the front panel.

Pin 2: goes up to +0V for 150ms and then up to +5V for the rest of the time.

I want to get the frequency/band info and hope this information is reported to the tuner-interface.

Have you any hints for me, concerning this tuner interface.

PS: in the service-manual kennwood call the pins:
TT and TS, seems to be bidirectional and connected via biderectional drivers to the M37702M4A 16-bit CPU (i/o port P8)

Pin 1: GND (digital ground ?)
Pin 2: TT ?
Pin 3: ATG (antenna/analog ground ?)
Pin 4: TS ?
Pin 5: 14S (power supply)

Many thanks in advance

Markus Wolfgart

The name is "Radio Shack"....RADIO SHACK! It originally was a store for hobbyists and radio amateurs.
Now you walk in and ask a simple radio-related question and they look at you like you are from outer space.
Obviously thier customer demographics have changed over the years and they had to change to remain financially viable, but they need to change thier name now, as they no longer serve the people who have spent so much time in those little structures they use as thier name.

How about changing it from "Radio Shack" to "Useless Crap"?

SELL: Ferris Instrument Co signal generator. Vintage age. Appears to be the granddaddy of the Boonton gear as also manufactured in Boonton, NJ and looks exactly like their product style of the 1930-40's Model: 18-D, freq range: 8 - 210 mhz, 0-1.2v RF output.

Excellent condx, has all tubes, unmodified, original AC cord, atten. pad & cable. Guess to be from the 1930's.

Best reasonable offer. Buyer pays shipping and any "out-of-pocket" packing expenses (no extra charge for packing - if we can find a suitable box - and taking to shipping point of your choice (postal or UPS).

The message above was filtered by Novia before it even reached any filter of mine. Novia is a large ISP with over 4,000 users, so they may be implementing their own filters for their own purposes (such as to prevent denial of service), and not always explicitly telling its customers.

Since this was news to me, I inquired of the Novia staff and was told that yes, they are currently using the IP Block List provided by Spamcop. According to the URL referenced above (http://spamcop.net/w3m?action=checkblock&ip=213.165.64.100), Spamcop chose to add your originating IP address to the block list because electronic mail sourced from it seems to be disproportionately SPAM: over 7%, whereas the threshold for blocking is only 2%).

I do not have total knowledge of, or control over, any spam-blocking (via RBL, ORBS, Spamcop, etc.) conducted by my ISP or any upstream intermediary. I can only claim that I do not make any effort to filter out replies to the "WELCOME to rec.radio.amateur.misc" message. My original statement (that you can send replies to me) was factual and honest based on my knowledge of circumstances at the time. If you'd prefer, I can even rephrase my statement:

The author welcomes any and all constructive feedback concerning this message. Please direct all such feedback to pschleck@novia.net and retain the original subject (e.g., "Re: WELCOME to rec.radio.amateur.misc") in your reply.

The author of this message makes no attempts to filter out E-mail replies. However, he has no control over (and often no knowledge of) upstream filtering conducted by his ISP or any other party. E-mail is inherently reliable, for reasons often out of the control of either the sender or recipient. Bounces should not be taken personally, and certainly not as an opportunity to accuse the recipient of selfish or evil motives.

Is that better?

Well, at this point, I can only assert the following, based on my personal observations:

- Over 99% of the message's recipients do not reply at all

- Of those that reply, positive messages outnumber negative ones by over 2:1

If you don't want to believe me, I would be happy to arrange a Usenet
"Straw Poll" conducted by an impartial votetaker, such as from the Usenet Volunteer Votetakers, according to standard Usenet newsgroup voting practices. We have had both newsgroup creation votes and straw polls on this newsgroup over the years. A YES vote would be to eliminate the welcome message, a NO vote would be to continue it (note that I'm even giving you the advantage of the positive vote).

We would have 30 days of discussion on the newsgroup, then a votetaker who is not a participant on rec.radio.amateur.misc, nor even a radio amateur, will collect votes for 30 days, then publish the results to the newsgroup. We can even review, and come to an agreement on which impartial votetaker we will use.

Usenet newsgroup voting practices require not only a majority, but a vote spread of 100 more YES votes than NO votes. This not only ensures that there are at least 100 votes (for a statistically significant sample), but that there aren't serious objections (a close vote indicating lack of strong consensus). This avoids something like an apathetic 5-4 turnout (out of thousands of newsgroup readers), or a controversial 1001-999 turnout (shades of Florida chad!).

Usenet newsgroup votes require such a 100-vote spread to change the status quo, i.e., to add or delete a newsgroup. I would propose a 100-vote spread in the poll to change the status quo here, i.e., to stop the auto-mailing. If the "WELCOME to rec.radio.amateur.misc" message is as controversial as you imply, and that there is no significant consensus for it, then finding 100 more YES votes than NO votes should be a no-brainer.

I agree to abide by the results if both you and Tekman agree to as well.

I wouldn't worry about it too much. My wireless network "sees" my microwave and i can see it on a 2.4Ghz video monitor too. Remember this is a 700-1000 Watt cavity oscillator. Your baby-monitor can probably hear a signal at 0.5 Microvolts so it takes VERY little leakage to hit the baby-monitor. An old trick to see if RF is sneaking out is to hold"with insulated stick" a NE-2 or simular neon lamp as a wand and run it around the door and case. If there is a major leak you will know it in a hurry!
Hope this helps......Eddie

Back to the topic of RS, I can recall an odd scene I witnessed in a Radio Shack store in Cypress, Texas (a suburb of Houston). I was just looking around when a couple of guys came into the store and purchased all of the resistors they could of a certain size. It turned out that they were from Compaq -- a startup computer company (the year was 1984) -- and that they needed the resistors to complete a production run on time.

The clerk told me that the Compaq guys used to come into his store for parts all of the time.

Looking at this from a different angle........

Ok, so the baby unit operates on the same frequency as the microwave oven.
When you hold the receiver to the microwave over, you get three LEDS.
When you make a noise on the baby monitor transmitter with the Receiver next to it, you get three LEDS.

I guess the baby monitor's transmitter is about as safe as the microwave oven seems to be.....

Brillant! You pass the test. Sometimes the obvious escapes us. When I told my wife about my worry about the leakage and my experiment, she realized the obvious and asked matter-of-factly, "so we get rid of the monitor too? " "What?" I said and she explained.

So I decided to post to the group and see who else could think outside the box, too.

Incidentally, someone suggested it was hash from an unfiltered power supply. I tried listening to several frequencies in the 150kHz - 30mHz range and found hash faded rapidly to undetectable around 500kHz. I could detect nothing beyond about 10ft at any of those frequencies.

Anyway, thanks to everyone for your replies. I think we're going to keep both the monitor and the oven.

Q. What do you call an anti-coder with an Apple computer?
A. An iTard.

Q. How many anti-coders does it take to screw in a light bulb?
A. Only one. But none will try.

Q. How can you get an anti-coder to speak intimate terms of endearment?

A. Super-glue a picture of Al Gore to his mike.

Q. Why did the anti-coder smear grease all over his antenna?
A. So dem SWR's will slide right off!

Did you hear about the anti-coder who made ten pit stops at an oval track race? One stop for gas, the other nine for directions.

An anti-coder goes into a ham store and picks up a 50 foot roll of coax. After staring at it for 10 minutes, he was asked what he was doing. He said he was trying to figure out which end went to the radio and which end went to the antenna.

Then there was the anti-coder who said a "heterodyne" is a restaurant for straights.

Q. Why were the roomful of anti-coders crying?
A.. The local welfare office closed for a month.

Q. What do you call the morgue at an AIDS hospital?
A. The anti-coder Hall of Fame.

Q. How many anti-coders can you stuff into a shoebox?
A. All of them.

Q. What do you call a bunch of anti-coders in a welfare office?
A. CBers at their watering hole.

Some anti-coders were told to to "dress for success." Then, the local Wal-Mart had a run on rainbow underwear.

Q. How does an anti-coder spell "relief" ?
A. He can't - he's afraid of the alphabet.

An anti-coder goes into a restaurant and sees some lobsters in a tank. Feeling sorry for them, he hides them under his shirt, takes them out to the woods and sets them free.

Two anti-coders were riding in the bed of a pickup truck. The truck goes off the highway into a lake. The driver rolled down the window and escaped to safety. The two anti-coders riding in the truck bed drowned, because they couldn't lower the tailgate.

Hear about the anti-coder who applied for a Lewinsky class license? He said that all he had to do was blow the code and then he could blow the VE.

well,

I have found a total of 7 programs that would work in linux (key word:

compiling).

I'd like to be able to use my soundcard to demod signals on shortwave and vhf/uhf (various amateur radio digital modes and some weather fax stuff).

anyone have any ideas. I've tried the authors of some of these programs (only heard back from 2) and they are at a loss as to where to go from here.

if someone has any useful ideas, please let me know.

thanks.

For sale. Icom IC-R3. It's new; it's a scanner; it's a spectrum analyser; it's a television; it's hideously complicated; it's been used once but sworn at many times.

I can't get on with the wretched thing. It obviously needs a good home where its myriad functions and daunting handbook, which weakened my will to live when I first opened it, will be appreciated. The user manual would've been easier to understand and a lot shorter had it said what the bloody thing doesn't do.

Okay -- buying it two weeks ago was a mistake. I admit that. Rather than leave it languishing in its box, it's for sale at nearly half its purchase price to anyone who feels that their uneventful, cosy little humdrum life needs fulfilling with a real challenge. Any UK-based takers at GBP250?

Paul, for the record, this is called "The lurkers support me in email," and will get you razzed even by people who agree with you. Like this post, f'rinstance :)

But back to the initial point of this post.

My name is Jeremy Billones. I've been on Usenet since late 1988/early 1989, and for several years I served as a member of the Usenet Volunteer Votetakers.
<URL:http://www.uvv.org>
The UVV was created after the folks on news.groups realised that letting proponents of a new newsgroup be the ones to count the votes on whether or not to create it was A Bad Thing. I ran several newsgroup votes, and a couple of straw polls (including the one for the reorganization of the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy in 1998), and AFAIK managed to avoid any major controversy. Mostly. (I'm not on Mark Logue's Christmas card list :) You can check <URL:http://www.deja.com> for posts by me to news.announce.newsgroups to see the votes I've run, and for posts by me to rec.radio.amateur.* -- all five of them :) -- to see the results of the '98 poll.

(And before anyone asks... my late grandfather had an amateur radio license, but I do not.)

Paul asked the UVV if he could get a volunteer to run a poll regarding FAQ policy in RRAM. It looks like everyone else is busy, so even though I haven't actually run a vote in a while I agreed to do it.

I'll try and keep up with discussions in here, but I don't read the group regularly so I might miss something.

Time to get your microwave oven checked. At least clean around the door see if the problem is in the oven or in the monitor.

Good point. I can assert as much as I want, but without independent verification, it's no better than the classic "The lurkers support me in email," statement, which seems to be the canonical "last defense of the scoundrel" on Usenet.

This is why I have suggested that we have a straw poll by an impartial votetaker. I asked Jeremy Billones if he would be willing to do another straw poll for us (having done one back in 1998) and he agreed.

Jeremy's public (though constructive) criticism of me above should stand as further evidence of his impartiality :-).

I've issued the challenge of an impartial straw poll to better gauge the actual opinions of readers on this newsgroup with regard to my welcome message mailing project. I've also found a willing, and quite impartial, votetaker to conduct the poll. Jeremy and I are open to negotiation regarding the procedures and rules of the straw poll. When the terms are agreed upon, I will also agree to abide by its results (even though Jeremy is entitled to insist that any straw poll is inherently non-binding, as there is no enforcement mechanism to compel any actions based on the results).

Do critics like "Stagger Lee" and Andreas ("Tekman") accept this challenge, or were they just blowing hot air?

Your offer is interesting and apparently honest, although I worry about things like keeping my email address out of the hands of anyone other than yourself, including Mr. Schleck. I'll be happy to vote using a real email address, provided that there are some assurances that the address won't be passed along to other parties.

This seems to be the first vote of any kind that I've seen, and I've been reading the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy for at least six years at this point. If people really want Mr. Schleck's unsolicited email, then I certainly won't stand in their way (Although I have no idea how I could in a practical sense).

The only part of this that seems a bit odd to me is the 100 vote surplus. If I understood Paul's post correctly, those who wanted him to stop sending unsolicited email to new posters would have to outnumber everyone else with 100 YES votes -- meaning YES, stop the email.

That seems reversed, because I'd expect voters to vote NO to the email, and not the other way around. It seems like a point of easy confusion, and it seems like a vote requirement biased in the direction of keeping the email going.

Suppose things were reversed? That is, the voters would have to provide a 100 vote surplus which said YES keep the unsolicited email coming. Somehow, I wonder if that wouldn't be far less palatable to Mr. Schleck than the requirement that there be a surplus of 100 votes in order to shut the email off.

In any case, I'm in favor of a vote. And I will agree to abide by it. I won't send Paul any unsolicited email if that's the way the vote turns out. :)

One option would be to have Jeremy accept the votes in confidence, and not post the actual E-mail addresses in the results (full real names, or at least callsigns, and their votes, will be posted to authenticate the vote). A given ballot will only be revealed if the person who was alleged to have casted the vote complains, and then revealed only to that person. For example, if the results show that "W1XYZ" voted "YES" and he says "I had voted NO!" or even "What straw poll?" then W1XYZ can see his ballot. I would suggest printing out the ballot and sending it via U.S. Mail to the complainant's callbook address rather than E-mail, as there is no way to reliably verify someone on-line. I will not see anyone's ballot (or E-mail address) except my own.

After further contemplation, discussion with Jeremy, and your feedback,
I agree that such a 100-vote margin, while valuable for newsgroup votes, might be too wide a spread for this straw poll. We can also reverse the YES and NO semantics if you feel that it would be confusing. Then "YES" would be to continue to mailing, "NO" would be to stop it.

My concern is that we do not have a very small turnout with close results. Perhaps instead, the following could be done:

- A supermajority of >= 2/3 of the votes if the total amount of votes is under 100.

- A simple majority of >= 50% of the votes if the total amount of votes is 100 or greater

If neither condition is met, then the straw poll is inconclusive one way or the other. If it is inconclusive, then I will consider the poll non-binding. All other parties may consider it non-binding with no complaint from me.

>In any case, I'm in favor of a vote. And I will agree to abide by it.
>I won't send Paul any unsolicited email if that's the way the vote turns >out. :)

Let Jeremy know if you consider these terms acceptable.

The theory behind posting the actual email addresses of voters is for independant verification in the event that the validity of the vote is questioned. (On the other hand, it's considered bad form to email the list of voters and ask them for verification. Go figure.)
If I just list the names/handles of the voters in the result, and leave the addresses out, that should be fine as long as nobody protests.

The important feature is that it's not a secret ballot, not is it anonymous. (Pseudonymous, as a well-known handle is acceptable in lieu of a name, but you have to vote from a vaild address.)

Hi JJ DD!
I don't have the 757 schematic in front of me at the moment, but if your 757 is locked in TX with the CW Key only, there is an I.C. that is located on the RF Unit, that the CW Key connects to, that probably has failed.

Long winded explanation I guess.
I'll try to look at the schematic and tell you which U# the I.C. is.

That I.C. controls some of the TX switching functions...

On the one that I had the microphone was commoned with the case.
I separated the case and the microphone lines at the switch in the base, leaving the case of the mic connected to the "ground" of the radio, then hooked the mike to the radio mic+ and mic-.
Insulate the mic element from the case in the head.

Are you saying that it was Hams that brought down those Blackhawk helicoptors? Let's put this into perspective, twist. We were talking about illegal operators, people that have no respect for the law, other operators, or people's lives. Or didn't you read those

Why the hell not? An illogical assertion can logically be countered by the same.

Let's put this into perspective, twist. We were talking

No we're not asshole, we're talking about EMI (Elecrto Magnetic Interference) and possible origins. You alledge it to be CB Radio and we can alledge it to be Ham Operators. No proof of either has been shown!

Or didn't you read those

Sure I did. Not a single fucking word of it said CB Radio in it anywhere!

It's simply nonsens you tell.

Answer:

since the result is proven and exactly the same, I still state that
- it is not possible to contact you as you described above.
- the facts you present here are simply FALSE.
- a lot of people still don't want your unsolicitated mail.

Would be nice if you stop telling us email adresses that are proven useless, but it's your reputation that is harmed through this - not ours.

and now, as the vulcanians already say: Live long and prosper.

NO-CODE INTERNATIONAL Candidates statement, and
CALL FOR ADDITIONAL CANDIDATES.

Please pass this message on to other Radio Amateurs, especially NCI members.

NO-CODE: THE END-GAME

You may know me: I'm Bruce Perens K6BP. I'm the founder of No-Code International. Outside of Amateur Radio, I'm probably best known as one of the founders of the Open Source movement in computer software, and an early Linux developer. You can read my bio at http://perens.com/ .

When I started NCI in 1997, I never dreamed that we'd achieve our goals so quickly - but we are most of the way there. Last year, the International Amateur Radio Union, composed of national radio societies from all over the world, voted to ask for the removal of the international treaty provision requiring Morse Code testing for Radio Amateurs. Even ARRL voted in favor of removing code requirements from the (international) Radio Regulations. There is no remaining credible opposition to NCI's cause on the international level. It's certain that code requirements will be removed during a future World Radio Conference, hopefully the one in 2003.

The battle then moves on to the national front, or should I say 204 national fronts. But this might not be much of a fight. National Amateur Radio societies that lobbied to preserve code testing would likely be opposed by their own governments and citizens. The U.S. FCC has already stated that their only reason for 5 WPM code testing is to satisfy the international treaty requirement. As its demographics change, the worldwide Amateur population becomes progressively less enamored of code requirements. Even pro-code organizations like FISTS have wisely concentrated on promoting the use of Morse on the air, rather than on the test. Thus, I don't see it as a winning strategy for any radio society, even ARRL, to continue to drag its feet on code testing once the international requirement ends. We won't fall asleep at the switch: NCI will persevere until the day that code requirements have been eliminated in every nation. But the end-game calls for a very different NCI from the one we've had up to now.

NCI has always been an adversary, and now it's time for us to be a partner. Our opposition has conceded enough that it's time for NCI to reconcile with them. If we don't do so, we could snatch defeat from the jaws of victory by motivating new opposition in the no-code battle. But I am not confident that some of the present NCI directors are ready for the challenge of cooperation with their old enemies. A number of them cling to a rabid and vindictive ARRL-phobia in a time when little more than watchfulness is appropriate. Thus, I am calling for the formation of a slate of candidates to bring NCI into the future, as a partner in the rehabilitation of Amateur Radio.

The CW requirements battle, carried on since the 1950's, has been a crippling one for Amateur Radio. In a time when we should have been moving the Amateur Service into the future, many of us dug our heels in to the past, diverting our collective energy from the healthy growth of our service and the defense of our radio spectrum allocation. We Radio Amateurs, through our own short-sightedness, took a vital Service and transformed it into technology's endangered species. But the Amateur Radio Service remains critically important as an educational tool. Amateur Radio is still the only practical means of maintaining a worldwide corps sufficient to improvise effective communications in any emergency, no matter how large. The social benefits of the Amateur Service, and the many good attributes of the Amateur Radio hobby, must be preserved. All Amateurs must unite to achieve that goal.

For NCI to take its appropriate role in the end-game of the no-code battle means cooperation with national societies like ARRL, and with IARU on the international front. Although I was bitterly opposed to ARRL's long-standing policy in favor of high-speed code testing, my goal has always been to get them to change their minds, not to defeat them. I've maintained my ARRL membership during the entire existence of NCI, and was lucky enough to be able to donate $1000 to ARRL's frequency defense fund last year. Every U.S. Amateur should donate whatever they can to that fund - go to https://www.arrl.org/forms/fdefense/fdefense.html to do so, or read about the fund at http://www.arrl.org/news/features/2002/01/14/2?nc=1

It's time to re-build NCI's leadership. Any person who was an NCI member on December 31, 2001 can be a candidate for director, and can vote in the election to be held no later than April 30. NCI directors can volunteer to attend government and radio society meetings on behalf of the organization, but most of them do little more than discuss the organization's policy and vote their directions via email. Thus, the load of being an NCI director is a manageable one for a busy person. We need new blood, and we need to question our existing leadership about how they will bring our organization into the future, if they are to continue in their positions at all.

Please write to me and tell me how you feel about this, especially if you are willing to serve as a candidate.

Many Thanks

Bruce Perens K6BP
Incumbent NCI Director

1532. Use of SSB on bottom of 40 meters?

I have been noticing quite a number of SSB signals towards the bottom end of 40M over the last several weeks, here in Seattle WA. The voices are mostly Spanish, with an occasional japanese/chinese/korean speaker thrown in. These are definitely hams, not SWBCers. I have spotted them down as low as 7035. Tonight I heard them right on 7040 (the QRP CW freq.!!), and several places from 7050-7065. I know that SSB is allowed between 7075-7100 in ITU Region 2 outside of the US, but nowhere can I find reference to any authorization for SSB or other 'wideband' mode use below 7075. What is going on with this? It is making 40 more frustrating than usual. I never heard this BS before this month. I also heard what seemed to be a VK or ZL tonight on 7123 SSB. What gives?

So, if, periodically, I find my TV being jammed - at around mealtimes, by what looks like noise modulated at 120Hz, can I call the FCC and have them stake out the neighborhood and find out who's sterilizing themselves? - oh, wait. The Darwin Effect. Never mind. :-)

I have also encountered this problem recently. The main source appears to be Cuba. I remonstrated with a group of Cuban stations who were in an SSB net on 7033 kHz one day last week and they informed me thet "The SSB band in Cuba now starts at 7030 kHz". It seems they are a law unto themselves, so what can you do?

In Europe and Africa (Region 1), band plans are generally voluntary.
The entire 40m band in Region 1 is only 100 kHz wide (7000 - 7100 kHz) and the recommended SSB section in this Region is 7040 - 7100 kHz.
The sector 7035 - 7045 is also used by data modes in Region 1, including RTTY and PSK31. With the proliferation of code-free licenses for HF operation, the problem of encroachment into the CW sub-band is bound to get worse.

Much more of a problem than SSB in the CW band is the constant wide-band jamming which affects the whole of 40m during hours of darkness. It is believed to be coming from Iran and is targetted at a station in Iraq which is broadcasting propaganda in Persian. (See ARRL news.)

There are no sub-bands mandated in the VK licence regulations. In most cases, if you can use a mode anywhere in a band, you can use it everywhere in the band.

The Wireless Institute of Australia (WIA) voluntary bandplan has CW from 7000kHz to 7300kHz and SSB from 7040kHz to 7300kHz, so either way they are within the accepted band allocations for VK-land.

regards,
Mark.

Probably fishing boats, bootleggers, pleasure boaters or any number of other things. Common on 75 meters also. With ham gear being so plentiful and no licence needed to buy it this type of thing is inevitable. Example: If you look closely at those older CNN video of Usama Bin Laden using an HT to talk at his (now destroyed) Al Queda training camps, and photos of his associates, you will see either Icom or Yaesu ham gear HT's on their belds or lapels via a carry strap. Nice commercial for Icom and Yaesu eh...?

I assume you're talking about broadcast band AM - i.e. 530-1620khz. Try http://www.ccrane.com/radios_and_antennas_index.asp . The antenna works quite well, and they radio is supposedly quite good as well.

1557. ACC RC850 upgrade information?

Greetings:

Does anyone have the upgrade information for an ACC
RC850 repeater controller still in their files?

I have one here that was upgraded to version 3.8, but I think it was an incomplete upgrade. I purchased the controller from a club that changed controllers. They had no other information.

What I nedd are the sheets that came with the upgrade.
Link had nothing.

That's pretty contrary to what I hear up on the 10 meter band - it's just more of the same lousy language and operating going on down on the REAL CB band - and I personally don't think we want OR

Is it the 11mtr band you mean, around the 27.555MHz usb.
these people have been using these frequencies for years, and no-one is going to stop them. most r-hams including myself started of on 27.555, this led to many of us becoming a r-ham.

Agreed. 10 years ago when I became a ham, 10 meters wasn't as cluttered with lids who don't know the meaning of "operating split" when it comes to chasing DX. As an ARRL member, I think it was a shame the ARRL took the stance on the license restructuring. I've seen posts on the DX Packetclusters from foreign stations saying "Boy I bet the ARRL really must be proud of themselves". 10 meters used to be a really fun band to be on, it still can be, but with lids who don't know simple procedures and operating practices, radio manufacturers might as well toss the license paperwork in the box along with the rig. All in all, the ARRL is a good organization, but any organization will make mistakes, big or small.

I'm not sure if "r-ham" means "licensed radio amateur" but if it does, no, most hams DID NOT start on 27.555. A few old-timers maybe.... that used to be a ham band.

My, you're a hypocrite.

Staggering Drunk Lee, the "Pulitzer prize award-winning writer" slobbered
the following Ebonics in <9a56ue$hi0$0@dosa.alt.net>:

"I hope yourself takes the advice you are giving to yourself."

SPANKARD Faggot Lee admits he's crossposted in order to help his pathetic, syphlitic ass win a flame war, if you can read his chicken scratching
in <3AA5A686.E2ACE517@some.net>:

"I have seen to it that some of JBO's irrational posts show up in alt.2600, because the owner of cotse practically lives there (tell you something?), and I wanted the owner of cotse to ?>xperience JBO's posts first hand. Cotse is doing a service to no one when t confuses freedom with license -- the typical error of the neophyte do->ooder -- and Roger's posts are a prime example of the typical esults that error."

Chief Child abuser Stagger Lee (SLee@houston-hunks.com) whined to the newsgroups as usual and admitted his defeat with a SPANKING in

"You know what? I think I'm going to add cotse and mailandnews.com to my filtering rules. I'm bored with you, Mr. Scatologist."

Then ill-educated Sagger Pee mangled this sentence by using a singular case where a plural clearly needed to be, "proves" his lack of education:

"which prove to the world just what an ignoramus and loser you are,"

Straggler Lee slobbers his "results" in <04630.10999.00@houston-hunks.com>:

"As a reslult, many news servers are either going to chop off the second
news
group that you added or else reject your post entirely."
--

AIDS INFECTED IGNORAMUS "Stagger Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> was caught in his own lack of education and tried to backpedal out of his use of "too" instead of "two"
in message <too.two_or_also@houston-hunks.com>:
"You too need to get a newsreader which generates a References header."

Oh my. are you still in the 1900's. Damn it is now 2002. What does the war have to do with it. You seem like a teeny weeny OLD man that is a pervert, that is racist & cannot leave the past alone. You seem to be blaming everyone for the war and your mistakes. Get over it. It is 2002 now. You probably think that the world was going to end in 2000. There may still be racism now. Like you. But most accept other races and other mistakes. Oh well. You can live in the past and look at your girly porn. Ut, or is it boy porn. But you are too funny to listen to and I love laughing at trolls that want to argue. Atleast I am not getting bent out of shape over your whining.

To "Stagger Lee" and Andreas ("Tekman"),

The original votetaker from the 1998 Straw Poll (to gauge support for a rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroup reorganization) said that he was available to do an impartial poll of the readers of this newsgroup regarding my one-time, new-poster welcome message. That individual is Jeremy Billones, billones@radix.net. Jeremy was a Usenet Volunteer Votetaker and has conducted several newsgroup creation votes and straw polls in the past. He is not a regular participant in this newsgroup, nor is he a licensed amateur radio operator, so he is an impartial individual with no interest in the outcome.

The resolution would be as follows:

"The one-time mailing of a short welcome message, containing pointers to FAQ documents and web sites, to new posters of rec.radio.amateur.misc should continue."

Therefore a YES vote would be to continue the mailing. A NO vote would be to stop it. "Stagger Lee" stated his preference that the poll be structured in this way, as these voting semantics would be less confusing.

After further discussion with "Stagger Lee" and Jeremy Billones, I would propose the following terms for the poll:

- 30 day discussion in the newsgroup, 30 day vote (I post the discussion announcement, each side gets 30 days to clarify their position in followups, then Jeremy posts the voting announcement and collects votes at his E-mail address for 30 days)

- no campaigning by either side outside of rec.radio.amateur.misc during 30 day discussion, and no campaigning at all during 30 day vote (no proxy votes, no preprinted ballots, no automatic voting or anonymizing web sites, no E-mail campaigns, no campaigns on other newsgroups; basically the standard Usenet voting restrictions, with the addition of the single newsgroup restriction)

(realistically, the above restrictions on campaigning only apply to the principal proponents/opponents, though others are requested to respect this also)

- CANCEL and ABSTAIN votes allowed also (not counted in majority calculation, but ABSTAIN votes are included in total vote count)

(consistent with Usenet voting guidelines)

- latest vote from an individual (i.e., the same E-mail address) supersedes any earlier ones

(consistent with Usenet voting guidelines)

- 2/3 supermajority of YES or NO if < 100 total YES/NO/ABSTAIN votes, simple majority of YES or NO if >= 100 total YES/NO/ABSTAIN votes, inconclusive and "non-binding" otherwise (though Jeremy might argue that any poll is non-binding anyway)

(this avoids the small-sample/close-results problem that will surely result in endless arguments on the newsgroup regarding the validity of the poll; we have thousands of recipients of the welcome message already, and likely many more readers of rec.radio.amateur.misc who have never posted; most of these individuals surely have an opinion on the subject, so I really don't see how anyone can have a problem with these proposed margins and total vote counts; note that requiring a minimum number of participants in a vote is also known as a having a "quorum")

- At least a full real name or a current, unexpired amateur radio callsign in ballot (callsigns verified at http://www.qrz.com)

(I suppose "Stagger Lee" and "Tekman" can use their well-known pseudonyms, but what should we do if there are multiple, perhaps contradictory, votes from those claiming to be "Stagger Lee" or "Tekman" from different E-mail addresses?)

- voting E-mail address that does not bounce

(consistent with Usenet voting guidelines)

- E-mail addresses kept in confidence by votetaker

(A bounce-ack announcement and voting reminder, with only names or callsigns of voters whose acknowledgments bounced, will be posted by Jeremy at the mid-vote point.)

- Only names/callsigns and votes published in results

(avoiding E-mail address harvesting for SPAM, a principal reason why some people with an opinion might hesitate to vote)

- Original ballot and E-mail address only revealed to the individual with his full real name or callsign in the ballot (and upon complaint)

(I will not see anyone's ballot or E-mail address except my own.)

If these terms are agreeable, we can proceed with the 30 day discussion, to be immediately followed by a 30 day vote, at any time.

Why not? We have (in VK) 7.0 - 7.3 MHz, and there is no legally-enforceable band plan either (ie we can operate SSB on 7.003 LSB if we wish).

SSB down to 7.050 is common in contests, although not usually any lower.

Cuz BigRadios.Biz sales are at stake. If illegal CBers start seeing proof that their overpowered outband rigs interfere with stuff then it could affect Train's ability to sell his cb amps and crappy doctored radios.

Yeah! Pretty soon Rogie's Butt Buddy, the $90,000 per year enjuneer will be leaving his rental hovel and paying cash for a lavish home in Buckhead. Next time you look up W4AMP at QRZ make sure he lists his address for that 14 room mansion his big bucks are sure to earn. Who knows? AMP may even, by then, have a working vehicle in good enough shape to drive them to their new home...if the water pump doesn't go belly-up! What the heck, it is only 45 miles or so....towing fees can't be all that costly.
AMP is soon going to hit the big time...big bucks, big house, social standing, indoor plumbing and dental care. See what an enjuneering degree can do for you? Go to a trade school nine months...be a professional. Get your teeth fixed. Dye the wife's hair red.
And dodge the bill collectors.

Roger has no real property. He only recently had the phone records changed to show his TX number registered to Roger and Marie Wiseman. The older phone books only showed Marie.
The last available on-line tax records recorded Marie Wiseman as being the sole owner of the property.
Roger most likely pitched a bitch about the availability of the records and requested that they not be made available via the Internet.
One can still request the records by submitting a written request to the Auditor's office with a sase envelope. Why anybody would bother is beyond me.
If one were so inclined it would also be easy enough to submit a written request to the Recorder's office to get information about Rogie's marriage license. This could be carried even further and a request for the birth records for Rogers' kids could be obtained from the Health Department. This he cannot stop despite his protestations since it is a matter of public records.
But again, why bother?
Rog...see the value of posting anonymously?

Roger Wiseman, Glen Dale Low-Life has unanimously been elected the Lowest of The Low by a committee of his peers. Creme De La Crud....
Roger has few accomplishments, but he is most proud of being nominated the "punching bag of the year" by those who swat him about in the newsgroups.
Among Roger's accolades are achievements such as "the man least likely to succeed", and "the man least likely to satisfy a woman" and "the only man who ever sucked my seed".
Rogie will arise, no pun intended, and will spew his usual filth. Stay tuned for more of the same old same old.
He lacks originality. He plagiarizes.
He ain't overly intelligent.
Milquetoast.

1592. Ten-Tec Scout 555 band-switching project. . .

I have been thinking about constructing a switch box for the modules for my Scout, really since a month or two after I bought it in 1998. I love this little rig, but I am getting mighty tired of swapping the band modules in and out, in and out.

So after a couple of years bitching about it and thinking about it, I have decided to do something about it, and do it in the next week. What I have planned so far is an ABS/plastic or (probably) aluminum case, large enough to accomodate 6 modules
(I don't use my Scout on 160, 17, or 12), complete with a switch and [maybe] indicator lights.

I keep meaning to call Ten-Tec's technical support department, but I never seem to make it before they go home @ 4 p.m.
Eastern. I need to know what the type of connectors used in the modules are called (esp. the edge-card, but the barrel/coax ones as well), the size, ratings, and where I can get them. I also want to ask them if they know of anyone else homebrewing a bandswitching scheme for the Scout, and what to look out for or avoid in the process.

The modules will connect to the box, with one flat-ribbon cable going from the box to the module socket on the Scout. I need to figure out how to do this so that the job is reliable, durable, and looks nice.
Other questions and issues I have with this project are: what type of switch (e.g. rotary ceramic, electronic, multiple push buttons, etc.) to use to select the active band, and the best wiring arrangement for six modules?; the best case material?; any issues with grounding, cable lengths, heat, etc.?; what type & number of indicator(s), i.e.

neon/LED/incandescent?

So, that's my project plan. Not terribly complicated, but I do have a few things to work out. If you have any suggestions for addressing the questions I have raised above, I would be grateful to hear them. Any other comments or observations that would help to arrive at the best possible design are quite welcome too. And BTW, has anyone else built a box like this for this rig before, or come up with another good band-switching scheme for the Scout and its modules? Once I get the project finally thought out I will begin building, and post pictures and an account of my progress on the web. Thanks.

Don't blame the ARRL. While I have little use for the organization, it was the screaming by Hams to get rid of the CW requirement that generated the restructuring.

I personally believe that the restructuring that is being used is wrong.
Novice should be the entry level for HF, Tech for above 30 meters, with Extra being the third class. Keep General if necessary, but there is no real need for it.

I also believe that the written tests should be made more rigorous again.
They are trivial to pass, right now.

Of course we all have our differing opinions. As a 13 wpm General I feel slighted that a 5 wpm tech is to be shoved into my slot without ever having to pound a key. I dislike it, but I will live with it. It is for this same reason that I hesitate taking the written test for Extra. It seems that the Extras resent those of us that test "up" to Extra....after all, they earned their ticket the hard way and they see us newbie Extras as interlopers. They feel that I should not be an Extra since my 13 wpm did not meet the criteria.
Me? Heck. I don't care one way or the other.
You won't see me jumping forth to join the ARRL...I have better things to do with my time and money.
The old codgers who claim that it is the ARRL or nothing are fighting a losing battle. In light of the fact that only a third or less Ham Ops belong to the ARRL speaks volumes.
I like my hobby. I do NOT need the ARRL in any way, shape or form. They have done nothing for me and I doubt they will any time soon.

As the poster pointed out to you Fuckwit Wiseman, NO, Marshall County property records are not on line any more..... HOWEVER, they were at one time. That info is still a public record, available to anyone, using proper procedures,,,,,,. my job is not to educate a dumb fuck like you Wiseman AND you are not worth my time AND I am not interested in any info about you. You are a worthless piece of shit, whose only life is being an unoriginal plagiarizing Usenet Fuckwit!!!! Oh yeah Fuckwit ,,,,Wiseman, 50 state searches are done very easily now, one has to only pay the fees to gain access to 50 state data bases. Even your fuckin military record is available now, IF you know the proper procedures. And you know what Fuckwit Wiseman? I could give a shit.... less if you believe this or not.
FUCK YOU! you fuckin degenerate. That filthy room you sit in where your computer is must be a hell hole, like that tuna fish sandwich another poster talked about. Most funny of all you piece of shit is how you don't even realize what a fuckin joke you are, the butt of every fuckin joke on Usenet and ham radio. but then, you crave the attention, don't you Fuckwit Wiseman????????? did your drunken father really beat you with coax cable Woger??? You mention it so often, it must be true!!!!!!!!!!
Fuckwit Wiseman, who never lets the truth stand in his way.
How colorless and lackluster was your fuckin Air Force career Wogey?
hahahahahahahahah same as your life now I bet???!!!! poor little Wogey, the Fuckwit who never dates women, mommy is THE woman in his life, and he proves it by living with her at age 50!!!!!

bwahhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh bwaahhhhhhhh poor little Wogey!!!!!!

Eduardo and loving it!

Shut the fuck up, peon bean boy. Has Indiana state contacted you yet?
And the Marshall county property records were never online, lardass. You couldn't make enough money selling those stolen computer parts at the flea market to pay for your rent in that HUD-subsidized, roach-infested apartment, much less pay for any search.
The only search you'd be interested in would be the one who fucked your whore mommy to conceive a shitstain like you, bean boy. Not that you'd not search for older, senior citizen age men to date, huh Eduardildo? Is that whyat you were doing on MSN's chat rooms the other night? Yep, it's nice to have people follow you around, Eduardildo. Eduardildo also has been posting to the AIDS support groups for his unfortunate disease he recieved from his $2 whore mommy. Poor Eduardildo, was sexually abused by his mommy's johns, then abandonded to become the ultimate latchkey kid.

BREAKING NEWS: PRESIDENT BUSH COMES TO HAM RADIO

The President of the United States has come to ham radio. Bill Burnett, KT4SB, has the details:

President George W. Bush has taken to the ham radio airwaves. This, to thank the Florida Amateur Radio community for being ready to serve the public when it is needed.

The President’s comments were made during a stopover the morning of January 31st at the Volusia County Fire Services and Training Center near Daytona. Around 9:15 AM Eastern Time, President Bush checked in to the Northern Florida Amateur Radio Emergency Service Net on 3.950 MHz using a portable station set up John Schmidt, AF4PU. Then the President made these remarks to the 40 or so stations listening to the net:

President George W. Bush:

"I want to thank all the volunteers who help make sure that Florida is prepared for any kind of emergency. I also want to assure you that your Federal government is doing everything we can to make sure that there is not an emergency--starting with unleashing the mighty U.S. military overseas to bring evil ones to justice. But should there be a need for a response, I want to thank you all for helping our communities be prepared. And finally, I want to tell you--we are lucky to be Americans and may God continue to bless this great land of ours. Thank you very much."

--

Needless to say the net members were delighted to have the President of the United States address them. More important, hams nationwide can now be sure that President Bush knows that Amateur Radio operators are ready to serve whenever he, and the nation, needs to call on them for help.

In Miami, I'm Bill Burnett, KT4SB, reporting for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

HAM RADIO SCIENCE: TWO SOLAR MAXIMUMS THIS SEASON

In case you are wondering why the current solar cycle is still providing such amazing VHF and UHF DX, one researcher may have the answer. He says that the current cycle appears to be having a second peak and that this is really not very unusual. Henry Feinberg, K2SSQ, looks at the scientist and his latest data.

The most recent and ongoing Solar Maximum -- or Solar Max -- theoretically crested in mid-2000. Sunspot counts were higher than they had been in 10 years, and solar activity was intense. One remarkable eruption on July 14, 2000 caused brilliant auroras as far south as Texas. But after that, sunspot counts slowly declined and the Sun was relatively quiet for month-long stretches. Most scientists said that the Solar Max was over. But was it?

Now, as 2002 unfolds, the National Aeronautics and Space Administrations solar foorecasters say that it looks as if the Solar Max is back with us again. The Sun is again peppered with spots, eruptions are frequent and hams notice that the VHF DX keeps rolling in.

Why is this happening? Well David Hathaway, a solar physicist at the NASA Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville Alabama has one theory. Hathaway says that the current solar cycle appears to be double-peaked, and the second peak has arrived.

Hathaway Audio Here
In-Q: We have seen other cycles...
Out-Q: ...define this maximum

Scientists track solar cycles by counting sunspots and Hathaway is an expert forecaster of sunspot numbers. He says that sunspot counts peaked in 2000 some months earlier than we expected. He says that the subsequent dip toward solar minimum seemed premature and before long, sunspot counts reversed course and began to climb toward a second maximum that now appears to be only a few percent smaller than the first.

Hathaway Audio Here
In-Q: Its a bigger than average...
Out-Q: ...smaler than 19, 21 and 22.
--

Hathaway notes that there is a widespread misconception that solar activity varies every eleven years like a pure sinusoidal wave. It isn't. He says that solar activity is chaotic and there can be more than one peak in any given period. Translated for ham radio: Enjoy the VHF DX while you can.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, Henry Feinberg, K2SSQ.

Hathaway says that the Solar Max eleven years ago was much the same as this one. The first peak arrived in mid-1989 followed by a smaller maximum in early 1991. And if you are interested in hearing more about this interesting phenomena from David Hathaway its as easy as taking your web browser over to www.rainreport.com. Or you can call on the phone to area code 847-827-7246. (NASA, RAIN)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: HF ANTENNA INSTALLED ON ISS

High Frequency ham radio operations from the International Space Station could be on the not to distant horizon. This, after a successful space walk on January 25th to install another antenna on the orbiting outpost. Amateur Radio Newsline's Roy Neal, K-6-D-U-E, has the details.

The spacewalkers have had another good day in space. On Friday the 25th of January, Cosmonaut Yuri Onufrienko, RK3DUO and Astronaut Dan Bursch, KD5PNU, successfully mounted a second ham radio antenna near a docking port amidships on the International Space Station. It is made of flexible tape and is similar to but longer than another antenna installed on January 14th. That one tunes both VHF and UHF frequencies. The new antenna will tune HF frequencies.

ARISS Board Chairman Fran Bauer, KA3HDO, says it definitely will work on ten meters and may even be made to work on 15 and 20 meters. BUT right now there is no gear on board to handle those frequencies. Experiments using the lower frequencies are on the list of futures for ARISS but no timetable has been assigned to design and build them.

Owen Garriott, W5LFL, the first man to operate ham equipment in space, once prophesied that a five watt transmitter in orbit might well be heard simultaneously world wide. The great number of hams with good stations on the lower frequencies also makes them enticing to ARISS. It's a safe bet that serious consideration now is being given to expedite such a project. Once a station is sent up, the antenna will be waiting.

The new antenna is the second of four to be installed on board the space station. No timetable has been announced for the final installation. All of these amateur antennas were built by Italy, tested and qualified in the US, to fit ports built by Russia, as befits the international nature of the ISS.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, Roy Neal, K6DUE

Installation of the 2.5-meter long flexible tape antenna involved not only the mechanical deployment but routing cables and establishing the R-F connection as well. (ARISS)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: THAT ANNOYING SATELLITE IS OFF 2 METERS

An annoying mystery satellite transmitting AFSK, frequency modulated Morse on 144.100 MHz for several days has been identified. It turned out to be a signal from the MAROC-TUBSAT satellite. This is an Earth-sensing spacecraft owned by a Moroccan government agency called he Royal Center for Remote Sensing. It was placed into a polar orbit by a Russian launcher on December 10, 2001.

As soon as he learned of the interference to amateur operations, Professor Udo Renner of the Center had the 144.100 MHz transmitter turned off. He then notified AMSAT Germany that TUBSAT was no longer on two meters.

But TUBSAT also has a downlink at 436.075 MHz. This system is only busy over North Africa and Europe and only when the control stations in Rabat and Berlin are activated. It has not been heard elsewhere in the world. (AMSAT-NA)

SPECTRUM PRESERVATION: ARRL SAYS IT WILL FIGHT TO KEEP RFID OFF 70 CM

The ARRL says that it will go all the way to protect the 70 centimeter ham band from a threat brought by commercial interests. At issue is a plan from SAVI Technology and already tentatively agreed to by the FCC to deploy unlicensed transient R-F identification tag transmitters operating between 425 and 435 MHz. These tags run at much higher field strengths and duty cycles than Part 15 rules now permit.

According to a League bulletin issued on January 29th, ARRL officials have already met with members of the FCC staff as part of the League's effort to stave off a band threat. The bulletin says that General Counsel Chris Imlay, W3KD, and ARRL Technical Relations Manager Paul Rinaldo, W4RI, delivered an ex parte presentation to FCC Office of Engineering and Technology staffers January

14th outlining the opposition of the ham radio community. (ARRL)

FCC: CHAIRMAN POWELL HOME AFTER HOSPITAL TESTS

Federal Communications Commission Chairman Michael Powell was discharged from the hospital on Friday January 25th. This, after a two-night stay in the to undergo tests because of a lingering stomach bug.

Stomach discomfort caused him to cancel appearances at the Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas on January 8th and again at the annual conference of the National Association of Television Program Executives on Wednesday January 23rd. Doctors advised precautionary tests that required overnight stays at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in suburban Washington. (Published news reports)

ENFORCEMENT: THAT SONG WAS NOT AS BAD AS WE THOUGHT

The Federal Communications Commission has dropped an indecency fine against a Colorado radio station. KKMG FM of Colorado Springs had been fined seven-thousand dollars for airing the edited version of Eminem's "The Real Slim Shady." This, after a listener wrote the regulatory agency to complain.

At the time the fine was issued federal regulators said the edited version still included some expletives and references to violence and graphic sex. But the FCC now says it has reconsidered. It now says that the lyrics in the edited version didn't violate its rules by being "patently offensive." (FCC)

RESCUE RADIO: BRAZIL RADIO OPERATORS HELP IN POWER OUTAGE CRISIS

A major electricity blackout hit at least five Brazilian states on January 21st, and it was hobby radio enthusiasts that let people know about it.

The blackout, which began at 1:30 p.m., hit hardest in the industrial southeast and the major cities of Sao Paulo, Belo Horizonte, Rio De Janeiro, Goiania, Vitoria and the capital, Brasilia.

According to news reports, Brazil’s National Energy Agency blamed the outage on transmission line failures. The same news report credited Brazilian hobby radio operators as informing authorities that subways in Rio De Janero and Sao Paulo were halted and that traffic lights were out snarling commuters in several areas.

The outage was caused by a failure at the Itaipu hydroelectric station in southwestern Brazil. A power-line failure caused thirteen of the dam's eighteen turbines to stop, cutting off nearly 20 percent of the country's energy. Power was restored about three hours later. The news story did not identify the radio operators as being hams. (Various shortwave news reports)

RESCUE RADIO: NEW INTER-JURISDICTION RADIO SYSTEMS BEING INTRODUCED

Santa Clara County California, police, fire and emergency medical personnel have never been able to communicate with one another at the scene of a major disaster. This is because each agency uses a separate radio system. That is expected to change this year.

Santa Clara County will be leading the nation in using new digital radio technology to solve the inter-agency communications problem. The new system will allow up to eighteen participating jurisdictions in any county to talk to one another instantly.

By way of example, once the system is up and running, officers involved in one of California’s famed high-speed car chase will be able to talk directly to police in the neighboring jurisdiction as the suspect approaches that town. They won't have to switch channels or go through dispatch centers. This means less time wasted and the probability that lives will be saved.

While Santa Clara county is at the head of the pack in adopting this new digital communications technology, the same news reports say that and Washington, D-C is not far behind. (Cal-State Info.)

PUBLIC RELATIONS: A CHEAP SATELLITE

A Cheap Satellite is the name of an Associated Press item that highlighted the work of the faculty and students at the United States Naval Academy in the development and launch of the P C Sat ham radio satellite. The story tells how the twenty-five pound bird was built using off the shelf products including a tape measure for its antenna and rechargeable double A cell batteries for power.

The story was written by Tom Stuckey and moved on the wire on Wednesday January 23rd. It noted that PCSat, was the 44th amateur satellite put in orbit. It is one of more than a dozen built by university students around the world. (VHF Reflector)

HAM RADIO SCHOLARSHIPS: THE DARA SCHOLARSHIPS

The Dayton Amateur Radio Association is one of three ham radio organizations seeking nominations for its scholarship program for the 2002-2003 academic year. According to DARA, applicants must be graduating high school seniors in 2002 and hold any class of an FCC issued mateur Radio license. The scholarship awards run up to $2000, as determined by the scholarship committee. Money must be used toward tuition at an institution of higher education.

To obtain an application, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Dayton Amateur Radio Association Scholarship Program, 9873 Lower Valley Pike, Medway, Ohio 45341. You can also obtain an application by e-mail to n8emo1@msn.com. Completed applications must be postmarked no latter than June 1st to be eligible for this years scholarship program. (DARA)

HAM RADIO SCHOLARSHIPS: THE FOUNDATION FOR AMATEUR RADIO

Another organization offering scholarships to hams id the Foundation For Amateur Radio. The Washington, D.C. area group will administer sixty-two scholarships for the academic year running from 2002 through 2003. Licensed Radio Amateurs may compete for these awards if they plan to pursue a full-time course of studies beyond high school and are enrolled in or have been accepted for enrollment at an accredited university, college or technical school. The awards range from $500 to $2500 with preference given in some cases to residents of specified geographical areas or the pursuit of certain study programs. Additional information and an application form may be requested by letter or QSL card to the FAR Scholarships, Post Office Box 831, Riverdale, Maryland, 20738. (Foundation For Amateur Radio)

INTERNATIONAL - SOUTH AFRICA: SA RADIO AMATEURS OF THE YEAR NAMED

Turning to international news, South Africa is honoring two of its own as that nations Radio Amateurs of the Year. Q-News Graham Kemp, VK4BB, brings us the details:

The South African Amateur Radio Development Trust have announced the winners of the 2001 Siemens Radio Amateur of the Year Award. This award is made annually to a Radio Amateur who has made a major contribution to the Amateur Service either on a technical or development basis in ZS land.

The award has been bestowed jointly on Bradley Phillips, ZS5BP, and Garth Wilson, ZR6CY. ZS5BP for his work on the introduction of Iphone and the development of the Internet Radio Linked project. ZR6CY for his continuous efforts to develop communication skills amongst the youth. He has to date presented no less than 80 camps for Voortrekkers to learn the Morse code and basic communication skills.

For Q-News Australia, I'm Graham Kemp, VK4BB, reporting for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

INTERNATIONAL - UK: KENWOOD TROPHY AWARDED TO G3XWH

Meantime, over in the U-K, Richard Horton, G3XWH, who chaired the RSGB's Future Licensing and Examination Forum has been awarded the Kenwood Trophy. This, for his significant contribution to training and development in amateur radio.

Horton recently retired from the Radio Society of Great Britain's Board where he was responsible for amateur radio development. His committee was responsible for much of the work that went into the creation of the new U-K Foundation Class license. (GB2RS)

DX

In DX, DJ4KW and DK9GG are currently active from Belize as V31YN and V31GW, respectively, through early February. Activity is on CW, RTTY and PSK 31. (RSGB)

And IN3QBR will be active from Vientiane as XW3QBR until the 31st of July. He will be joined, from the 20th of April until the 10th of May by IN3ZNR operating as XW3ZNR. (OPDX)

And R1ANF began operations as CE9 slash R1ANF on the 29th of December from a Chilean base in the South Shetland Islands. He is active on 10 to 28MHz with 100 watts to an R6000 vertical. For all three QSL as directed on the air. (RSGB)

THAT FINAL ITEM: CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF ED CLEGG W2LOY

And finally this week, if you were on the VHF bands in the 50's, 60's and 70's then the name Clegg Labs touched your ham radio operations. And as we hear in this report, the family of the man behind the gear is inviting you to help celebrate his life.

Even if you did not own any Clegg gear, the chances are that you talked to someone on the air who did. Whether it was the top of the line Interceptor receiver and Zeus transmitter or the entry level 99'er transceiver, it was easy to spot a Clegg signal by its almost overpowering modulation that seemed just right for the R-F carrier it was on.

Almost every product that carried the Clegg label was designed by the company's founder Edward T. Clegg, W2LOY. When he moved the company to Pennsylvania in the 1970's, Ed took the call W3LOY. Likewise, after retiring to Ohio he traded the 3 for an 8, but kept the famed L-O-Y suffix.

And regardless of the call area, Ed Clegg was first and foremost a communications designer well ahead of his time. Even more important, he was a positive influence on just about everyone with whom he came in contact.

Ed Clegg left us last September at age 80. Now, his wife Martie will be hosting a gathering in March near the Clegg home in Lancaster Ohio. The purpose is to celebrate the life of Edward T. Clegg. And they are asking you to help.

Martie, her daughter Linda and Linda's husband Rob MacGuffie, K2HZN, are asking anyone who knew Ed to share in the celebration. They know that most of you won't be able to be in Lancaster Ohio on March 30th. But some of you do have memories, stories, photos and other Ed Clegg memorabilia that would help to make this day even more unforgettable.

If you have something to share, please contact Linda and Rob before the end of February. Their address is 70 Province Road, Gilmanton New Hampshire with a zipcode of 03237. Rob's cyperspace address is K2HZN@yahooo.com.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Cathy Anno, KB0FDU.

By the way, a number of us here at the Amateur Radio Newsline began our ham radio careers using gear designed by Ed Clegg. In fact, our producer Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, got to know Ed while Bill was still a teenager operating A-M on the 6 meter band. (Clegg family)

I said girly porn or guy morn. I never said anything about kiddie porn. You are a very dirty old man if you look at kiddie porn. That is SICK. I guess thst would go along with you though always bringing up the war and crap. And I can't type. LOL. I don't have to say fuckwit every second word like you. I don't need to be a baby and swear every second word either. Does it make you feel cool trying to fight with everyone? Do you feel cool swearing to everyone? I think you need to go into some rehab for your problems, What a very dirty old man.

If you guys wanted to be anonymous, you are going about it all wrong.
Make sure you know what you are doing.
For one Dev, you live in Canada, near Calgary and you use the Shaw Residential Internet service.
Come on, guys. Keep it clean, keep it on track and remember that this is a Radio Shack newsgroup. You guys haven't mentioned anything about Radio Shack in all of your flames.

I own several Dells. I increased the RAM in a Dimension XPS R450 to 192 Megs by purchasing the memory chips from CompUSA.

What was that you were saying with that ignorant, slobbering mouth?

And there is a big difference between peak-to-peak voltage and peak voltage. Looking at your ignorant sig, I can see that you don't know the difference. To five significant digits, the peak voltage value of 120V r.m.s. is 169.71 volts. Period. You have to express the square root of two to more significant digits than 1.414 to get a five significant digit result. Your calculator should do that for you, when you enter:

Is that simple enough for your simple mind?

Moron.

The peak-to-peak value, I'll let you try to work out yourself, oh electronics dumbass.

How does it feel to have that EX-whore wife of yours DIVORCE you because of the MOLESTING you have done to your 2 kids? You are JUST like your CANCER RIDDEN DEAD father.....Just a MOLESTER at heart!!!!!!!

Too bad you have "SCREWED" up the childhood of those 2 kids of yours, DUMBO. Your 2 kids is where you got the first "TASTE OF ASS" from, SICKO.

Hope you had a GREAT time reading all those MAGAZINES, CD's & books 'da MIGHTY PITBULL sent you......MORE ARE ON THE WAY, hohohoho.

Now you think the BULL is kc0la!!! Remember when you thought I was kb1eve, nd8v & your REAL GOOD guess of w4jyz, hohohoho!!!!!!!! Keep on GUESSING, or better yet ask 'ole MARIE. She might say that I'm LLOYD, hohohoho.

Now post a reply REAL QUICK to your MASTER, 'da BULL...........Be sure to make it as UNORIGNAL as you can. Be sure to say something about:

1. Homosexuality
2. Drugs
3. VD
4 HIV

Also, be sure to GUESS who YOUR MASTER, 'da BULL is...........How about n4fz of af2y this time? Oh I forgot, af2y says that it is SOMEONE ELSE other than you posting under the name of kc8jbo, hohohoho!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

I've been a ham since 1968 and had my Extra since '74, so using your terminology, I took the tests "the hard way". I resent no one who enters our hobby no matter how he or she took any tests. And I do not consider a "newbie Extra" (your terminology) as an "interloper". Please don't wrongly judge many of us who have been in the hobby most of our lives and are happy to see ham radio thrive. Your note indicates that you are the one who is biased. We all share a common hobby, but sometimes I wonder.....

John,
I'm about 2-3 years behind you in Novice and Extra. When I got my Extra they were doing the multiple choice code test at a Hamfest instead of solid-copy under the watchful eye of the FCC-marm in the Atlanta office, a 5 hour drive away (or 5 days if you had to walk barefoot in the snow carrying a load of firewood). The written test had been 'watered down' to where it was easier than my Advanced. You'll probably recall that that Extra was considered 'cheapened' at the time. And there was a time when I wouldn't be caught dead with one of those newbie calls like I have now.
Yes indeed, these little arguments fade with time. I don't think ham radio is in danger of being overrun by people who aren't interested and just get a license or upgrade because they are bored that day.

Bzzzt. Although the ARRL is a lobbying force for hams, it is also a lobbying force utilized by equip mfrs who would like to have a larger market. The non-hams out there whittling toothpicks and cursing ham radio because of the code requirement are not directly represented.
I don't think most of their members as licensed hams are screaming for a reduction in standards.

Poor KD0LA. You have already embarrassed yourself and your country. And besides,
you really have nothing to prove anymore.

You're just a no-balls CHICKENSHIT, LARDASS. All you are is all mouth , which probably comes in handy when you slurp the ass of your dead mother (You seem to have "issues" with your mother, who obviously left you malnourished as a kid when her sagging tits didn't manufacture milk. So, your ALCOHOLIC FATHER (who BEAT your wimpy ass) let you wean on his urine.

Poor Pissbowl. I sent your posts to the FBI. With the new climate against terroristic threats, I'd expect them to come knocking on your door real soon. Especially the posts with the death threats, they were real interested in those.
Bye-bye pissbowl..........BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!!!!!

Typical ham. NCI didn't ruin ham radio in 5 years - you did it. You and hams like you (which I gotta say is most of 'em.) with decades of your "if it ain't ham, it ain't shit" attitude.
While you're whining like a little girl about preserving an antiquated mode, ham radio is shrinking along with available spectrum. Keep it up, ham-boy, and you'll soon be reduced to two cans and a piece of string.

1663. locator/transmitter info needed

I have been trying to build a locator/transmitter that uses either a crystal or crystal oscillator to determine frequency.

I came across what I think is a good plan on a web site a while back, but the schematic photo does not load, and I have not had any luck contacting anyone to get the link fixed.

The site is:

http://www.freeyellow.com/radio.htm

there is a description of the circuit and even a PC board drawing.

Does any one have any info on this or any similar circuit?

Thanks
Jim

1668. Roger Eats His Vegetables

Roger's mommy has been concerned that he is not eating a healthy enough diet and has been admonishing him to, "eat your vegetables, Roger." She is concerned about his pale, pasty complexion and the rash that covers his flaccid arms and shoulders.
This morning, as Roger was furiously typing his usual spate of responses to various posts his mommy looked in the door and once again told him, "eat your vegetables, Roger." Roger nodded his sweat covered in response and continued his rage via the keyboard.
This afternoon the Lavender Lads picked Roger up for an outing. Roger asked the destination and was informed that they were going to visit a fellow Lavender Lad in Wheeling. The Lad they were going to see was recently severely injured, suffered spinal and brain damage, and was confined to a wheel chair. The Lads intended to spend some time with their buddy in hopes of cheering him up despite the probability that the injured Lad was most likely incapable of recognizing his friends.
The Lads, with Roger in tow, filed into their friend's room and gathered around his wheelchair. As the one-sided conversation came to a lull, Roger told the Lads, " I know how to let him know his buddies are here!" The other Lads said, "How?". Roger said, "Watch this." Roger moved around to the front of the wheelchair, knelt down, deftly lifted the hospital gown and proceeded to felate their buddy. It was a magical moment! The seemingly comatose buddy immediately looked up, smiled widely and mumbled, "Woger....you're here!"
Later this afternoon the Lads dropped Roger off at his mother's house.
As Roger walked through the front door his mommy, who was on the couch watching television again queried, "Roger, did you eat a vegetable while you were out?" Roger looked her in the eye and said, "Yes, mom. I ate a vegetable not over an hour ago and you were right. I feel better already."

I did not like CW shoved at me, as I could care less to "pound a key" Last time
I checked this was the "new" millenuim. If you want old modes, use them.
String and two paper cups work too, I do not see AT & T using them. At least some of us will try something new and different.

Tired of so many years of having to stock grocery store shelves on the night shift, Witless Wiseman learns from a coworker about attending college as a route to a better job. Wogey signs up at the local Jr College. As a freshman, he is told to take one humanities class during his first year. Witless Halfwit Wiseman signs up for Ethics. The prof. tells students the first day of class for homework they should skim the entire textbook and write a one page paper with their impressions of the course. An Eager people-pleaser, Witless Wiseman is the only student to thrust his hand up, when the professor asks if any student was able to read as far as Chapter 19 before writing the paper. Very good Woger, says the professor, you are the only student to read as far as Chapter 19, so please explain your impression of the text to the class. However, before you do that, be aware this is an Ethics class, and I want you to discuss honesty first. Witless Wiseman, the would be rocket scientist, gets a puzzled look on his face. Whereupon the professor informs Wogey and the class that there are in fact only eighteen chapters in the textbook!

Roger, if little else, is a steadfast son that has returned to the proverbial nest. One often reads of Post Partum Depression, a common malady amongst new mothers. Roger has taken this affliction to a different level in that HE is the one suffering from Post Partum. Somewhere along the normal growing up, moving out, and being an adult continuum Roger has gone astray. It seems that Roger is still connected to his mommy via a steel umbilical cord and has no plans whatsoever of altering the status quo. It is no small wonder that Roger's short-lived marriage failed. His ex-wife couldn't compete with Mommy and the Steel Umbilical Cord.

What could Roger be planning for his future? More outings with the Lavender Lads? Saving up enough money to buy a computer of his own? Maybe a computer with a processor faster than Marie's old 386?

Whatever Roger does with his remaining years, one can rest assured that he will continue to be a loser. A putz. A milquetoast. A nonentity prowling the news groups to bolster his lackluster social life.

Having said this, it is now time for the rest of the group to slap Roger around at will. He has been bitchslapped so many times in these newsgroups that one almost feels sorry for the poor old dude.

OK, Roger. Time to post more filth. Take that Pampers diaper from your feces-spewing oral cavity and show us your intelligence. Speak, Boy. Speak. Disgorge your best.

I, Roger Dodger, momma's boy supreme am putting all of you on notice. I have connections in the FBI and I am gonnna turn all of you in. Pretty soon you will have agents knocking on your doors because I am gonna tell them that you are making terrorist threats.
Never mind that I can have my ashes hauled for false informing. I'll blame it on my mommy because, after all, who would pick on a little old lady?
I'm gonna go on a crusade. I am gonna get Arf!, Stagger Lee, Joanie, Orass, that damn Mexican and anybody else I suspect of posting comments about me.
Don't think I can do it? Just watch me! I'm in the process of getting a subpoena for all of the Usenet records and I am gonna bust you guys wide open!
After I do all this I am gonna share this information with my butt-buddy, W4AMP and you better beware of what can happen when HE gits your number!
By the way, you shitheads still have it wrong. This is MY house and I let my momma live with me. The tax records are wrong. The telephone records are wrong.

Uh, Rog. What biology class did you take? What is a "feamle"? If you meant to spell 'female' I can understand since you have had so little experience with same. Maybe you are more comfortable with the term "hemale" since that is where your prurient interests exist.
Maybe your days in the Air Force were difficult in that you dealt with the Roger. Despite your claims that records ref. your property are not available, I would strongly suggest that you look elsewhere. The records are available as evidenced by the fact that I was able to find them.

Of course you will challenge me to post proof and I expect you do to so. I will NOT post proof but will instead leave it up to you to search for the loophole that allowed me the information. Evidently others have found it, too.
Also, Roger, past phone records are easily accessed. You only recently had your phone number changed to Marie and Roger Wiseman. Your TX number used to be listed in Marie's name only but that must have been before your wife dumped you, forcing you to move back in with your mom.
And yes, past tax records show that your mom's house was appraised at $37,000. It may be more than that now, but who cares?
Post some more filth, Wogie. That is all you are capable of.

I didn't think within the FRS system, an external antenna of any type was Plagiarist. Poor Whorass, went to that Aberdeen Jr. College, but I suppose that's better than the gopher-faced Steve Turdeater Nadless Ate White Gay Male, who washed out after 1 1/2 semesters in college. Now Whorass runs his wide and overprocessed little girly voice down the band so 3.898 SPANKED him hard.

An external antenna IS NOT legal on FRS, but the model that he is selling has the radio built-in to the magnet mount part of the antenna and the controls are extended into the vehicle. Therefore, it's not considered an "external" antenna. Sort of like sticking your FRS radio out of the window for better range.

Almost as funny as when Herb lost his license for not having candor about his felony convictions, and now is under close scrutiny and most likely will not get his new grant because he hasn't rehabilitated..HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!
And he can't use his reciprocal license here because that's against FCC rules too.

think that if someone wanted to be real generous and send me something nice, my address is good in QRZ.
It's tough living alone on days like your birthday. I mean, i am depressed alot of the time. No one at the Church seems to care. So where do i have to go? Listening to Prophet Stair and Hal Turner, they comfort me. All i do is sit at the computer and read newsgroups and read Hal's webpages. I've tried going to a couple of country dance places, but none of gals would have

Thanks for your response. What's going on in Jan? I have a picture of my pickup truck, 1997 S-10. Would you like to see it? I really like it a lot.

Take care,

How are you?

I'm sorry I have not had time to write you back. I've been working a lot right now. I am currently trying to get some more computer courses. For starters, I have brown hair, brown eyes. I have a few extra pounds, but been trying get to them off. I see you are college educated. I like that in a girl. I once dated a gal once, who all she wanted to do was sit at home and watch TV. Not my kind of gal! I have a computer education, and trying to get my A+ certification. I would make a good amount of money if I could get it passed.
I'll be taking an online course.

Well, I write you later

The Great Pumpkin
Birmingham Post-Herald
October 14, 2000

Police arrested Lloyd A. Davies, a 27 year old white male, resident of Athens, Alabama in the Anderson Pumpkin patch at 11:38pm Friday. Davies will be charged with lewd and lascivious behavior, public indecency, and public intoxication at the Athens Municipal Courthouse Monday. The suspect allegedly stated that as he was passing a pumpkin patch, he decided to stop. "You know, a pumpkin is soft and squishy inside, and there was no one around here for miles. At least I thought there wasn't." he stated in a phone interview from the Athens Municipal Courthouse Jail.
Davies went on to state that he pulled over to the side of the road, picked out a pumpkin that he felt was appropriate to his purposes, cut a hole in it, and proceeded to satisfy his alleged "need". "I guess I was just really into it, you know?" he commented with evident embarrassment. In the process, Torrance apparently failed to notice the Athens Municipal police car approaching and was unaware of his audience until officer Brenda Taylor approached him. "It was an unusual situation, sure." said officer Taylor. "I walked up to (Davies) and he's... just working away at this pumpkin."
Taylor went on to describe what happened when she approached Davies. "I just went up and said, 'Excuse me sir, but do you realize that you are screwing a pumpkin?' He got real surprised as you'd expect, and then looked me straight in the face and said,
'A pumpkin? Damn... is it midnight already?"

Poor Faggot Lee, as always, he doesn't know what the FUCK he is talking

Here's some of Faggot Lee's history:

From: Rev Turd Fredericks <turdfred@catholic.org>
Message-ID: <PM000391D524FF3746@dhcppc1.home.com>

"Stagger Lee is anti-free speech because he originally came in here demanding that Steve Geilda, a regular in this group, cancel Roger Wiseman's account on his server because he didn't like what Roger was saying. That is anti-free speech."

"Since free speech is one of the foundations of the American constitution and America it's self, if you are ant-free speech, you are by defintion anti-American."

After the CIA leaked Mara's boobie pics to an international spy ring,
Turd Fredericks wrote this note denying any responsibility:

"The guy (Stagger Lee) is a total idiot. To give you a little background, he criticizes cotse for not cancelling accounts of people he doesn't agree with, I shot back with something calling him an idiot for not being able to learn how to use a kill file, and he starts calling me stupid and that I am supporting thugs and terrorists (or something like that). Eventually, I managed to get rid of him, but now, for whatever reason, he has come back and is forging posts in my name. I would killfile him, but it's more fun to watch him dance :-)"

"First off, you don't know what a real hacker is which is pretty much evident from you mentioning Kevin Mitnick, he got caught being a criminal, not a hacker. Kevin Mitnick was in prison for several years, and until recently, as a condition of his parole, he was prohibited from using a computer, or even talking about them, so it's pretty much a given that he is not posting here. If he was, he sure as hell wouldn't be calling himself Kevin Mitnick. Emmanuel Goldstein has enough troubles, and has an all consuming lawsuit to deal with, I doubt he has the time or energy to post here, or anywhere for that matter. I don't know who the hell Susan Thunder is, but it doesn't really matter, because there are enough knowledgeable people that post here to more than make up for some mythical "superhacker". If you don't like the FAQ, write a new one, I'll be waiting to see if you can do better.

The porn postings are beyond the control of this group, and are being dealt with at the ISP level. You should know as well as I that you can not control what is posted to a newgroup, although I know you would like to control it. This in it's self makes you an idiot.
What further makes you an idiot, is that you have now insulted just about everybody in this group (alt.2600) with your statements. I hope you have a good firewall."

46 posts in there from cotse since 2/1/01 and you wonder why you are ignored, you exaggerate and lie. I would not consider that excessive posting to any group.

Cotse does not care about flamewars, unless they violate our policies. You are involved in a flamewar and you want to win it by terminating your opponents account. Sorry, we do not take sides in flamewars. Radio operators are always feuding, both on and off the air.

You claim all this libel. Well, if that is true then you need to subpoena our logs and sue the person for libel. We will turn over logs upon subpoena after giving our user 14 days to quash if they desire. That is under the law. Then you can properly address all this claimed libel.

The only one who can judge libel is a judge in a court of law who has fully heard both sides. We are not a judge. If you sue and win, meaning it is shown by a court of law to be libel then we will terminate the account for libel. We cannot play judge and investigate every shout of libel. Libel is for a court to decide, not an ISP.

Also, you have it correct in your later post. If you do not wish to read this posters posts then add @cotse.com to your kill file and you won't see any more. Stop it by killfiling , ignoring, and not playing the flame game. But, I don't believe that you want to stop the flamewar. This is evidenced by the crossposts to the nose and all kinds of other groups to fan the flames by you numerous times (not just this post).

We will only terminate if they violate our policies on:

http://www.cotse.com/abusepolicies.html

We will not terminate so you can win your flamewar."

Poor Faggot Lee, as always, he doesn't know what the FUCK he is talking about.
Here's some of Faggot Lee's history:

From: Rev Turd Fredericks <turdfred@catholic.org>
Message-ID: <PM000391D524FF3746@dhcppc1.home.com>

"Stagger Lee is anti-free speech because he originally came in here
demanding that Steve Geilda, a regular in this group, cancel Roger Wiseman's account on his server because he didn't like what Roger was saying. That is anti-free speech."

"Since free speech is one of the foundations of the American constitution and America it's self, if you are ant-free speech, you are by defintion anti-American."

After the CIA leaked Mara's boobie pics to an international spy ring,
Turd Fredericks wrote this note denying any responsibility:

"The guy (Stagger Lee) is a total idiot. To give you a little background, he criticizes cotse for not cancelling accounts of people he doesn't agree with, I shot back with something calling him an idiot for not being able to learn how to use a kill file, and he starts calling me stupid and that I am supporting thugs and terrorists (or something like that). Eventually, I managed to get rid of him, but now, for whatever reason, he has come back and is forging posts in my name. I would killfile him, but it's more fun to watch him dance :-)"

"Turd Fredericks" <TurdFred@cotse.com> spanked Faggot Lee in message news:3b21a9f5.1576859@news.irvn1.occa.home.com...
"First off, you don't know what a real hacker is which is pretty much evident from you mentioning Kevin Mitnick, he got caught being a criminal, not a hacker. Kevin Mitnick was in prison for several years, and until recently, as a condition of his parole, he was prohibited from using a computer, or even talking about them, so it's pretty much a given that he is not posting here. If he was, he sure as hell wouldn't be calling himself Kevin Mitnick. Emmanuel Goldstein has enough troubles, and has an all consuming lawsuit to deal with, I doubt he has the time or energy to post here, or anywhere for that matter. I don't know who the hell Susan Thunder is, but it doesn't really matter, because there are enough knowledgeable people that post here to more than make up for some mythical "superhacker". If you don't like the FAQ, write a new one, I'll be waiting to see if you can do better.
The porn postings are beyond the control of this group, and are being dealt with at the ISP level. You should know as well as I that you can not control what is posted to a newgroup, although I know you would like to control it. This in it's self makes you an idiot.
What further makes you an idiot, is that you have now insulted just about everybody in this group (alt.2600) with your statements. I hope you have a good firewall."

46 posts in there from cotse since 2/1/01 and you wonder why you are ignored, you exaggerate and lie. I would not consider that excessive posting to any group.

Cotse does not care about flamewars, unless they violate our policies.
You are involved in a flamewar and you want to win it by terminating your opponents account. Sorry, we do not take sides in flamewars.
Radio operators are always feuding, both on and off the air.

You claim all this libel. Well, if that is true then you need to subpoena our logs and sue the person for libel. We will turn over logs upon subpoena after giving our user 14 days to quash if they desire. That is under the law. Then you can properly address all this claimed libel.

The only one who can judge libel is a judge in a court of law who has fully heard both sides. We are not a judge. If you sue and win, meaning it is shown by a court of law to be libel then we will terminate the account for libel. We cannot play judge and investigate every shout of libel. Libel is for a court to decide, not an ISP.

Also, you have it correct in your later post. If you do not wish to read this posters posts then add @cotse.com to your kill file and you won't see any more. Stop it by killfiling , ignoring, and not playing the flame game. But, I don't believe that you want to stop the flamewar. This is evidenced by the crossposts to the nose and all kinds of other groups to fan the flames by you numerous times (not just this post).

We will only terminate if they violate our policies on:

http://www.cotse.com/abusepolicies.html

We will not terminate so you can win your flamewar."

You could be right. There was a strange post on alt.snuh about Roger "spanking his monkey", but I skipped right over it thinking that it was made up.

You don't suppose that the monkey was holding back money from Roger, do you?

Poor Faggot Lee, as always, he doesn't know what the FUCK he is talking

Here's some of Faggot Lee's history:

From: Rev Turd Fredericks <turdfred@catholic.org>
Message-ID: <PM000391D524FF3746@dhcppc1.home.com>

"Stagger Lee is anti-free speech because he originally came in here
demanding that Steve Geilda, a regular in this group, cancel Roger Wiseman's account on his server because he didn't like what Roger was saying. That is anti-free speech."

"Since free speech is one of the foundations of the American constitution and America it's self, if you are ant-free speech, you are by defintion anti-American."

After the CIA leaked Mara's boobie pics to an international spy ring,
Turd Fredericks wrote this note denying any responsibility:

"The guy (Stagger Lee) is a total idiot. To give you a little background, he criticizes cotse for not cancelling accounts of people he doesn't agree with, I shot back with something calling him an idiot for not being able to learn how to use a kill file, and he starts calling me stupid and that I am supporting thugs and terrorists (or something like that). Eventually, I managed to get rid of him, but now, for whatever reason, he has come back and is forging posts in my name. I would killfile him, but it's more fun to watch him dance :-)"

"Turd Fredericks" <TurdFred@cotse.com> spanked Faggot Lee in message
news:3b21a9f5.1576859@news.irvn1.occa.home.com...
"First off, you don't know what a real hacker is which is pretty much evident from you mentioning Kevin Mitnick, he got caught being a criminal, not a hacker. Kevin Mitnick was in prison for several years, and until recently, as a condition of his parole, he was prohibited from using a computer, or even talking about them, so it's pretty much a given that he is not posting here. If he was, he sure as hell wouldn't be calling himself Kevin Mitnick. Emmanuel Goldstein has enough troubles, and has an all consuming lawsuit to deal with, I doubt he has the time or energy to post here, or anywhere for that matter. I don't know who the hell Susan Thunder is, but it doesn't really matter, because there are enough knowledgeable people that post here to more than make up for some mythical "superhacker". If you don't like the FAQ, write a new one, I'll be waiting to see if you can do better.
The porn postings are beyond the control of this group, and are being dealt with at the ISP level. You should know as well as I that you can not control what is posted to a newgroup, although I know you would like to control it. This in it's self makes you an idiot.
What further makes you an idiot, is that you have now insulted just about everybody in this group (alt.2600) with your statements. I hope you have a good firewall."

From: Stephen K. Gielda <steve@cotseNOSPAM.com>
<MPG.14f8c0c6d9215288989a3b@news.supernews.com>

46 posts in there from cotse since 2/1/01 and you wonder why you are ignored, you exaggerate and lie. I would not consider that excessive posting to any group.

Cotse does not care about flamewars, unless they violate our policies. You are involved in a flamewar and you want to win it by terminating your opponents account. Sorry, we do not take sides in flamewars. Radio operators are always feuding, both on and off the air.

You claim all this libel. Well, if that is true then you need to subpoena our logs and sue the person for libel. We will turn over logs upon subpoena after giving our user 14 days to quash if they desire. That is under the law. Then you can properly address all this claimed libel.

The only one who can judge libel is a judge in a court of law who has fully heard both sides. We are not a judge. If you sue and win, meaning it is shown by a court of law to be libel then we will terminate the account for libel. We cannot play judge and investigate every shout of libel. Libel is for a court to decide, not an ISP.

Also, you have it correct in your later post. If you do not wish to read this posters posts then add @cotse.com to your kill file and you won't see any more. Stop it by killfiling , ignoring, and not playing the flame game. But, I don't believe that you want to stop the flamewar. This is evidenced by the crossposts to the nose and all kinds of other groups to fan the flames by you numerous times (not just this post).

We will only terminate if they violate our policies on:

http://www.cotse.com/abusepolicies.html

We will not terminate so you can win your flamewar."

"Stagger Lee is anti-free speech because he originally came in here
demanding that Steve Geilda, a regular in this group, cancel Roger Wiseman's account on his server because he didn't like what Roger was saying. That is anti-free speech."

"Since free speech is one of the foundations of the American constitution and America it's self, if you are ant-free speech, you are by defintion anti-American."

Jeeze, I suppose I otta resent people who didn't have to get smallpox vaccinations or worry about polio, or take their driving exam in a "stick shift" car, or ... etc. CW was a necessary evil left over from the days before modulation was invented. Next you'll be sniviling about

No, it's a hobby, and CW is no longer needed to enjoy it. We are allowed to do things that could QRM others -things others are not allowed to do
- so it is reasonable for governments to require us to have know how to avoid that. It was reasonable for governments to require CW when that was the only way to communicate; but that day is long past.

There is nothing wrong with enjoying CW for it's own sake but it is a serious character flaw to feel that everybody should suffer every discomfort that we did.

Err, Walt, sorry to disillusion you, but that's only a quarterwave at 432. A halfwave at 432 would be worth to see!

So does everyone who disagrees with you have a "serious character flaw" ??
You need to take a look in the mirror on this one friend.

Roger's mommy has been concerned that he is not eating a healthy enough diet and has been admonishing him to, "eat your vegetables, Roger." She is concerned about his pale, pasty complexion and the rash that covers his flaccid arms and shoulders.
This morning, as Roger was furiously typing his usual spate of responses to various posts his mommy looked in the door and once again told him, "eat your vegetables, Roger." Roger nodded his sweat covered in response and continued his rage via the keyboard.
This afternoon the Lavender Lads picked Roger up for an outing. Roger asked the destination and was informed that they were going to visit a fellow Lavender Lad in Wheeling. The Lad they were going to see was recently severely injured, suffered spinal and brain damage, and was confined to a wheel chair. The Lads intended to spend some time with their buddy in hopes of cheering him up despite the probability that the injured Lad was most likely incapable of recognizing his friends.
The Lads, with Roger in tow, filed into their friend's room and gathered around his wheelchair. As the one-sided conversation came to a lull, Roger told the Lads, " I know how to let him know his buddies are here!" The other Lads said, "How?". Roger said, "Watch this." Roger moved around to the front of the wheelchair, knelt down, deftly lifted the hospital gown and proceeded to felate their buddy. It was a magical moment! The seemingly comatose buddy immediately looked up, smiled widely and mumbled, "Woger....you're here!"

Later this afternoon the Lads dropped Roger off at his mother's house. As Roger walked through the front door his mommy, who was on the couch watching television again queried, "Roger, did you eat a vegetable while you were out?" Roger looked her in the eye and said, "Yes, mom. I ate a vegetable not over an hour ago and you were right. I feel better already."

"Suffer", "discomfort"... I remember when I took a course in ham-radio as well as the lessons in Morse code, even though it's been 24 years now; my experience has been an enjoyable one, so I am sorry, but I can't relate to your pain and suffering. By the same token, shouldn't we eliminate any testing because it causes discomfort to some people? After all, electronics theory is a necessary evil from the time factory made rigs and antennas were not being made.

Once a week the Lavender Lads of Glendale WV get together and go out to eat at a nice restaurant that caters to their kind.
Each week a different Lad takes responsibility to find an eatery for that week's outing. Last week it was Roger's turn to locate a restaurant. Roger wanted to impress all the Glendale lads, as Wogey is planning on a run for President of the Lavender Lads next month when annual elections are held. Indeed, Roger proceeded to locate a great restaurant with an outstanding "House Specialty." The Lads all assembled at the restaurant, and Roger had the cute male waiters hand out all the menus with instructions for the Lads to not open the menus up until all the Lads did it at the same time. Roger stood up when all the Lads had their menus, then Roger gave the command, OPEN Your Menus Lads! All the Lads cheered Roger very loudly when they saw the House Specialty printed boldly in the center of their menus. The House Specialty boldly read:
PETER-WHIPPED MASH POTATOES

And Steve the gopher faced TURDEATER and Dicksucking Dave Heil is there, both wearing their ben-wah balls and pink tutus. Dicksucking Dave would be a regular, but he had to bail his whore wife out of the regoinal jail again.
Turdeater, never married, well, that's a sure sign he's gay, especially since chickenshit Thevie is over 50 now.
Oh, well, he can always go to Richland, OH and cornhole his mother, just like when he was living at home before he got kicked out.

Aww, a fag lame.......but that's the "extent of gopher faced pervert Steve Turdeater's repartee. Since ol' Turdeater is over 50 and never married, much less had "normal sexual relations," (sex with his mother and the dog, his current sex partner doesn't count) one must conclude that Steve Turdeater is a nutsack goo slurper, just like Lllardasssssss lllllllllllloyd the faggot 30 year old virgin.

Aloha, anyone got any suggestions for soldering weathered stranded wire? I'm trying to revive my G5RV which blew down during the last storm here. I've tried wire brushing it, sanding it, using flux...none of these work. Is there some homebrew secret for cleaning corrosion from copper wire, making it like new so it can be soldered? Some acid wash or something? Mahalo, I appreciate the help.

Years ago I had a paste that you would dip the wire into and then remove it with an industrial wipe.. From the way I remember it stinging if you got some on your hand it was acid based. I'm not sure how good an idea it would be to use it on stranded wire but it worked great for removing varnish off solid wire when I worked doing electronic assembly and had to wire transformer leads to a circuit board.

I suspect some would cringe at this but I'd probably try a bit of diluted pool acid (HCl - muriatic acid) and then wash it well with water and dry it. I think rubber gloves and eye protection would be a VERY GOOD idea if doing this.

Wire brushing to shiny copper should be sufficient - as should sanding.
The problem may be the solders they sell these days, that contain little or no lead.

You might try talking to a plumber, and see what they use - although their fluxes may be acid, which you really wouldn't want on an electrical circuit.

I have several pounds of 60:40 tin/lead solder. I have never had any problem soldering copper with it, even copper that has an oxide coating.

Plumbers flux is acidic, some more than others (IIRC eutectic is the nastiest one) but all are neutralised by water.
I too have experienced problems with corroded copper aerial wire and I tried plumbers flux, as I were one and had some old stock of the stuff. It did'nt work no how, even when shiney clean. For some reason the wire just wont tin, and yes I was using 60/40 I also tried plumbers 'wiping' solder which is a slightly different melting point.
I've given up on trying and just waiting for the next rally to buy replacement HD Copper.

I have used a mixture of vinegar and salt, soak the wire end in the mixture and the corrosion will be dissolved!! wash off the mixture with water and solder it!! Easy!!

I am looking for some help in getting started with PSK31 please.

I have a Yaesu FT77 with 4 pin mic connector (Grd, PTT and Audio)
I have a laptop computer (with audio out and microphone in) both 3.5mm sockets.
The laptop does not have a LINE-IN or LINE-OUT, but the audio out and microphone in sockets such suffice ?

I have DIGIPAN 1.6 software.

I have ï¿½built' the simple interface as shown in the Digipan help file as follows:

FT77 headphone to Laptop Microphone In.
FT77 Mic Audio and Ground to Laptop Audio Out using a 100:1 attenuator (2 x resistors).
FT77 Mic PTT and Ground to Laptop COM port (using a simple switching circuit of 2N2222 / diode etc).

So far:

1. On receive - no problems.
2. On Tx ï¿½ï¿½.. there doesn't seem to be enough voltage from the Audio out of the laptop. Measurement of audio (with all computer soundcard mixer controls on FULL) is only 1 or 2 mV max. (According to Digipan help file this should be 1V when not attenuated and approx 10mv when attenuated ?)
3. So ï¿½ laptop does not seem to be getting sufficient audio to the FT77 microphone to modulate the PSK31 signal (whether through the attenuator or otherwise !).
4. That seems odd because the audio through the laptop audio out socket seems very loud when connected to a pair of headphone !
5. I have tried adjusting the FT77 MIC GAIN.
6. Or perhaps I am on the ï¿½wrong track' ?!

Does anyone have any ideas ? I don't really want to start building an interface with OPTO Isolators and transformers unless sit is absolutely necessary.

Please either answer here or Email to: Hugh_Beverley@hotmail.com

Thank you !

President Bush Addresses Florida ARES Net

NEWINGTON, CT, Jan 31, 2002--President George W. Bush spoke today via Amateur Radio to members of the Northern Florida Amateur Radio Emergency Service Net (NFAN). The president was in Florida to spotlight five volunteer groups--among them the Volusia County Amateur Radio Emergency Service (ARES)--for their value to the new Office of Homeland Security.

"I want to thank all the volunteers who help make sure that Florida is prepared for any kind of emergency," the president said in part, after checking in around 9:15 AM to a regular ARES net session. "I want to thank you all for helping your communities be prepared." (The text of President's Bush's remarks is available below.)

Northern Florida ARRL Section Manager Rudy Hubbard, WA4PUP, said Bush spoke from a portable station set up at a Daytona Beach fire station. Hubbard said that when Bush's visit was announced, Volusia County's emergency manager got in touch with the county's ARES Emergency Coordinator Joette Barnett, KG4HPN. She, in turn, contacted John Schmidt, AF4PU, and Clifford Fraser, KE4HIY. They arranged to have the station ready as a demonstration of Amateur Radio's role in emergency preparedness and in the hope that Bush would be willing to take a few minutes to address the 75-meter net. NFAN meets daily at 9 AM. Hearing the president check into the net was a pleasant surprise, Hubbard said.

ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP, said he was "extremely gratified" that President Bush recognized the valuable service Amateur Radio operators provide in times of emergencies. "Volunteerism goes straight to the core of all radio amateurs who provide their communication skills, time and equipment in times of communication disruptions," Haynie said. "I know that all hams in the United States stand ready to do their part in America's Homeland Security Program." Haynie, who was re-elected this month, has said that defining Amateur Radio's role in homeland security would top his list of initiatives for his second term.

Hubbard said a copy of proposed expanded Amateur Radio (PRB-1) antenna legislation was given to the President and to the president's brother, Florida Gov Jeb Bush, for possible introduction in next year's Florida legislative session. "We Amateur Radio operators will volunteer however we're needed, and maybe it will be seen that we can greatly help the nation if we have the antennas we need," Hubbard commented.

The proposed bill would seek to have the Florida Legislature extend recognition of "the importance of Amateur Radio and the need to accommodate amateur radio emergency communications through erection of outdoor antennas of reasonable size and height" to private deed covenants, conditions and restrictions as well as to municipalities, now covered under Florida's existing PRB-1 law. As drafted, the measure would require local ordinances and land regulations as well as private deed restrictions, or covenants involving the placement, screening or height of antenna structures to "reasonably accommodate amateur radio communication" and "impose the minimum regulation and restrictions necessary to accomplish clearly defined objectives of the local government, association or property owner."

The Daytona Beach event marked a rare appearance on ham radio by a sitting president. Former President Gerald Ford spoke via a ham radio satellite hookup in 1986. In addition to Volusia County ARES, Bush also spotlighted Citizens on Patrol, a retiree group that patrols communities for the sheriff's office; Citizen Emergency Response Team, which helps coordinate neighborhood disaster response; the Council on Aging; and the Volusia County Fire-Police Volunteers. Bush's stop in Florida was part of a swing through the southeastern US, which included stops in North Carolina and Georgia.

Sanding or wire brushing down to bare copper should be enough. One thing to avoid is acid-based flux on stranded wire. The acid will wick between the strands and will be near impossible to remove completely.

Picture what will happen with acid trapped between the strands over a period of time. :-(

I never said that. I said that people who think everybody should be forced to endure every hardship and disease they suffered have a serious character flaw.

I have a bad back. Hurts all the time! Does that mean everybody should have a bad back? Should I denigrate everybody who doesn't share my burden? Should the government break yours so it'd be like mine? I think not.

Kids my generation had to fear Polio because there was no vaccine yet. Does that make it unfair to give kids the vaccine now? Again I think not. Same goes for CW. There was a time when CW was the only practical way to communicate via radio. There was also a time when flint & steel was the only practical way to start a fire. People in those times had to master those skills. Should the law make us do the same out of "fairness" to them? I don't think so.

We might argue over whether everybody ought to learn code because it's so much fun without either of us having a character flaw. You could argue that Morse is needed for emergencies and merely be wrong (tap-code is more common), but not a jerk. OTOH the arguement that everybody should be forced to learn Morse because you or I had to learn Morse is selfishness at its worst.

I'm glad for you. I would like to be better at Morse than I am but it has always been very difficult for me (see the article on that subject on www.arrl.org) and "profound" hearing loss has made it worse.

> By the same token, shouldn't we eliminate any testing because it

Not as long as we are still licensed to do things that other citizens are not, based on the idea that we're "experts". CBrs cannot legally use high-powered amps and business licensees must hire licensed techs to do the things we can do at will. We can legally modify our factory-made radios to operate out of spec on the assumption that we are learned enough to do so safely. CBrs (for example) cannot.

It makes sense to require a Morse test to operate Morse on bands set aside for that purpose, but a Morse test to operate SSB? Oy!

Doc, If you believe Wiseman is as pure as the wind-driven snow, you are not the man I once thought you might have been. Have you been reading Wiseman's postings? What is your opinion of the filth that he posts in regard to Oris Grim's (N4CND) daughters? These are filthy perverted sexual acts that these children commit with their father?

Doc, even convicts have a code of honor. Children are never attacked!
Frankly, Doc, I think you've lost your marbles, temporarily or whatever.
Do you condone Wiseman repeatedly describing oral sex and other sexual acts that Grim's children, according to Wiseman's lies, engage in?
Step up and speak Doc! You started this! No Herbie Schoenbohm nothing but have accolades for Wiseman???????

In fact Doc, if Wiseman responds at all to this post, and he probably will, it will not be a coherent rational response. It will be flood of filth and childish nonsense, so typical of this obviously sick man. And if he does attempt a rational response, how can he justify under any circumstances attacking innocent children? One can only imagine the childhood that Wiseman must have had!

You know, a lot of these radio programs, LIKE ART BELL, are available on the INTERNET to listen to, just like the way the BBC is available to ME and I watch BBC News every day.

Since you seem to be saying this newsgroup should only have messages relevant to worldwide scanning, should there be no discussion of, say, frequncies in California or Melbourne?

jim: your problem may not be corrosion, but lack of heat instead.

that wire may be acting like a big heat sink, and if your heat source is not large enough, the heat is traveling up the wire, and the end will never got hot enough to melt the solder and let it attach to the wire.

Need the ON/OFF switch KNOB (switch cover?), for the older REGENCY Z-10 desktop base scanner. The control knobs for the Z-30 and Z-45 will work. This is the small square "cap" that fits over the sliding ON/OFF switch and allows the user to turn on & off the radio. It is about 1/2 in. square and made of black plastic.
Please Email me if you have such a critter, and I'd also be willing to buy all 3 control caps if you have a set off your D.O.A. or junked Regency "Z-series" scanner.
Many Thanks for your help !

Uh, eutectic is not a flux. Eutectic is the particular percentage of an alloy (tin/lead solder in this case) which has the lowest melting point and which (at least in the case of 63/37 Pb/Sn solder), when cooling, transforms from liquid directly to solid without an intervening crystalline state.

Dipping in Muriatic acid works well. Just swish it around in clean water afterwards to remove the acid left behind in the strands.
Muriatic/hydrocloric acid leaves no residue, even the HCL will evaporate in a few minutes, but for the sake of your tools, etc., it is best to remove it well before proceeding.

It is quite possible that the comment about insufficient heat is also important here. It can be surprising how well a large wire can conduct heat away.

no i did not block you. Your name does not show up. I've been tired and not feeling well the last few days. Hello and I'm glad you had a good time.
As far Christmas goes, I'm afraid I am not going to be able to come down. I have other plans.

Thanks for your picture. you look very pretty and professional. I have had a long day of work today. I have to work tomorrow and then get packed up to head to iowa. I'll be there for about a week over Thanksgiving. Means I'll be here by myself for Christmas. I'm tired tonite. I've had alot on my mind. More than usaual.

Take care and have a good weekend,

Did you have a good weekend? Had to work all weekend. I'm getting ready to visit my Mom next week in Iowa. I'll be gone all next week for Thanksgiving.
You got Thanksgiving plans? You'll probably goto warm Florida! Iowa gets
very cold this time of year.

I'm gonna get my picture taken this week to send to you. I have a digital camera. I'll send it as soon as I get it taken.

Are you still in School? I did'nt know If you were or not.

Love,

I dont have one done of me yet, But i will get one for you this next week.
Are you trying to keep me in suspense? Are you that pretty that my computer would break?

I'm not real shy, I just like to keep one thing at a time. My SN is my Ham Radio call sign.

I hope you are feeling better and that you were thinking of me this week. I did not vote, I did not get register in time. I would have voted for Bush.

I'm sorry I have not had time to write you back. I've been working a lot right now. I am currently trying to get some more computer courses. For starters, I have brown hair, brown eyes. I have a few extra pounds, but been trying get to them off. I see you are college educated. I like that in a girl. I once dated a gal once, who all she wanted to do was sit at home and watch TV.
Not
my kind of gal! I have a computer education, and trying to get my A+ certification. I would make a good amount of money if I could get it passed.
I'll be taking an online course.

Well, I write you later

BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHHAHA!!!!! Thanks for outing yourself Llllardasssssssssssss Lllllloyd Davies. Did you sell a lot of stolen computer parts to the lowlife in your crack-house neighborhood yesterday? Or was it your turn to deliver pizzas, pizza boy?
I don't know how ANY gets deliverd, since you're such a FAT FUCK you probably eat a lot of the pizzas before you deliver them. No wonder you get such poor job performance reviews, LARDASS.

The Great Pumpkin
Birmingham Post-Herald
October 14, 2000

Police arrested Lloyd A. Davies, a 27 year old white male, resident of Athens, Alabama in the Anderson Pumpkin patch at 11:38pm Friday. Davies will be charged with lewd and lascivious behavior, public indecency, and public intoxication at the Athens Municipal Courthouse Monday. The suspect allegedly stated that as he was passing a pumpkin patch, he decided to stop. "You know, a pumpkin is soft and squishy inside, and there was no one around here for miles. At least I thought there wasn't." he stated in a phone interview from the Athens Municipal Courthouse Jail.
Davies went on to state that he pulled over to the side of the road, picked out a pumpkin that he felt was appropriate to his purposes, cut a hole in it, and proceeded to satisfy his alleged "need". "I guess I was just really into it, you know?" he commented with evident embarrassment. In the process, Torrance apparently failed to notice the Athens Municipal police car approaching and was unaware of his audience until officer Brenda Taylor approached him. "It was an unusual situation, sure." said officer Taylor. "I walked up to (Davies) and he's... just working away at this pumpkin."
Taylor went on to describe what happened when she approached Davies. "I just went up and said, 'Excuse me sir, but do you realize that you are screwing a pumpkin?' He got real surprised as you'd expect, and then looked me straight in the face and said,
'A pumpkin? Damn... is it midnight already?"

I currently have an IC-718. I've been happy with it, but am looking to upgrade. I had fixed on the IC-746PRO, but am now considering the Kenwood TS-2000. I use all modes, PSK31, RTTY, SSB, CW and PACTOR. If you have any advice or comments on the differentiators between these rigs, please share them.
Thanks es 73,

If he comes back I'm sure Intercon will rejoice. He ain't coming back, boy! He done blewed it by not showing candor to the FCC Adm. Law Judge. He lacks the requisite characteristics to hold a ticket. Then he allowed a green guest to run his station and when the kid was away for a whiz or a smoke, Herbie went on the air. That's a no no. Now according to what I hear, he's allied with Glenn Baxter who is a pariah of a friend to any ham. Goodbye Herbie even if he promises to be sweet and loving. He's "had" it.

There is no way he's coming back, not even if Eduardido Hernandez volunteers to give head to the Administrative Law Judge, like he did to Mexico's Hello,

I recently purchased a used IC-718. It does not have the DSP module and the existing NB does little to even begin to reduce the noise. Is the purchase of the DSP add-on worth it? Also, is there any way to re-adjust the existing NB so it will function better?

Thanks, AB

You're exactly right, but there is also a company named Eutectic which Consider Roger's history of posts throughout Usenet. Consider also that this is person is an alleged male who is now approaching fifty years of age. Look at what he posts. Is this not the mark of a severely disturbed and immature individual? Roger has little to nothing to do in real life. He mistakenly equates "real life" as being what is said in the news groups. This alone is an indicator of the kind of person he is and it speaks volumes.

Yessir, boys and girls, Roger leads a lackluster life.

Forget about using a torch. It will burn off your flux leaving a mess. Use an large iron. Scrape or use fine 300-400 grit to clean to bright copper. You may have trouble with some steel if you go too deep into Copperweld though.

> Thanks, AB

I'm not sure if you can adjust the threshold or not. Maybe.. But I would think it's already correct. I wouldn't mess with it. Some noises, a blanker won't take out no matter how good they are. For a NB to really work, there needs to be gaps between the noise pulses. I bet if you try your NB on slow spark noise, etc, it will work pretty well. But if the noise is so constant that there is little as far as gaps between the pulses, then many times a NB won't really do too much. My TS-830 has one of the best variable NB's I've used, but even it doesn't work sometimes. On blankable noise, my 706 compares fairly well to the NB on the 830, but it's not adjustable. The adjustable blanker will let you use the least blanking needed in order to minimize the reduction of the dynamic range. But if it's not blankable, it will seem useless. As far as the DSP, I'm kind of mixed. As far as reducing noise, I think it's fairly useless overall. Sure, it will reduce the noise level, but it also reduces part of the signal you want to hear. So the audio sounds flat and muddy usually. About the only time I've found it actually useful was when working some real weak CW on 160m. In some cases, it did seem to help the s/n ratio slightly on weak low band cw, but not drastic at all. BTW, I have a 706g, but I bet it uses the same DSP as the 718. Probably about the same NB also. As far as most impulse noise, I find the NB more useful than the DSP. But my noise has enough gap between pulses usually to work ok. The downside to a NB, which the DSP is better at, is the dynamic range. A NB knocks the dynamic range down a good bit. If you have anyone close to you , you'll hear crud off them. BTW, as a general comment, if you ever hear a signal on the air, and he/she sounds to be splattering, check your NB and turn it off before jumping on them to tell them about their "problem". I've done this myself by accident once or twice...:(BTW, if you have a sound card setup, etc, you can download a DSP demo from the silicon pixels website. It has noise reduction, auto notch and drag drop filtering. In other words, it eats the icom DSP for lunch overall..You could try it to see if you think the icom DSP is worth it. The noise reduction works about the same on either one, except the outboard one has three levels to choose from. On the 706g, it's variable with a knob. I almost always keep it pretty low. 2-3 usually...The performance of the auto-notch is also about identical on either one. Actually the auto-notch is probably the only part of the DSP that really lives up to all the hype. They do work well compared to an old manual tune version. MK sticking to the false notion that posts from Roger are forgeries. At a minimum, Doc should have condemned the content, if not the poster. Doc has now assumed the role of an enabler for Roger.

doc must be slipping in his later years, a shame. Doc published a

Hey Jerky,

Listening to the Prez the last few days, has begun to make me both ashamed of the party I am registered under, and becoming very, very scared. I have been hearing Bush's rhetoric of the Evil Ones, and watching Powell chase behind him trying to clean up the mess. I mean, what the fuck is this? Bush acts like he wants to close diplomatic doors, and as much as declare war on three countries, while Powell is sticking his foot in the door, and trying to placate these countries, saying Bush didn't really mean it. At least this is how it appears to this individual.

Just less than a year ago, this country was giving hundreds of millions of dollars to at least two of these countries, and now he wants to go to war with them. Where does this administration actually stand towards North Korea and Iran? Iraq may be a horse of a different color, but we missed our chance there in the early nineties. If I was in any other country than this one, USA, I would be very concerned if my country accepted help from America. I sure as hell wouldn't turn my back on America, as I might find a knife inserted into it.

Wasn't there another leader stirring up his people by declaring America as the evil one? Osama comes to mind. Isn't this the very same claim that many governments around the world say about us? But because Bush now says this about other countries, we are supposed to get all fired up and back his every move. All this seems very familiar to me. Seems I've heard this rhetoric before somewhere. And not to long ago either. Albert Einstein said it best: "We can't solve problems by using the same kind of thinking we used when we created them." But isn't Bush's rhetoric the same as the so-called enemy's? And isn't this using the same thinking to supposedly solve the problem this thinking created to begin with?

And now we're supposed to run out and join this new Freedom Corp or what ever it is. Bush is calling for an upspring in volunteerism, and has a very loosely constructed agenda behind it. At least what he describes to the people. I'm sure there is a real agenda behind it some where. Sounds more like a private army to me. I can see it already. Help thy neighbor today, check his national ID tomorrow. This all sounds closer and closer to the start up of Nazi Germany.

Bush, on one hand, is all in favor of better education, and on the other, forgetting that some of us paid attention in school and can remember the lessons of World War II and Germany. Is he so stupid to think that semi-intelligent people can't see the correlation between his present actions and talk and those of past dictators and despots? Damn, he scares me now. And yet his supposed approval rating is still very high. Who are these people answering these polls anyway?

And now we have the Vice Prez defying Congress for whatever reasons he has. Him and Bush claiming they are standing up for a principle. Yet totally forgetting about the simple principals of our legal system. You can’t hold anybody without charging them with something. These battle field detainees or illegal combatants or whatever term they wish to use for them, charge them before a tribunal or court or what ever, or kick them loose. Simple principle that has been completely overlooked. The last time this country went over to another continent, captured people, brought them to this side of the world, held them without charging them with anything, we called it slavery.

A friend recently told me: "I'm not so much a Democrat as I am an anti-Republican." I’m beginning to see the wisdom in those words.

Down in the Blue Grass,
Don

, In the past week I have had many orders from Ham TV Amateurs they are spreading the word about my 4,000 Wireless Startech Video Senders/ I do not understand exactly what they are saying but I am sure you do. I have included a report Tom O'Hara (Ham TV) just sent me today. I really think at $30 your customers will love knowing about this. Thank you Bill Houlehan (phone 816-531-1177) (teachers also use these to throw picture up to big screen & computer people transmit picture from their laptops to big screen TV).

The receiver channel 3 output has a multipole bandpass filter which is tuned by C20, 21 and 22. For some reason, it was centered on 61 MHz rather than tuned for being flat across channel 3 - 60 to 66 MHz. The high side at 66 MHz was rolled off about 5 dB which would decrease the color and sound subcarriers. A slight decrease in capacity on C20 and 22 brought the passband up to the proper bandwidth and band pass for channel 3. After a little more peaking I was able to increase the total gain to 22 dB.

:DoD to Share Spectrum with First Responders
:(EXCERPT) The Department of Defense today submitted its report to :Congress regarding the feasibility of sharing the 138-144 MHz band
:with public safety users. A DoD Joint Spectrum Center engineering
:study identified ways sharing would be possible without interfering :with DoD operations.
:Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Spectrum and C3 Policy
:Steven Price said, "We believe it is possible to share portions of the :138-144 MHz band with public safety users on a limited, coordinated :basis. DoD is willing to work with National Telecommunications and :Information Administration, state and local governments and first :responders on a case-by-case basis to explore sharing the band for the :common good."
:While the 138-144 MHz band continues to be critical to DoD operations,
:the department has found it helpful in emergencies to share
:communication systems with other first responders. A small number of :channels may be shared on a regional basis when it is to the mutual :benefit of DoD and public safety officials.
:DoD operations that would be affected if this band were interrupted
:through heavy use of too many channels would include air-surface-air,
:air traffic control and ground support functions at military
:airfields, tactical communications for close air support, land mobile
:radios for sustaining installation infrastructure support and land
:mobile radios and specialized equipment for training and test range
:support. Other systems that would be affected include fire and :security alarms, and hydrology and utility controls.
:The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal 2000 reclaimed for :federal, primarily DoD, use of three megahertz in the 138-144 MHz band
:previously identified, pursuant to requirements of the Balanced Budget
:Act of 1997, for reallocation for mixed federal government and :non-federal government uses. As Congress understood, the recovery of 3
:MHz was and is crucial to fulfilling DoD's spectrum requirements.
:However, in the conference report, DoD was asked to provide a :technical report assessing the feasibility of sharing the 138-144 MHz
:band with public safety users. In the fiscal 2001 authorization,

:Congress directed DoD, in cooperation with the Justice Department and
:the NTIA, to provide for an engineering study with regard to spectrum
:sharing in the 138-144 MHz band. The assistant secretary of Defense
:for Command Control Communication and Intelligence (C3I) has submitted
:this report to the Senate Armed Services Committee and the House Armed :Services Committee.
:Under direction of Assistant Secretary of Defense for Command,
:Control, Communications and Intelligence (C3I) John Stenbit, the DoD
:Joint Spectrum Center conducted an engineering study regarding sharing :in the 138-144 MHz band. The resultant classified study showed that :the areas of operation associated with the DoD frequency usage in the :138-144 MHz band encompasses nearly the entire continental United :States. Large distance separations would be required to prevent :co-channel and adjacent-channel interference between DoD equipment and :potential state and local public safety systems, particularly in the :case of DoD air-ground-air radios.

I looking to get a HF rig to listen to for now, mainly because I will be getting some money back from IRS so I figured I would get one while I have the money. Hope it will also help motivate me into passing the code test faster. They are both in the price range $600 or less and look like good starter radios for new HF users. I would also like to get into digital modes too, I really want to get to SSTV. Some RTTY or PSK.

If anyone uses one of these radios could please give some information on some things you like and dislike about these radios would be very helpful. I have a month or two to wait for my check to come back so I want to do some research on the radios. Ads don't help as much as user input. Or if you have some other radio choices in the price range you use and like let me know.

Please.

William (KC2GSO)

Thank you.

I have gotten my Yaesu FT 50RD Dual-bander off on the wrong settings by trying to leave this menu that sets the squelch settings and other things.

I never went inside the radio itself, physically.

UHF settings will have a "u-HSSQ" VHF settings are straight forward as they appear "HSSQ"

Works better if no memories have been programmed.

I Need the values for the following, please.

If someone has not "done the same thing I did",
LAMP+PTT-KNOB AND POWER at the same time.
VHF
S9LV
L2PO
L1PO

Just turn the top knob(Do not push- that's how I got myself into a terrible "fix"[Hi-hi]) and copy the values down and send them to me so I can have a close match.

Tnx,
Sean

Roger imbalanced? Don't know but first might want to check if Roger is real, and the only person who can answer that is Doc. According to Doc, Roger's posts are not real.
Ask Doc, they are forgeries, just ask Doc. Doc has all the answers. Herbie used to say that.

Mark,

Thanks for the DSP and NB info. I indeed downloaded and tried the DSP demo from the silicon pixels site. Overall, I am mostly unimpressed with the performance with two exceptions: (1) autonotch filter which is quite good, and (2) the CW filters really can narrow down the bandwidth sufficiently to cut out almost all other noise. As for SSB/ AM/ FM reception, I find a GOOD noise blanker more useful. The bottom line is: thanks for saving me $150+! I definitely won't be spending money for the Icom DSP module.

According to the entity posting as Doc AF2Y, there is a bunch of forged posts, and people are not who they might seem to be, including the entity identifying as Doc AF2Y.
Thus, the AF2Y posts are probably a forgery too! Is doc real? Does Doc exist? Only Doc knows, if he even exists?
There really may be no Doc. Unreal, confusing? No Doc?

Sean, why not just reset the CPU (if you have no memories saved, etc.) which will set the radio back to the factory settings?
Press and hold the SET key and the DSP/SS while turning the transciever on.
That way you can start over and hopefully not make that same error again.

Turdeater was too CHICKENSHIT to come knock on the door. His gopher-like appearance must've been the reason he hid down when he asked my neighbor which house was mine, even though those coke-bottle-bottomed glasses missed the clearly marked mailbox and 4- 5 inch house numbers. Poor gopher-face, can't see worth shit. Maybe his lack of a steady income is why he lives in that hole in the ground, like the gophers he looks like.

If KC8JBO is, according to you Doc, or whoever you are, a forger, then why do you address him as "Raj" ? Do you know for sure he is "Raj"? You said posts from KC8JBO are forgeries.
Come on Doc, you were told once before, you cannot have it both ways, because if you like it both ways, then you are no better than the guy you've been shitting on all these years, Herbie Schoenbohm.

My father (G4IRM) has the FT840 and its a pretty neat radio. He gets very good audio reports, though I have to say that when I use it for CW I find its not so good as my FT920 for filtering. The one annoying thing (for me) about the 840 is a clicking noise as the VFO dial is turned - I guess you get used to it if you use it a lot..

Hi -

I have made a discovery that could make SSTV more accessible for the less well off amateur radio enthusiasts . FYI the active part costs $5 or less . It uses as the active component a voice recorder card costing 3.50 UKP and works by reducing the clock frequency of the card on record and playback .

Some SMD work required . :)

Is anyone interested ?

Please reply ASAP, this is really neat ! :) :) :)

Hi -

Make your voice sound like Donald Duck, the Daleks, Chip & Dale, etc .
For only $5 plus some spare parts you can make your very own voice changer in less than 15 minutes - all inclusive , even the mike !
(provided you can solder SMD)

Note - I am not trying to sell these . I discovered this by accident when trying to make a data logger on the cheap !

Email me - the schematics are free ! I am not trying to make a quick buck (or euro), I genuinely want to give this away for free ! FREE!

well it depends on the frequency . 418.33 MHZ is used usually for low power stuff . (unlicenced) . So you are looking at harmonics at 1/2 power at 836.66 MHZ, and up .

bottom line - try it and report back .

Well, well, well, it's the greasy bean boy. Has your horrible body odor from going too long without bathing clouded your sanity? (I don't have a problems with Hispanics, per se, it's ignorant punks like you I like to slap the shit out of time and time again.)

For a big talker who says he's not afraid to die, you sure do scamper from hide-out (anonymous handle) to hide-out (anonymous handle) like a little gay gopher. Go ahead and try to hide, Frito assbandito Hernandez...you're like Stevie Turdeater, too CHICKENSHIT to do anything but flap your syphlitic gums.

Ed-dildo is sucking and swallowing more kiddie cum again...He first was instructed by his perverted pedophile father, who either was drunk or on cocaine. Ed-dildo always was willing to please his father, even being his right hand man when the old man masturbated the kiddies. He could be pimping his daughters like Whorass or drinking himself to death like Mick the Pricksucker Slater and Georgie Girl Arselicks Arsics.

From the arrl.net webpage in Enforcement actions section:

January 29, 2002

Mr. Glenn A. Baxter
RR1 Box 779
Belgrade Lakes, ME 04918

Re: Amateur Radio license K1MAN

Dear Mr. Baxter:

On May 14, 1999, after numerous complaints about your Amateur station regarding broadcasting, deliberate interference, failure to identify, poor signal quality and erratic starting and stopping times, personnel from the Boston office of the Commission monitored your station and attempted to inspect it. There was no one present at your station while it was transmitting on Amateur Service frequencies. The transmissions continued while Commission personnel went to your residence at 1 Long Point Road, but there was no one present there either. Again on May 15 while your station was transmitting, Commission personnel attempted an inspection but there was no one present.

Since the Amateur Radio Service rules require that Amateur stations be under the control of a control operator, and that the control operator must ensure the immediate proper operation of the station, we requested by letter dated June 25, 1999, that you provide information to the Commission, pursuant to Section 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, regarding the operation of your Amateur station. You responded by letter dated July 25, 1999, but your response failed to provide the information we requested. We notified you of that fact by letter dated August 4, 1999, and detailed the inadequacies of your response.

Specifically, you did not provide the name, address or phone number of the control operator for any of the "broadcasts" or "bulletins" such as prerecorded interviews, transmissions of answering machine responses, live interviews, or live, pre-recorded or automated station

identifications transmitted by your station. Among other deficiencies of the response, you did not provide dates and times Amateur station K1MAN transmitted without a control operator.

You also stated in your July 25, 1999 reply that you had not received our June 25 letter by certified mail and that our letter had "misrepresented itself as Certified Mail". We reminded you that you had signed the certified receipt for that letter, and we provided you with a copy of that certified receipt.

You responded to our August 4 letter by letter dated August 24, 1999. During our review of the information you provided, your Amateur station ceased operation. As a result, we held our inquiry in abeyance. The U.S. District Court in Maine subsequently dismissed your lawsuit against the Commission, and dismissed your petition for reconsideration of that dismissal as well.

You recently resumed operation of Amateur station K1MAN. In view of that resumption and the resulting complaints we are receiving about deliberate interference, threats against those who do not relinquish frequencies for your use or who would complain, or who have complained, erratic operation, broadcasting, unauthorized tape recording and broadcast of telephone conversations, business use of an Amateur station and lack of station control, we have resumed our inquiry into the operation of K1MAN.

In reviewing your letter dated August 24, 1999, referenced above, and your actions subsequent to coming back on Amateur frequencies, it appears that your understanding of certain Amateur Radio Service rules may be incorrect. We will outline the apparent misunderstandings below.

Amateur Station Control

With regard to control of an Amateur station, your letter of August 24 indicated that the control device for your station was a "Radio Shack timer", and that the control points for the station were "the main power switch at the transmitter site" and at the location of the control operator, wherever that may be". You further stated that on the dates in question, May 14 and 15, 1999, you were the control operator and were in "both Belgrade Lakes and Augusta in either mobile or portable modes".

Section 97.7 of the Commission's rules states that "when transmitting, each Amateur station must have a control operator". Section 97.105 states that "the control operator must ensure the immediate proper operation of the station, regardless of the type of control (emphasis added).

Section 97.109 states that "each Amateur station must have at least one control point", and that the control operator must be at the control point when the station is locally controlled or remotely controlled.

Section 97.7 further states that a control operator need not be at the control point if a station is automatically controlled. However, as Section 97.109 also explains, only stations specifically designated in Part 97, such as a space, repeater, beacon or auxiliary station, may be controlled automatically. There is no provision in Part 97 that allows an Amateur station transmitting information bulletins to be automatically controlled.

In summary, your control of the station by a "Radio Shack timer" while you are absent from your Amateur station is a violation of the Commission's Rules. You were not in control of your station on May 14 and 15, 1999 while you were in "both Belgrade Lakes and Augusta in either mobile or portable modes". Your statement in your response that "K1MAN has never transmitted during the current license term without a control operator acting in full compliance with rules 97.105 and 97.109 as well as all other applicable FCC rules" is untrue.

Simply put, to comply with Commission rules, you must be at the transmitter, or at the transmitter control point, every moment your station is transmitting, when your station is locally or remotely controlled. If the station is controlled by telecommand from the control point using a radio link, the frequencies used for telecommand must comply with the Section 97.201 requirements for an auxiliary station (may transmit only on the 1.25 m and shorter wavelength bands, except 219-220, 222-222.150, 431-433 and 435-438 MHz segments).

Publishing a Transmitting Schedule & Interference

It appears that you may be under the misconception that by publishing a transmitting schedule of K1MAN, you have certain rights under Commission rules regarding the control operator and frequency sharing requirements that you would not otherwise have.

With regard to the requirement for a control operator, publishing a schedule does not relieve you of that requirement in any way whatsoever. Section 97.113(d) of the Amateur Radio rules states that by publishing a schedule of transmissions at least 30 days in advance, a control operator of a club station may accept compensation for the periods of time when the station is transmitting...information bulletins, providing certain additional conditions are met. Publishing a schedule of proposed transmissions, therefore, relates only to a club station control operator accepting compensation. We note that this is irrelevant to the operation of K1MAN because K1MAN is not a club station.

Simply put, to the extent that you start your transmissions on top of ongoing communications of other amateur service stations, you will be engaging in deliberate interference, in violation of Section 97.101 of the Commission's rules. No amateur service frequency is assigned for the exclusive use of any station. Your publishing an intended transmission schedule does not exempt you from that rule.

Threats to Complainants and Other Users

Your sending "Felony Complaint Affidavits" to other Amateur Service licensees who complain or intend to complain of your operation, or who do not relinquish frequencies to you, was the subject of a Warning letter to you dated December 11, 2001. You have also been warned about such "Felony Complaint Affidavits" by the United States Attorney in Maine.

The Commission will view any threats made by telephone, through the U.S. Mail or on radio frequencies to Amateur Radio licensees who file complaints with the Commission, or who do not relinquish frequencies for your use, as very serious.

Broadcasting

We also note that on your web site and in your radio transmissions, you refer to your transmissions variously as "broadcasts, programs, talk shows, bulletins, pre-recorded interviews" and so forth. We have received complaints that you have broadcast comedy shows and commercial messages. We caution you that Section 97.113(b) of the Amateur service rules prohibits amateur station from engaging in any form of broadcasting. Certain one-way transmissions, such as information bulletins, are allowed as specified in the rules.

Tape Recording and Broadcasting Telephone Conversations

We have received and have under review complaints that you have tape-recorded telephone conversations without the consent of the recorded party and that you have broadcast such tape recordings. We caution you that such recording without consent may be in violation of state or federal law. We will contact you under separate cover regarding those complaints.

In summary, it is very important for you to understand that we will review all valid complaints concerning the operation of your Amateur station, and that Commission personnel will again inspect your station. The rules of the Amateur Service are straightforward and easy to understand. To the extent that you do not comply with Commission rules regarding the Amateur Radio Service, then to that extent enforcement action will be taken against your licenses. That enforcement action may include revocation of your station license, suspension of your operator license, a modification proceeding to restrict your operating privileges, or monetary forfeiture.

It is also important for you to understand that if these matters are not resolved, your operator/primary station licenses will not be routinely renewed; but instead will be designated for hearing before an Administrative Law Judge. In such a proceeding, you would have the burden of proof to show that your licenses should be renewed.

scarey stuff... interefering via his broadcasts is one thing but taping

About freakin time, too, arrogant scofflaw b*st*rd that he is. Somehow I don't think he'll be following the rules anytime soon, though.

I was gonna post that letter myself this morning, but didn't want to start another 195 post thread, LOL.

I notice he hasn't been on the air lately.

I taped his "show" a few times two weeks ago, figured I could at least contribute enough to get him on the failure to ID thing. But I see there's no need to send them in.

I happened to hear one of the other incidents on today's enforcement page too. Guy accidentally left his mike keyed and had a colossal screaming fight with his girlfriend--live on the air for over an hour. Embarrassing as THAT was, turns out the guy was a Technician class and not authorized to use the frequency at all, LOL. Sometimes you just have a bad day...

Roger is feeling rather lonely, as he does every Valentine's Day. He becomes morose because he wants so desperately to find that "special guy" with whom to trade bodily fluids and all he gets is rejection after rejection. Rogie finds this devastating and he is often overheard crying himself to sleep. Rogie sometimes seeks solace with the Lavender Lads, but alas! it is of no use.
The Lavender Lads have stopped coming around (pun) to Roger's house since it is oh, so difficult to twitter and giggle while Rogie's mom is in the next room. The Lads sadly informed Rogie that they were going to have to take their favorite game of Leap Frog elsewhere. Roger has been heartbroken ever since.
There you have it, folks. Rogie is venting his pent-up anger on Usenet because he feels so betrayed by his old gang of "butt buddies".
What is the old adage? "Hell hath no fury like a Lavender Lad scorned?"

Baxter's days are numbered. He has been warned and warned and warned yet he

There is something severely amiss with that man and one must wonder why he has gotten away with so much for as long as he has.
The dummy is looking at a LOT of potential charges, yet he has not the sense to shut up and go away while the getting is good.

I got one better than that... back when I was in England, a ham friend of mine told me of another ham (never heard exactly where he was from) who had a radio at his bedside. Well one night he left the VOX on when he and his wife got intimate...

Maladjusted Roger shows his true colors with posts such as this. What a pity that a fifty year old man has so little to do in life but post the above filth.
Roger has a certain amount of "entertainment value" but the fact that we respond to him does not speak well of us.
I am just as guilty, but I cannot help myself...I like slapping this bottom-weighted dummy around. He is, after all, just SO easy to bitch-slap....one can knock him for a loop and he bobs back up and responds with his prerecorded filth...much akin to one of those little spring-loaded ceramic dogs that adorns the back windows of old folk's cars.
It is rather sad.
Roger could have amounted to something 25 years ago. It's too late now!

Story on the singles scene is that Curtain Boy is infected with various STD's.
Check back later this week when Curtain Boy gets his medical records back.
Maybe if he has some antibiotics left over he will share them with the Hiram Hogs.....never know....maybe a plague could be prevented.

Hi all.

There is a group on Yahoo which has been set up as a discussion forum for amateur radio in the uk. It does not support any fringe groups, but simply a means of assisting UK amateurs in any sphere of our hobby. Unlike other groups it does have moderation, and does not support the foul mouthing, or verbal attacks on other amateurs. Ex G members are more than welcome to join, or in fact anyone whom supports our great hobby.

If you want to support this group please join in on the following.

http://www.yahoogroups.com/group/ukhamradio

Maybe see you there :-)

Regards,

Dave G3VFP.

After one week's time, this is the only followup posting to my offer of a poll. I did not get any reply E-mail. In particular, neither "Stagger Lee" nor Andreas ("Tekman"), the individuals who started this debate in the first place, had any followups in this thread (either to accept the offered terms, or to offer terms of their own). This suggests that there are no strong opinions one way or the other. This also suggests that any criticism was simply intended to incite a conflict, and not contribute any meaningful feedback, nor seek any constructive change on this newsgroup.

I still continue to believe that the welcome-message auto-mailing project operates with the tacit approval of the overwhelming majority of the readership. I also believe that a poll, while it would probably favor me, would be enough of a hassle to this newsgroup and its readership that it is not warranted at this time. If anyone feels otherwise, they can followup to this posting.

If additional criticism emerges on the newsgroup, including assertions that there is no support for the welcome-message auto-mailing project, Jeremy Billones is available to conduct the poll at any time. I continue to stand by my offer to abide by the results of any such poll.

<Nothing of importance>

Stevie Turdeater is feeling rather lonely, as he does every Valentine's Day.
He becomes morose because he wants so desperately to find that "special guy" with whom to trade bodily fluids and all he gets is rejection after rejection.
Stevie the gopher faced geek finds this devastating and he is often overheard crying himself to sleep.
Stevie often thinks back to when he could cornhole his mommy who lives at 3472 Timberwood Trail Box 441 Richfield, OH 44286-9755 sometimes seeks solace with the Liberty Net, snorting cocaine and babbling incoherently, but alas! it is of no use.

The Liberty Net have stopped coming around (pun) to Steve Turdeater's hovel since it is oh, so difficult to twitter and giggle while Stevie's farm animals are in the next room. The Liberty Net sadly informed Stevie that they were going to have to take their favorite game of Leap Frog elsewhere. Stevie has been heartbroken ever since.

There you have it, folks. Stevie is venting his pent-up anger on Usenet because he feels so betrayed by his old gang of "butt buddies".
What is the old adage? "Hell hath no fury like a Piss-drinking Turdeater scorned?"

Hi, I found this cool old mic, a Shure 710a salt crystal thing with only two wires. I hooked it up positive wire to an XLR pin 2 and the ground wire to 3 & 1 and it works but has lot's of hum. (into a Mackie 1202VLZ) What else should I try? It's brand new in the box (1952), a deep handsome maroon with a tan colored cloth behind the grill. It sounds pretty good really, lot's of lip smack detail, no distortion, interesting sound, just lot's of hum and oh- massive handling noise. Thanks as always, s.

It's a little boy trying to post in the grown up world where he might get a real spanking. Stay with your meowers little boy, or you'll be standing in a very scarey corner.

Hi Brad. I netKKKopped everyone in your name, I hope you don't mind, but I just thought they all needed to be taught a very serious lesson, erm I mean I just thought you needed to be taught a very serious lesson.

I do realise that, of course, you big butch dom types don't like being taught lessons, but hey who gives a fuck? Right?

Oops, I have just been very naughty.. Damn.

Thank you to everyone who tried to give me help previously.

As described earlier I am new to PSK31 and continue to have some difficulties, even with my brand new FT-817 .....

Basically I have built a simple interface (2N2222, attenutors etc)

However I have been trying for 2 days (nearly solid !) and not had a contact ! What could be going wrong ? The RTS channel is keying the PTT and the attenuator is supply the signal from the laptop audio out. A check on a spare rx shows that the tx signal seems ok ......

However, no replies to over 100 x CQ calls and no responses when replying to others. What could the problem be ?

For interest, I have just given RTTY a go and have encounterd exactly the same problems (I have been using Digpan and MMTTY). Please help if you can.

I'd used Acid Flux (The liquid kind you buy in a bottle for Plumbers) initially. Soak it in the stuff for a minute or so, then use a torch to burn it off. Do that a couple times then rinse it off. Then Solder it with your standard Rosin flux based 60/40 solder and a big Weller pistol grip solder gun.
Never a problem.. works every time for me.

Hi Hugh,
Can you confirm that there is a few watts of RF being transmitted.
Do you have a dummy load that you can prove output.I suppose you should see about 2 watts from a 817 on PSK. Maybe you are overdriving and the signal you are radiating looks bad.
What band are you using.
What antenna is in use.
Have you had contacts on say SSB with the same set up.
Are you receiving PSK31 signals ok.
Tune the 817 to 14.070 you should see signals there.
If you want ,reply to me off group and I will get it sorted for you.

HELLO ALL!

My names Jo W&#65533;ANT.

I've been hamming for almost 20 wonderful years now !

I recently had to move into a neighborhood where I cannot have any type of communications antenna outside my house...

I was forced to install an attic antenna. It's a long way from the 8 element monoband 20m yagi I have always wanted.. HIHI..

Shortly after being very unhappy about my antenna restrictions...
I found a software program called ((ILINK))...

It has enabled me to again talk to hams...JUST !!!
licensed hams...all over the Internet...

So I decided I was going to promote this IDEA!...
With a website I have designed.. just for ILINK!

PLEASE TAKE A QUICK LOOKSIE

(((http://www.angelfire.com/tv2/alink)))

Here's my question... You can tell I am a Ham ...
IT takes for ever to get to a point! LOL

Anyway I wondered what the average ham thinks of THIS (((ILINK STUFF))) is it a new mode.

Is it a threat or our salvation from the Internet taking away all our new hams!

REGARDS

Whom you voted for, huh, Faggot Lee?

Anonymous coward and all-around fuckwit
"Stagger Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> revealed what a hypocrite he is and ironically admits he has no credibility in message <3C36FDCC.76EC185D@houston-hunks.com> :

"Therefore, I find your story difficult to believe. Your own anonymous status makes the story even less credible."

Faggot Stagger Lee, who fails to "grasp" the concept that "slander" is spoken and "libel" is written, would be better served if he just stuck to grasping nutsacks, incoherently babbled in <3C4AE592.6A0CDA7E@houston-hunks.com>:

"COTSE seemed to have the laughable notion that what Wiseman was doing was exercising freedom of speech. Slander is of course not protected speech in the US, but the concept that even free speech has its limits seemed to be impossible for Steve Gielda -- COTSE's owner -- to grasp."

Chickenshit COWARD Faggot Lee pathetically tries to justify his hiding behind anonimity in <3B8FFFF5.143FA347@houston-hunks.com>:

"...readers have already had uninvited people show up at their homes, have had people subscribe them to magazines and book clubs, have received hang-up calls in the middle of the night, have had poison pen letters written to their neighbors and employers, and have had poison pen email sent to their ISPs in an attempt to get their accounts canceled. That's not a "what if" scenario either: It has happened repeatedly to certain members of these news groups, yours truly included (one person has emailed repeated lies to Altopia in an attempt to learn my identity). One of our readers has even had to go to the courts and obtain an injunction against one of those nuts.

I choose not to give insane people like that any kind of edge in physically locating me, and if you think that's "cowardice", you are only demonstrating your profound ignorance of Usenet and of the kind of people who read these posts."

Then the no-balls coward ends his feminine cuntly whining with:
"And do you know what else? I AM SICK TO DEATH OF THOSE WHO REPEAT YOUR TIRED OLD, IGNORANT REFRAIN. Until you learn a few things, you ought to shut your arrogant mouth."

Poor Anonymous COWARD Lee....typical of all TexASS residents chickenshit to the core.

More like N4CND or W2ZB.

Aberdeen high school and some tenth-rate institute for retards like Whorass...
"Athens Area Technical Institute," what a fucking joke. Whorass, N4CND causes trouble by having WIDE signals and screaming into the mike with that girly voice of his. He also jams on the CB bands.

W2ZB was fired twice by the FCC for jamming.

For Immediate Release:

Twice-fired FCC employee wanted by Federal Communications Commission for violations of Part 97. George F. Arsics, Jr., ex K1QKJ, AB4ZV, and currently W2ZB, is wanted by the FCC for multiple repeat violations of part 97 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. As you will recall this is the ex-Powder Springs FCC employee who was caught by his co-workers jamming KV4FZ on 14.313 in a drunken stupor, and promptly fired. Since that time Arsics has been directly involved with the jamming, stalking, and harassment of several amateurs through a group known as the "Goodfellows".
Other accomplices of Arsics in this activity have been N4CND, WB2OTK (call revoked), N4XCV (call revoked), KA9BSD, KK9G, and N9PGE. Arsics lost his home at 2571 Bethany Lane in a last minute sale to avoid foreclosure earlier this year. Thus his FCC ULS data is fraudalent. Arsics has done this in the past, once listing the retirement home where his father passed on his 610.
This
enables him to freely jam other amateurs on HF with no fear of revocation.
According to part 97, and we quote,
" 97.23 Mailing address.
Each license grant must show the grantee's correct name and mailing address. The mailing address must be in an area where the amateur service is regulated by the FCC and where the grantee can receive mail delivery by the United States Postal Service. Revocation of the station license or suspension of the operator license may result when correspondence from the FCC is returned as undeliverable because the grantee failed to provide the correct mailing address."

If you know the actual physical location of the station owned by George Arsics, Jr. used to jam and stalk other hams, please report this information to your local FCC Field Office or contact Riley Hollingsworth, Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement at rholling@FCC.gov.

"John Kimball" <johnkimb@hotmail.com> admits he eats shit in message <a3gs9e$662$0@dosa.alt.net>.

Admission you can't spell noted. Nice try at a backpedal, you might find somebosy SOMEWHERE that will believe it. You never did answer the peak to peak question, you cowardly shitworm. What's the matter, can't that obsolete computer you stole work long enough to go back to "Whatis.com?"

Let's see how "literate" the admitted shiteater is:

Joanie 'Shiteating "grammer-boy <sic>"' Kimball admits to running away when he slobbered the following lame excuse in <a3uuei$i0a$0@pita.alt.net>:
"Sorry, I'm done kicking around your ignorance on that matter."

"Snip all those painful words out, coward." says hypocrite Joanie in <9rrsbb$53e$4@dosa.alt.net>

Joanie the English-impaired imbecile and Mensa member slobbered the following in <a40omm$9lq$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"What the fuck is a rhyming dictionary?"

Shiteating hypocrite Joanie makes more excuses for his fuckup in (f)lame in <a3jdgt$9fu$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"Useless fucks like yourself who can't hack it in alt.flame always say that."

"John Shiteater Kimball" <johnkimb@hotmail.com> the "writer"
slobbers, head up his fatass as usual in message <a3jdgt$9fu$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"Your claiming that every post you make is a troll? I suggest you look up the term "troll", then figure out why you're a such miserable failure."

Joanie the Ebonics-babbling fool slobbered in <a3gjl0egk3@dosa.alt.net>:
"You can thank me later, when I've finished squicking your eye socket."

<a3972n$oc2$3@dosa.alt.net>:
"That's didn't answer the question."

Joanie shows off his "grammar" skills and hypocrisy with the following slobber:
"It's usually a good idea to check your own post for fuck-ups when grammer or spell laming, Woger, you fucking idiot." in <9rrsbb$53e$4@dosa.alt.net>

Joanie fucks up his typo lame by showing his ill-educated background in English in <a2h0sr$668$2@pita.alt.net>:
"you can't even refer to a diodes characteristics without fucking it up."

Joanie admits he lacks the common knowledge of a household electrical outlet's RMS voltage in <a36bj9$5bg$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"You didn't specify the RMS voltage...Assuming 115VAC (Joanie's whining why I didn't specify common knowledge)"

Joanie shows off that 2nd grade education with the following IKYABWAI:
"You're "Guide to Gay Lifestyle" handbook doesn't count." in

<9r3sr9rkib@dosa.alt.net>

Joanie shows off his "William and Mary" [William and Mary School for the Mentally Handicapped, that is] education when he drooled:
"And what's you excuse?" in <9u2v8g$vp7$6@pita.alt.net>

Joanie the Shiteating Kimball demonstrates his lack of coherent thought or English skills when he slobbered out more hypocrisy out of his syphlitic mouth in <a2hbrolr3@pita.alt.net>:
"Do you always have this habit of proving peoples points for them?

Joanie the Pulitzer prize winner slobbered incoherently:
"I cant' believe I'm agreeing with you, Woger."

I just made the same decision. I went with the IC-718 for the following reasons:

1. Overall, better reviews on eham.net.
2. Fewer buttons to have to learn.
3. Promotions/Coupons. I paid $519,delivered, and have a mail-in offer for a free DSP unit.

If you want FM, you will have to go with the Yaesu w/ an optional board. Since I don't intend to use FM on HF, that did not matter to me.

Simple, reputation for reliability, cheaper, and a free DSP module.
For what I wanted, it wasn't too hard a decision, although (as always)YMMV.

One Who Knows Roger said about Roger's responses:
"The hallmark of an outed coward. Then your (f)lame quality

Roger, if little else, is a steadfast son that has returned to the proverbial nest. One often reads of Post Partum Depression, a common malady amongst new mothers. Roger has taken this affliction to a different level in that HE is the one suffering from Post Partum. Somewhere along the normal growing up, moving out, and being an adult continuum Roger has gone astray. It seems that Roger is still connected to his mommy via a steel umbilical cord and has no plans whatsoever of altering the status quo. It is no small wonder that Roger's short-lived marriage failed. His ex-wife couldn't compete with Mommy and the Steel Umbilical Cord.

What could Roger be planning for his future? More outings with the Lavender Lads? Saving up enough money to buy a computer of his own? Maybe a computer with a processor faster than Marie's old 386?

Whatever Roger does with his remaining years, one can rest assured that he will continue to be a loser. A putz. A milquetoast. A nonentity prowling the news groups to bolster his lackluster social life.

Having said this, it is now time for the rest of the group to slap Roger around at will. He has been bitchslapped so many times in these newsgroups that one almost feels sorry for the poor old dude.

OK, Roger. Time to post more filth. Take that Pampers diaper from your feces-spewing oral cavity and show us your intelligence. Speak, Boy. Speak. Disgorge your best.

Poor Roger babbled in one of his filth laced posts that he is getting anonymous email. No! I wonder why? After all, he has SO many friends that think so highly of him that he is constantly peeking from behind his curtains just to see who has come to visit him at his mom's house.
Roger blubbered..."OK, you guys! I know who is sending me anonymous email. You will be hearing from your sysop and my gay rights attorney. I'll get you Steve Turdeater. I'll git you Joanie. I'll get you Stagger. I'll get you Stagger. I'll get you......BWWWWAAAAHHHHHHHHHHHHH"

Hugh,

If you will give me a time and date will try to work you on the air with PSK31.....I do not like MMRTTY but the MMSSTV is outstanding...Try a program like WINPSK or HAMSCOPE(which I use) ,,the only thing you need is a computer a sound card and a way to get rec audio out to the card and audio from the card in to the mic circuit of the trans.

There was this little dude sitting at a Hiram bar peacefully drinking his beer. A while later a bully of a guy staggers into the bar and sneaks up behind the little guy and karate chops him in the back. The little guy falls off his bar stool and when he gets up Dimmy laughs, saying: "That was a karate chop from the United States Navy."

Dimmy goes to the restroom and the little dude orders himself another beer. About 10 minutes later Dimmy comes staggering back and Karate chops the little guy in the back again. The dazed little fella gets up and dusts himself down, to which Dimmy sneeringly laughs and says, "That was a karate chop from my old lady."

The little guy decides he ain't gonna take any more of this crap, so he leaves the bar. About half an hour later the little dude comes back to the bar and he hits Dimmy right on top of his ugly head. Dimmy is knocked out cold and he's flat on the floor, eyes rolled back into his brain stem.

The little guy tells the bartender, "Tell lardass that was a crowbar ...from Sears!"

Thanks for the info. Seems like a good deal. Where did you get yours from?
It is sometimes hard to decide since it is the one you will be with, so make it a good one, right. But the big problem for me now is another radio is on the list, maybe the Alinco DX-70TD for moble use as well. 100 watt HF+6m moble/base radio $600. That one sounds nice since I can use the 6 meters until I get the code passed and upgrade. FM/SSB/CW unit.

Amateur Radio Newsline Report 1278 – February 8, 2002

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1278 with a release date of Friday, February 8th, 2002 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T.

Another Anthrax scare halts mail to the FCC in D.C. and ham radio growth may not be as good as it seemed. These stories are first on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1278 coming your way right now.

(Billboard Cart Here)

AMERICA AT WAR: FCC STOPS D.C.MAIL DELIVERY DUE TO NEW ANTHRAX SCARE

The Federal Communications Commission says that it will not accept paper mail in the Washington D.C. area until further notice. This, after a trace amount of the Anthrax virus was found during a routine test. Amateur Radio Newsline’s Paul Courson, WA3VJB, is in the nations capitol with the details

The scant amount of anthrax contamination found at a Federal Communications Commission mail facility in Maryland last week was consistent with cross-contamination of mail. At least that’s what the result of tests conducted by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention showed.

The FCC's mail processing facility in Capitol Heights Maryland, outside Washington, was tested about a week and a half ago as a routine precaution. One sample taken tested positive for Anthrax. The C-D-C blames the problem on cross contamination of mail. This means one or more pieces of mail from another facility may have inadvertently brought the contaminant to the Maryland site.

The agency is arranging for the facility to be decontaminated and re-tested. Mail deliveries, which have been halted, will not resume until the area is found to be anthrax-free. For ham radio, this only affects such things as requesting or commenting on rules change requests.

The FCC said it would also test the mail room at its Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, facility to make sure that it is Anthrax free. Gettysburg is where most Amateur Radio related mail including license applications and renewals are sent and is not affected by this latest paper mail suspension order. At least not so far.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Paul Courson WA3VJB in Washington.

Late last year five people, including two postal workers, died of the inhalation form of anthrax and more than a dozen were infected in a series of attacks that followed the terrorist raids on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. So far no arrests have been made in that case. (Published news reports)

SPACE AND SCIENCE: ON-ORBIT COMPUTER FAILURE CAUSES ISS OUTAGE

Ham radio was there but it was not needed. That’s the basic wrap up after a computer failure aboard the International Space Station sent the 17-story complex into a slow drift for a few hours on Monday February 4th.

The temporary outage also disrupted voice communications with the ground using normal channels. It also brought science research to a halt. But NASA officials said that neither the station nor its crew ever were in any danger.

The station drift was halted about 17:00 GMT. That enabled the crew to begin the job of re-orienting the stations solar panel arrays. Once normal power levels were restored, systems and experiments that had been shut down were brought back on line.

The computer shutdown was eventually traced to a defective hard drive. James Hartsfield, a spokesman for NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston said that the three ham crew was never in any danger as a result of the failure. He termed it nothing more than an interruption to their normal work day.

Launched last December 5th on board the shuttle Endevour, Russian cosmonaut Yuri Onufrienko RK3DUO and U.S. astronauts Daniel Bursch KD5PNU and Carl Walz KC5TIE are the forth crew to inhabit the I-S-S. In addition to all of the high tech communications gear the crew also has ARISS - the ham radio station on board the International Space Station as backup voice and data communications. It was available, albeit not needed this time around. (ARNewsline(tm) from NASA Release)

HAM RADIO GROWTH: CENSUS REDUX

Some dark news following the good news on ham radio growth patterns. The numbers may not be as good as we reported two weeks ago. So says Fred Maia, W5YI, who follows growth trends in ham radio. And Fred says that the numbers we presented are overly optimistic:

--
Fred Maia:

“The FCC database is a database of all amateurs who have been licensed for twelve years. Thats ten years for the license term and an additional two. The reason it stays in the database for the additional two is so that it can be renewed diring the grace period. Thefefore, the licenses in the database are two years more thanthe ten year term or twenty percent inflated.”

In our story we used statistics from several sources including QRZ, W5YI and others. But Fred says that there are more recent numbers that show things may not be as good as they may seem on the surface.

According to Fred, as of January 15th 2002 there are actually only 98,030 holders of the Extra class license, 86,425 legacy Advanced, 138,546 Generals, 318,603 Technicians and legacy Tech plus and only 39,972 Novice class. The total is 681,576. That is considerably lower than the 720,194 in the latest QRZ census and 10,424 lower than the adjusted 692,000 we believed to be accurate.

The bottom line. Once you take away the expired licenses that are in their grace renewal period, the club and military recreation stations and the like the numbers tell a different story. One thats not nearly as rosy as we and others thought only two weeks ago. (ARNewsline(tm))

WINTER OLYMPICS 2002: COMMEMORATIVE STATION ON THE AIR

The Winter Olympics are in Salt Lake City Utah and ham radio is helping to celebrate the games with a special events station. Linda Reader, N7HVF, has more:

--
“Its going to start on Thursday at 5 PM Mountain Standard Time and it will go until the 25th of February. It will be available on all bands, so people will only need to listen around. The station call will be W7U and the trustee is W7EO.”

SPECTRUM: WHITE HOUSE PROPOSES PAYOUT TO CHANGE FREQUENCIES

The Bush administration says that it will propose setting up a $715 million fund to reimburse federal agencies that relocate their RF operations. This, for moving away from spectrum that has already been auctioned to commercial service providers.

In the past, federal agencies have had to negotiate with the winning bidders to cover relocation costs. In fact, following the September 11th terror attacks the Pentagon said it would not move off bands that it uses for military training and other purposes without sufficient funds to pay for relocating.

This created a stalemate over making available airwaves hotly desired by mobile telephone companies like Verizon Wireless. Now, in his budget just sent to congress, President Bush proposes setting up a fund to streamline the reimbursement process. Auction receipts to cover agency's relocation costs would be paid into the fund and federal agencies would be reimbursed for their relocation costs out of the proceeds.

What does this mean for Amateur Radio you ask? Simply that more spectrum that hams share with the government and military could be up for grabs sooner than most thought it might happen. But even with the subsidy some analysts of military communications say that it still could take several years before you see any spectrum moves take place. (Published reports)

FCC: OLYMPICS CAN USE 2300 MHZ HAM BAND FOR OLYMPICS

Broadcasters at the 2002 Winter Olympics have been granted a Special Temporary Authority from the FCC to use a ham band for their coverage of the Salt Lake City games. The S-T-A was made available at the request of the Salt Lake Organizing Committee R-F coordination group to use 2300 to 2305 and 2390 through 2450 MHz for remote pick-ups at various Olympic venues.

Unlike Australia two years ago, this FCC action does not take hams off the air nor does it forbid amateur use of the band during the period of the S-T-A. Instead it took action reminiscent of one that helped to establish ham radio's "National Frequency Coordination Council." The agency told all spectrum users that it had designated the Salt Lake Organizing Committee is the single point of contact or "SPOC" in regard to all Olympics radio frequency requirements. This delegated authority continues with the committee through March 31st. (FCC, Broadcasting & Cable, ARNewsline(tm))

PUBLIC SERVICE: HAM RADIO AT THE SUPERBOWL

Last week's Super Bowl played in New Orleans between the St. Louis Rams and the New England Patriots was a squeaker to the very last play. With the game tied at 17 to 17, in the 4th quarter, New England opted for a Field Goal that brought them victory in the very last seconds of normal play. It was a game seen by millions, but what t-v viewers did not see was the work of a group of New Orleans area hams who were a part of the behind the scenes communications effort for the game. Amateur Radio Newsline's Don Wilbanks, KC5MFA, lives in the Big Easy and has this look at the role that ham radio played:

While thousands cheered on the Rams and Patriots inside the Superdome and millions watched on television around the world, a handful of New Orleans hams were busy outside in the streets of the Crescent City.

“K5OEP go ahead.” “Checking in, nothing to report. Everything’s normal. WA5RT 2104 aaah, Poydras and South Claiborne.” “K5OEP roger, 2218. Other station?”
--

K5OEP is the call sign of Southeast Louisiana ARES. New Orleans area hams assisted the American Red Cross as they provided tracking for those sent to area shelters or hospitals should the unthinkable occur. Several Emergency Response Vehicles were in use feeding the workers and standing by in reserve should they be needed in an emergency. The ERV’s had a staff of 2 plus a ham with voice capability and APRS tracking. There were “Action Teams” standing by with a ham and a dual band HT. Hams also manned a command post trailer at City Hall as well as the Red Cross operations center on Canal Street and another Red Cross office in suburban Metairie. The communications operations began on Friday, February 1st and continued Saturday as well as Super Bowl Sunday. Tom Miller, AC5TM, ARRL Louisiana Section Emergency Coordinator and Keith Barnes, W5KB of the Red Cross were instrumental in putting the effort together. The local CBS affiliate, WWL-TV channel 4 did a lengthy report on the Red Cross, of which about a minute was focused on the hams. Several hams were featured on camera in the piece. Thankfully, this is representative of most of the radio traffic.
--
“K5OEP this is W5GAD.” “W5GAD, K5OEP go ahead.” “Just checking in Josh and, um, if it’s possible could we get a cup of coffee next time the truck comes down this direction?” “This is KC5BCR, we’re gonna take care of that coffee request.”
--

Only three things occurred that could be considered out of the ordinary... a semi-nude escapee jumped off a bridge to evade capture, a Rolodex in the Superdome caught fire from being too close to a light and the New England Patriots finally won the big game. And isn't it fitting that an underdog team called the Patriots would be victorious on this first Superbowl since September 11th. Next on the agenda for the city... Mardi Gras on Tuesday, February 12th. From Party Central in New Orleans, Louisiana, I'm Don Wilbanks, KC5MFA.

Before we leave this one we have some interesting statistics. According to the Broadcasting and Cable newsletter, Super Bowl 36 delivered the Fox Television Network a 42.5 rating and 61 share in what are called the metered Nielson overnight market ratings. This means that about 67 percent of United States households with television sets had them tuned to the game at some point during the telecast. RESCUE RADIO: HAMS ASSIST FOLLOWING QUAKE IN TURKEY

Amateur Radio operators in Turkey were among the first to respond in the wake of a earthquake that rocked the province of Afyon on Sunday February 3rd. More than forty were killed and at least 170 were injured injuries were reported in the aftermath of the 6 point zero tembler. Structures were destroyed and lines of communications were cut. Enter Amateur Radio.

According to an ARRL bulletin members of Turkey's Civil Defense Search and Rescue Team responded following the quake. The bulletin quotes Aziz Sasa, TA1E, the president of the Turkish national Amateur Radio society as saying that S-A-R communicated with it's headquarters in Ankara and within the affected area. This was because ham radio was the only long and medium-range communication resource available until normal lines of communications were restored. Most ham radio communications was on VHF using a system of linked repeaters. (ARRL)

RESCUE RADIO: AMATEUR RADIO OPERATORS HELP SAILBOAT IN DISTRESS

The ARRL Letter says that Amateur Radio played a role in the rescue of two people aboard the sailing vessel Antigone. This, after it ran aground off Honduras on Thursday, January 24th.

Ed Petzolt, K1LNC, of Hobe Sound, Florida, told the Letter that, despite some apparently deliberate interference, members of the Intercontinental Net on 14.300 MHz helped relay communications from the vessel, which was equipped with an High Frequency marine radio.

David Walz, AG4LI/HR6, in Honduras was in contact with the boat and passed traffic from the stranded mariners to the Net. Petzolt said he was able to patch the US Coast Guard in Miami through to Walz, so the Coast Guard could obtain additional information and coordinate with Honduran authorities.

Petzolt said the two passengers aboard the 40-foot vessel were safe, and the boat was on the beach. The FCC is reportedly investigating the interference issue. (ARRL)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: SUPER NET HAS ARRIVED

Australia’s new super-net has had its first successful demonstration, proving it can carry an enormous amount of data between two locations. In fact, its not just fast. It is virtual reality come to life. Q-News Graham Kemp, VK4BB, has a look at what super net can do:

In its 'maiden voyage,' the new high speed networking technology --10 Gigabit per second Ethernet -- ran a revolutionary combination of technology that allowed two people, in different locations, to work together on a virtual 3D object, each being able to feel the object and see what the other person was doing to it. At the same time they could use a studio quality video link to communicate.

These two functions were tested in a situation where they had to compete against a volume of network traffic equivalent to Sydney's telephone system at peak levels.

The demonstration involved networking a virtual environment from two separate sites, CSIRO's Virtual Environments laboratory at the Australian National University and CSIRO's corporate headquarters several kilometres away.

According to Graham, networks such as this will allow users in several locations to feel computer generated objects such as body organs. Among other things, this tactile ability means a surgeon could train many students in different cities at the same time. (Q-News)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: CENTRAL STATES VHF SOCIETY CALL FOR PAPERS

The Central States VHF Society will be holding it's 36th Annual Conference later this year. The dates are July 26th to the 28th at the Sheraton Four Points Hotel in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

And now comes an invitation to those interested in making presentations at this event. You are invited to submit an outline to Marc Holdwick, N8KWX, who is this years Technical Program Cairman.

Holdwick says that any topic related to weak-signal VHF operation is welcome and can be submitted in either paper or electronic format. But says N8KWX, those submitting will be required to have the finished work in his hands by May 5th to be included in the printed Proceedings.

If you are interested in taking part, you can contact Mark Holdwick by e-mail n8kwx@csvhfs.org. His snail-mail address is PO Box 6051, Buffalo Grove, Illinois, 60089. More information is on the web at www.csvhfs.org/CSVHF02.HTML (CSVHFS)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: RF CONTROL OF BIOMOLICULES

Scientists from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Media Lab report that they can now control biomolecules with radio frequency energy. Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reports:

Biomolecules such as proteins and nucleic acids are basic building blocks in nature. They carry out a wide variety of nano-scale functions, many of which have proven useful in drug discovery, drug delivery, biocatalysis, and bio-materials. But to optimally exploit these capabilities, researchers must be able to rapidly control their activity.

Now in the paper, titled "Remote Electronic Control of D-N-A Hybridization Through Inductive Coupling to an Attached Metal Nanocrystal Antenna, researchers describe a unique method to do this. One that employs the phenomenon of inductive coupling to metallic nanoparticles by radio frequency energy to specifically and remotely control DNA molecules. And they say, it works.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Bruce Tennant, K6PZW.

DX

In DX, the Trindade 2002 PWØT team reports that several major sponsors have come forward providing vital support for the upcoming DXpedition. ICOM America will be providing a number of ICOM IC-756 PRO II transceivers. ICOM will also be sending along an IC-910H for satellite operation. Possibly the first-ever satellite activity from Trindade.

But that’s not all. Electril, a Brazilian manufacturer, has begun shipping antennas to the team staging area and Bob Heil, K9EID, of Heil Sound has personally made arrangements to insure that the DX’ers will have new reliable headsets. Meantime, JA1FGI and JA1WSK have covered the cost of purchasing and shipping a complete RTTY, PSK-31 and SSTV equipment package. Lastly, its reported that the Six Meter Amateur Radio Klub and the Chiltern DX Club are the first organizations to provide the D-Xpedition with financial support.

The operators will leave Rio de Janero on February 15th for Trindade. More information is at the DXpedition website located in cyberspace at www.trindade2002.com (PW0T release)

THAT FINAL ITEM: THE SWOOPER

And finally this week, a loud buzzing noise being heard in the international shortwave band is apparently a new RADAR system used to measure wave height. According to Mark Fine, the system is located at Barnegat Bay New Jersey and transmits a one megahertz wide signal in varying five megahertz wide segments. Take a listen:

swooper audio here

Fine tells Amateur Radio Newsline that he made that recording on 4.795 MHz at 1850 UTC on February 5th. He was listening on a Drake R 8 A receiver set to upper sideband and a 2.3 kHz bandwidth. He says that during the evenings this beast takes over a whole band and is heard as far away as Europe and South America.

Already, some SWL’s have nick-named the noise a "swooper" because it sweeps quite fast making a "swoop" noise as it goes by in SSB. Others have called it the Windshield Wiper Network, which they say is very apropos. (DXLD, CGC Communicator with “Swooper” audio provided by Mark Fine).

Yea, the drag/drop filters work well. Quite an improvement for a rig with no cw filter. And if you have a cw filter, then you have "super"
cw. The chromapix filters are nice as you can make a filter and then store it as a saved filter. If you don't feel like spending money, there is a freeware DOS DSP program that works fine for filters. I run it fine in a windows dos box using my "windows" sound. It does bandpass, band reject, etc, and gives you a "waterfall" type of display. It's CW performance is probably about as good as chromapix.
Pretty steep sloped. It should be on the more popular software sites, and is called "SBFFT" DSP. It doesn't do autonotch or noise reduction though. I usually use the built in DSP for autonotch and noise, and the SBFFT for cw filtering. Heck, for 50$, the chromasound is a more powerful deal than the pricy icom DSP, but the downside is a computer has to tag along with the radio. No problem here at home, as I always use my soundcard for audio, but out portable or mobile, I'd need a laptop. MK

Faggot Lee always think about being in a circle jerk. Guess he's had experience, being his daddy the DRUNK was in prison and took 7 fucking years to get a 4 year college degree in Sales.

No DUMBASS, learn to fucking read. No wonder you took 9 years to get a 4 year degree. But, then in your family that's the norm, since "daddy the drunk" took 7 years to getr his 4 year degree.

Are you implying that you actually "know" these things, when in fact you had to go to "Whatis.com" to find them? You already fucked up before regarding a magnet and a coil, which you must've shoved up your syphlitic ass, or did Rev. Fred shove them up your ass for you with his foot the last time you posted in alt.2600?

I agree to an extent. I think the "ferver" of 9/11 left some things at the door. I am all for protecting America. But "detainees", either "prisoners of war" or criminals in terrorism, has to be either be afforded status of prisoners of war or charged with a crime, tryed and punished if convicted. Holding someone "indefinatly" without due process or legal representaion is the thing that disturbs me. And one of the reasons why we fought the Nazi's and Communists who did the very same thing.
In refernece to the National I.D. card. Again, this is disturbing. Reminds me of Germany, "ver are your papers". Some have even suggested "ID chips" which one doctor has already implanted as a prototype on a national news channel report.
I think the danger, is that peoples fears have given excuse for some, to curtail rights and give govenment far to much control. There is always a "benign" reason to do such things on the surface, but the end, is the erosion of personal freedoms and we become the very thing we have fought against. I see alot of "PR" as to reasons they are doing these things. No matter what the reason, if we fail to follow the precepts of our way of life and the law, we have lost the real battle. Our beliefs as a free people.
I think Americans are far to eager to give up freedom and alittle lazy when it comes to watching government.
Historically, when a nation travels down this road curtailing personal liberties, due process, ID cards etc. it does'nt come back, but gets even worse. They, as in the case of the Nazi's and Comminists, did it to their own in the end. People do not believe it can happen here and rally behind these programs, failing to understand that if justification for doing it to one class of people, justification can be used to do it to them.
I believe it was Benjamin Franklin who said "those who give up alittle freedom for alittle safety, deserve neither." (not exact quote but you get the drift.)
My 2 cents..

IIRC thats because packet writing requires writing to the TOC each time - overwriting what was there before . CDR's can't do this !

Just my $0.02 worth . FYI packet writing is a pile of cr@p , use

Yes I'll second that - truly the dog's ... :)

FYI you can record SSTV on a standard VCR if you feed it directly into the audio input . Better quality than a tape deck ...

Actually a minidisc recorder would likely work too - but these are expensive whereas scrap VCRs are next to nothing these days ...

Seeking to purchase an older Bearcat (Electra Corp.) model BC-101 programmable scanner.Has 16 channels and is programmed by binary coding using 16 switches on the front of the radio.
Cosmetic condition is NOT important, but MUST work AND PROGRAM properly, as well as RECEIVE programmed stations.No "problem" or "fixemup" units wanted, but again, dirty, dented, scratched, scraped, etc. is NOT important.
Please Email me directly with a DESCRIPTION of your unit and the price you are asking (BEST price in first Email, please...must be "REALISTIC" (not paying "new" price...) and NO 'dickering 'or 'offers' made or given.)
All replies answered. Thank you !!

Well sad to say, Ham radio even for emergencies is becoming a thing of the past. Newer technologies are here and coming, that Federal, State and local emergency services are using, that can be setup and be on the air in minutes. I like CW, but I can't think of any scenario where it would be absolutly needed, abeit nuclear war, where someone needs it. (In which case I for one, am not going to hang a dipole in a tre and pound a key..;P) or your homebrewing a transmitter from scratch on a desert island to call for coffee. Again, not downing CW, I enjoy CW, just technology has changed so much with satellite, microwave, etc. I don't think even alot of newer people are interested in it as they were 20 years ago. I think CW will be here as long as there is ham radio if nothing else than tradition. But there is a different people today coming in expecting different things like satellite, microwave, computer radio interface, etc. Not that thats bad, just times change.. Even homebrewing is becoming more of a "specialty". Mass production made alot of stuff in ham radio cheaper to buy than make. I personally like to make as much of my gear that I can. Also like to restore old receivers and transmitters, but the guys who do it are getting fewer. Lots of the old Elmers are SK or too old to teach anymore. For guys just coming in the hobby and even for guys like myself, you could learn alot from the old timers but not enough people are learning to take the place of the ones gone. I mostly grew up just when the old tube gear was going to solid state so right off I was handicapped with the old stuff not knowing anything or finding anyone that knew anyting about it. Most of the new gear is "Plug and Pray", fry a board you throw it out and get a new one, never understanding how it works.. I read my butt off on every book I could find. I really believe I would be much more knowledagble if I had some experienced Elmers around to show me some things. But I did ok considering I was learning a technology that most guys had forgotten. (probably alot of you guys were in the same boat..) I think mass production of gear and the loss of good Elmers have seriously crippled new people as far as learning. Shame really. Nothing like firing up an old rig and making a contact or hearing a station on a radio you repaired or made yourself. The thrill of something you made or repaired is something that few hams experience today. This is what I really think is missing today. Enough ranting..Thanks for reading..

I have one. Next, why don't you learn all about the square root key on yours? You'll be amazed what happens when you use it.

Once again, to obtain the peak value for a 120V rms sine wave, key in:

and you will get 169.705627 volts, or 169.71 volts to five significant digits It is left as an exercise for the real moron among us to figure out how to correctly calculate the peak-to-peak voltage (hint: you have to use the square root key this time too).

I don't think you can do it. I have every lack of confidence in you, electronics nimrod.

2088. 5 wpm code test

I'm starting to learn Morse Code, and and gearing up for the 5 wpm code test. Was wondering, from any of the VEC's out there, or from folks who have been there and done that, I understand the method used is the Farnsworth Method, with higher speed characaters, but with longer spaces in between each character to average out to 5 wpm. Is the speed of the actual characters at 20 wpm, or 13 wpm? I'd like to learn the code for what the test requires, at that speed, but spaced out to 5 wpm. Right now, I know a, e, i, m, n, o, s, t, the period and SK. I feel as if I'm doing well. I'm using NuMorse Pro, which seems to be a good software package, and an making CD sample sets, to play in the truck while I drive to work, etc. So, anyone out there know if the FCC code test is 20 wpm Farnsworth, or 13 wpm Farnsworth?

Regards,

Van

Roger is easily confused. He has two, count em', TWO butt-plugs. He uses one for his oral cavity and the other for his rectal cavity. One is meant to keep his words in and the other is meant to keep the Lavender Lads out. Trouble is he oft becomes disoriented and forgets which one to remove for the relevant occasion. Can you help him? The answer could be even more confusing.

While trying to "improve" the circuit of my MFJ-901B tuner, I think I may have fouled it up. I attempted to add a movable tap, using a short length of wire and an alligator clip, by removing the lead to one of the tap points I never use (tap 'K'). I unsoldered the two caps, in order to get easy access, and now that everything is back together, I can't get a match, or anything like it (off the scale SWR readings) on any frequency, any band.

Nothing else is changed, and I have ruled out the rig and the coax jumper between the rig and tuner by testing on a dummy load. The caps check good, nothing is shorted to ground there. I am a little confused about how to check the coil and coil switch, though. There is a lead from between the two caps to the top of the coil, and then 12 taps spaced along the coil, each running to a lug on the switch. For the time being I have removed the jumper I had added and not reinstalled the connection between the coil and switch for position 'K'. I used mimimal heat when soldering/unsoldering, and there is no apparent heat damage to the switch, so I am puzzled what could be wrong.

I did remove the factory supplied 4:1 balun, and have not reinstalled it. I am presently using the "wire" and "ground" lugs to connected to a ladderline fed V (the system works OK like that, out of balance maybe, but I plan to add a coax-choke-balun once I get the tuner working again). Like I said, all was well till this misguided attemtp on my part to improve things, which were perfectly workable to begin with!. Please help me fix my tuner so I can get back on the air! Thanks!

Roger himself has spelling difficulties. As per example....
"Behing"...a cross between being and behind?
"Feamle"...I think he meant female.
"Losser"...only loser Roger can do it better.
"Ignroant"...typical, considering the source.
"Sluprs"...only Rogie knows what this means.
"Travelled"...a Rogerism, replete with ignorance.
"Postss"...pssst...Roger..that should be Posts.
"Defgenerate"...well, it's Roger's word...
"Faity"...he meant to say Fairy, but you know Roger.
"Distribiution"...Roger likes using phonics.
"Biotch"...he meant Bitch, but his phonics took over again.
"Methjadone"...a West Virginia substitute for Heroin.
"Anoinymous"...a cross between anonymous and annoying?
"Sumbliminal"...one of Roger's favorites. A sandwhich with lettuce and no meat.
"Recepticle"...either of Roger's moist cavaties.
"Cociane"...a West Virginia drug of choice?
"Tiome"...Roger meant to say Time...but his fingers were numb.
"Beraking"...no definition. Could mean 'beraking' the leaves, but only Roger knows.
"Amny"...he meant 'any', but again the thick little fingers got confused.
"Nlay"...a town in Maylaysia? Vermont?
"Al;ong"...only Wussman knows what this means.
"Becasu"...well, becasu Roger is not the brightest bulb on the tree.
And last, but far from the least is, "Seperation". Why? Because Roger cannot "seperate" his suppurations from his protestations. They are one and the same.

With this being posted I will now turn the discussion over to Roger. He will of course post more filth and do what he does best...plagiarize. Look for the Milquetoast to do the unoriginal, do what he does the only way he knows....plagiarize, plagiarize and plagiarize.
Dance, Roger. Dance.

I got it from George at GigaParts (www.gigaparts.com). Icom's $50 coupon expires 02/14, and the free DSP ends 03/31.

The Alinco has quite a following, as well. If you haven't already, check the reviews on all three at eham.net. While you are there, there are some good comparisons of the IC-718 and FT-840 in a thread on the company reviews forum.

It is a tough decision. If I'd had the money, I might have gone with the 706MKIIG or FT-100D and had it all in one package. If I could not have gone ahead with the purchase while the incentives were running on the 718, I might have looked closer at the Alinco, myself.

For me it came down to my primary interest (SSB and CW 75/40/20m), the 718 was the most bang for the least buck. So far, it looks like I made the right decision for me.

Good luck which ever way you go.

I'm not familiar with that one, but have you checked carefully to make sure you didn't bridge anything with solder while you were working in there? It seems that when I assemble something that doesn't work, about 90% of the time, the fault lies in some little bit of solder shorting something out...of course, it can't ever be found until after I've disassembled everything and checked every component :(

Depends a bit on the VEC. I believe the ARRL uses 16wpm but learning 13 won't hurt.

Might I suggest a different tack on the groups you use. Get A, W, J, and 1 into the act and add R, L, P after. If you find it interesting, use my That's something else. Duh.

If you're using the tuner to feed open wire (or twin lead) feeders, the balun is essential. This isn't a choke "balun," it's an honest to god balun that converts the unbalanced output of your rig or tuner to a balanced feed. The tuner won't feed open wire without it.

Don't scrap your ARES nets just yet. If 9-11 is any indication the reverse may be true, at least for a while. Many agencies had come to rely on cell phones (some had even scrapped their radios) only to find the cell net hopelessly jammed when everybody and their dog tried to use it at once. That's why officials are scrambling to change the system so they can cut off "non-essential users" (ie, us); but the telcos are saying "prohibitively expensive".

To answer your initial question, check with the testing station. Some testing stations use Farnsworth and others don't. I believe that the testing stations that are associated with the ARRL use Farnsworth.
Others can optionally use it. Point your browser at "http://www.arrl.org" and click on the link near the top of the page for "Exams". Do a search in your area. There should be phone numbers or email addresses to direct your questions.

However, those testing stations that are associated with the ARRL and use Farnsworth operate at 13-15 WPM. Below is a small excerpt from a ARRL Letter dated June 22, 2001 and available in it's intirety at "http://www.arrl.org/arrlletter/01/0622/". Read the whole thing. There is a lot of good information there.

The ARRL Letter
Vol. 20, No. 25
June 22, 2001

==>AMATEUR MORSE TESTING CHANGES EFFECTIVE JULY 1

New Morse code exam standards go into effect Sunday, July 1, for all Volunteer Examiner Coordinators. The new standards call for Farnsworth character speed in the 13-to-15 WPM range and the end of multiple-choice questions for routine Morse code exams.

Note that they are putting a end to the "multiple-choice" questions.
You will need 1 full minute of solid copy to pass.

Also, on the same site, at "http://www.arrl.org/FandES/ead/learncw/" you will find a lot of good tips on learning CW. There is a link on that page, "http://www.qsl.net/k7qo/", that connects to a on-line CW training course. I haven't tried it, but it wasn't around when I took my CW tests.

When I was studying for the CW tests, I used a free software program called Morse Academy. I didn't use it to initially learn CW, but used the testing option. This generates tests that conform to what you will hear at the testing station. It can be set, like most other software, for a separate word speed and character speed, like 5 WPM at a 13 WPM character rate. Just do a Yahoo search on "Morse Academy" and you should be able to find out where to download it from.

I used an IC-718 for about eight months and in my opinion, the DSP module was worth the money. I noticed a significant improvement in all modes(SSB, CW and PSK). I usually had it set on 4 for CW and 6 for SSB depending on band conditions. I also sprang for the CW filter. I never saw much benefit from the Noise Blanker.
Hope this helps.

Actually, 1 minute solid copy is not the only exam method allowed. VE teams are encouraged to use 10 question essay type fill-in-the-blank exams. This is mentioned further down in the ARRL Web article.

So, many VE teams will give a person two opportunities to pass the Morse exam--the 10 question quiz or 1 minute of solid copy. The 1 minute of solid copy is defined as 25 characters of perfect copy. The characters are counted as follows. The letters A-Z count as 1 character. Numbers, punctuation, and prosigns count as 2 characters. Thus my call, N0NB, counts as 5 characters or one word.

No DUMBASS, learn to fucking read. No wonder you took 9 years to get a 4 year degree. But, then in your family that's the norm, since "daddy the drunk" took 7 years to getr his 4 year degree.

Are you implying that you actually "know" these things, when in fact you had to go to "Whatis.com" to find them? You already fucked up before regarding a magnet and a coil, which you must've shoved up your syphlitic ass, or did Meheh.

[/Joanie]

Joanie the English-impaired imbecile and Mensa member slobbered the following in <a40omm$9lq$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"What the fuck is a rhyming dictionary?"

Joanie fucks up the English language as always with the following Ebonics slobbering in <a460aedvl0@pita.alt.net>:
"Still haven't master that sig delimiter, I see."

Shiteating hypocrite Joanie makes more excuses for his fuckup in (f)lame in <a3jdgt$9fu$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"Useless fucks like yourself who can't hack it in alt.flame always say that."

"John Shiteater Kimball" <johnkimb@hotmail.com> the "writer"
slobbers, head up his fatass as usual in message <a3jdgt$9fu$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"Your claiming that every post you make is a troll? I suggest you look up the term "troll", then figure out why you're a such miserable failure."

Joanie the Ebonics-babbling fool slobbered in <a3gjl0egk3@dosa.alt.net>:
"You can thank me later, when I've finished squicking your eye socket."

<a3972n$oc2$3@dosa.alt.net>:
"That's didn't answer the question."

Joanie shows off his "grammar" skills and hypocrisy with the following slobber:
"It's usually a good idea to check your own post for fuck-ups when grammer or spell laming, Woger, you fucking idiot." in <9rrsbb$53e$4@dosa.alt.net>

Joanie fucks up his typo lame by showing his ill-educated background in English in <a2h0sr$668$2@pita.alt.net>:
"you can't even refer to a diodes characteristics without fucking it up."

Joanie admits he lacks the common knowledge of a household electrical outlet's RMS voltage in <a36bj9$5bg$0@dosa.alt.net>:
"You didn't specify the RMS voltage...Assuming 115VAC (Joanie's whining why I didn't specify common knowledge)"

Joanie shows off that 2nd grade education with the following IKYABWAI:
"You're "Guide to Gay Lifestyle" handbook doesn't count." in <9r3sr9rkib@dosa.alt.net>

Joanie shows off his "William and Mary" [William and Mary School for the Mentally Handicapped, that is] education when he drooled:
"And what's you excuse?" in <9u2v8g$vp7$6@pita.alt.net>

Joanie the Shiteating Kimball demonstrates his lack of coherent thought or English
skills when he slobbered out more hypocrisy out of his syphlitic mouth in <a2hbrolr3@pita.alt.net>:
"Do you always have this habit of proving peoples points for them?

Joanie the Pulitzer prize winner slobbered incoherently:
"I cant' believe I'm agreeing with you, Woger."
in <9unp1urm0@dosa.alt.net>.

Joanie the ill-educated, perverted pedophile slobbered:
"Lets ask 8L0J08, maybe he'll know." in <a0fcfg$n3e$1@pita.alt.net>

Joanie the English major fucks up again yet denies he never needed a dictionary in in <a43ajlfli2@pita.alt.net>:
"I guess talent-less<...>"

Roger Wiseman <kc8jbo@alt.net> proves Joanie's a "fucking slobbering illiterate", and laughs as Shiteater Kimball fucks up as usual while attempting to spell the word "talent-less" in <a43ajlfli2@pita.alt.net>

No kidding, I spent a month in WV last summer during the disaster relief effort after the flooding they had. Using the VHF radios the Red Cross has in their Emergency Response Vehicles was a challenge, we definately could have used some more hams to facilitate better communication.

And I ran into that again in NYC, I spent the majority of 3 months there with the Red Cross, the cell phone they issued me was pi$$ing me off. Too many people in this line of work are relying too much on cell phones, this is why I took my amateur test last saturday (and passed), and am now working on getting the code down for my general ticket.

I agree Vito,
We need more people involved in ARES. We get perhaps one or two stations signing on in my area. I agree that ham radio would be good in an emergency. Cell phones in alot of areas are hit and miss, as in mine. In alot of the Western states such as mine, radio would be, in any manmade or natural disaster, the only way to communicate. And, we have the gear and can set up in a house or the field if needed should local emergency communications are knocked out.
What disturbs me is lack of participation in areas should an emergency occur. In alot of areas we're simply not ready. 73's Jim

While I appreciate the suggestion, the only thing that happens when you remove a balun from between balanced and unbalanced parts of a circuit is that the currents in the ideally balanced part of the system (forward of where the balun "ought" to go) will probably be unbalanced, with the principle result of feeder radiation. I have had to feed twinlead or ladderline a few times via a coax connector before, with just these results.

I've also used parallel feeders with an L-match designed for single-ended antennas, using the random wire and ground connections, in both instances still able to get a good match and get out well. Some may quibble that the line radiation could reduce received signal strength and its reciprocal, and its probably without doubt that the added vertical component degrades signal:noise a few dB, but baluns are never very useful impedence matching devices in wide-range adjustable networks like the 'T' feeding a multiband antenna. They do admirably well matching to single-band folded-dipoles, double-zepps, and loops, but above 10:1 SWRs they saturate and worse, and cease doing their job as baluns, and even as impedence transformers if you push them much past 20:1.

That's why I removed the tiny (a single 1" core, no tape, 18 ga. plastic insul. wire, sheesh!) 4:1 "voltage" balun within a few days of bringing the tuner home from the hamfest. I will replace it will a proper 1:1 choke balun at the input, once I am done with the switch mystery.

Still looking for what was wrong, though I replaced the switch and we are QRV again here at KD7BFX. Old switch tests fine once removed from the circuit, all I did was r&r it, and all other components and wiring reads spot on for L, C, & R with either switch in or out the circuit. Mysteriouser all the time! One never knows though it could have been those damn gremlins again. . .

I have a website for the antenna I have developed for AO-40. This is NOT a BBQ grill dish, this is the real thing! Watertight HELICAL feed, NO aperture blockage,2' dish is 20.5 dBi gain, 3' dish is 25 dBi gain. 2" crossboom mount.A true performer. Signals from AO-40 at unbelievable squint angles. You should hear what you have missed! I have also posted tips you may find interesting. AMSAT has expressed intrest in my antenna to be sold at Dayton, but I have a limited supply. Drop by my site and just tell me what you think if you like.

No DUMBASS, learn to fucking read. No wonder you took 9 years to get a 4 year degree. But, then in your family that's the norm, since "daddy the drunk" took 7 years to getr his 4 year degree.

Are you implying that you actually "know" these things, when in fact you had to go to "Whatis.com" to find them? You already fucked up before regarding a magnet and a coil, which you must've shoved up your syphlitic ass, or did Rev. Fred shove them up your ass for you with his foot the last time you posted in alt.2600?

Bzzzt!!!!! Moron......169.69 *2 (which is the peak to peak formula) = 339.37 volts.
Get a REAL caculator, CHEAP-ASS.

Gentlemen,

I undress those of youse who are using Windows and Outlook Express and what I'm telling you just might save you a lot of grief. So put down your coloring book and crayons.

Are you noticing all of the gookie spam flooding into your inboxes? Hieroglyphics when traced are coming in from Taiwan, Red China, South Korea and Japan. They're being sent through APNIC which doesn't give a damn about spam so don't bother complaining to those fools. Furthermore have you noticed that in an attempt at deleting the gookie cookies, strange things happen to your PCs? Like pop up windows which keep popping up all day? Freezeups? Lots of annoying stuff.

So I decided to report the Asian garbage thru SPAMCOP.COM which cannot stop it. Yesterday I called the IBM PC tech staff to see if I could pick up a pointer or two and YES INDEED; Andy was very helpful and what I'm going to tell you applies to all PCs which use OE as the mail client or for that matter any other mail software which offers window pane viewing.

I'm going to concentrate on OE for obvious reasons and maybe it relates also to AOL but am not sure since it's been a few years since I used it. To begin with, I use ,as my operating system, Windows Millennium. Now take a look at your OE page. You'll see on the top left, folders. On the bottom left there are CONTACTS. On the top right you'll see the inbox subjects, senders, size and time. What do you see on the bottom right? A pane or window in which an e-mail message is visible without your having to actually open it...it's automatically there. And that can create BIG problems because when a message automatically appears, it's as if you opened it thereby opening the door for all sorts of viruses, bugs, annoyances etc. So we must defend our PCs against such attacks and one sure way of doing it is by CLOSING that specific pane.How?

Go to your toolbar and go to VIEW. In VIEW, look for LAYOUT. The top is labeled BASIC and the bottom is labeled PREVIEW PANE. If it's checked, UNCHECK IT. It's the culprit. Then when you go back to your basic OE page, you'll still see your folders, contacts, message subjects but the latter will now require you to either double click on each message to open it or right click to highlight OPEN and then to either right or left click to actually open it. The important thing is that if you see a suspicious message, simply highlight it and hit DELETE. You'll be opening nothing and save yourself grief from a bug invasion.

Agree with one post. Put it back together to original condition.
If you want to design your own tuner, get some parts and tinker.
Now my rant, I have restored receivers and other equiptment that hams have "modified". 95% of these mods either undermine the equiptment or outright ruin it, resulting in having to replace burned out parts, broken parts or rewiring to get the equiptment to function. These companies have spent hundrends of thousands of dollars in research and delvelopement to design a working piece and someone comes along with a soldering item and want to "redesign" it. (I am working on one rig now that is backward wired from the powersupply, another with a recifier mod that resulted in a blown power supply.).
My suggestion is, unless you have years of experience and training in electronic engineering, get some parts, read some books and tinker before trashing a piece of equiptment that was working fine in the first place. If it ain't broke, don't fix it. *wheew!!..I feel better already..:)

And threw it out the window so they could make something more cheaply.

Is a 1965 Corsa's suspension the best possible design because of all the engineering that went into it? Maybe all the 24ga wiring in my YL's Kia should have been left alone because, after all, the engineers figured it was OK.

Chalk-up another acceptance for eQSL's......

Confirmation was received today from the president-elect of the 3905 Century Club that their awards program will accept hard copies of eQSL's as confirmation. The hard copy can be printed by the recipient on his home computer if desired, or you can use eQSL's service to have them printed and mailed to you.

Either is OK for Century Club awards.

Woger didn't write that! Doc says so and Roger says so. It is all a smear campaign which has been carefully orchestrated by evil people for the past four or five years.

Heh, it was all started by a forged "finger", according to our resident liar who also insisted at one point that he never had an AOL account!

Of course, lying is second nature to the guy. See sig.

====================
In message <a297sp$1np$0@dosa.alt.net> Roger Wiseman auto-lamed:

"BTW, fuckwit Lee, it's 'alt.radio.scanner.flame_test,' not 'alt.radio.scanner.flame-fest,' DUMBASS."

and then lied about it in message <a29deo$go7$0@dosa.alt.net>, where he wrote:

"Get the SPERM out of your eyes, It says 'flame_fest,' fuckhead.
And quit post-editing, you degenerate."

Why does Roger Wiseman hate women and children so much? I notice he saves his most vicious and filthy perverted attacks for children and women. An example is Oris Grimm's children. Wiseman has singled them out for some of the most perverted, sick and obscene attacks I've ever seen on Usenet!

Woger is so fucking stupid. He made a shit load of death threats against me on a bogus Web TV account that was easily traced back to his West Vagina ISP.

Were I a netcop he'd be with that particular ISP at this point :) Now, watch Woger lie about the whole thing.... :) :) :)

"Behing"...a cross between being and behind?
"Feamle"...I think he meant female.

"Losser"...only loser Roger can do it better.
"Ignroant"...typical, considering the source.
"Sluprs"...only Rogie knows what this means.
"Travelled"...a Rogerism, replete with ignorance.
"Postss"...pssst...Roger..that should be Posts.
"Defgenerate"...well, it's Roger's word...
"Faity"...he meant to say Fairy, but you know Roger.
"Distribiution"...Roger likes using phonics.
"Biotch"...he meant Bitch, but his phonics took over again.
"Methjadone"...a West Virginia substitute for Heroin.
"Anoinymous"...a cross between anonymous and annoying?
"Sumbliminal"...one of Roger's favorites.
"Recepticle"...either of Roger's moist cavaties.
"Cociane"...a West Virginia drug of choice?
"Tiome"...Roger meant to say Time...but his fingers were numb.
"Beraking"...no definition. Could mean 'beraking' the leaves,
"Amny"...he meant 'any',
"Nlay"...a town in Maylaysia? Vermont?
"Al;ong"...only Wussman knows what this means.
"Becasu"...well, becasu Roger is not the brightest bulb on the tree.
"Seperation". Why? Because Roger cannot "seperate" from his mommie!

No no no, not even close Wogey. You've revealed too much about yourself that even the casual observer knows these are mere figments, delusions of your sick brain, created to ease the pain that tortures that sick mind of yours! You are an angry man, near 50 years old, who hates women and children, who lives in a house owned by his mommy. You are a failure at 50 Woger, and you know it!

"Ignroant"...typical, considering the source.
"Sluprs"...only Rogie knows what this means.
"Travelled"...a Rogerism, replete with ignorance.
"Postss"...pssst...Roger..that should be Posts.
"Defgenerate"...well, it's Roger's word...
"Faity"...he meant to say Fairy, but you know Roger.
"Distribiution"...Roger likes using phonics.
"Biotch"...he meant Bitch, but his phonics took over again.
"Methjadone"...a West Virginia substitute for Heroin.
"Anoinymous"...a cross between anonymous and annoying?
"Sumbliminal"...one of Roger's favorites.
"Recepticle"...either of Roger's moist cavaties.
"Cociane"...a West Virginia drug of choice?
"Tiome"...Roger meant to say Time...but his fingers were numb.
"Beraking"...no definition. Could mean 'beraking' the leaves,

"Amny"...he meant 'any',
"Nlay"...a town in Maylaysia? Vermont?
"Al;ong"...only Wussman knows what this means.
"Becasu"...well, becasu Roger is not the brightest bulb on the tree.
"Seperation". Why? Because Roger cannot "seperate" from his mommie!

2188. RFI from AC line

I'm building a new home and trying very hard to make it a low RFI environment. I'm high in the mountains with few neighbors. I'm the electrician.

I have dual 200 amp AC services, all the way from the pole: one for "dirty" loads (mostly things with electric motors and other inductive loads) and one for "clean" (the radios) loads. I am filling up the "dirty" load panel faster than the "clean" load panel and I am looking for loads that I might move to the clean load panel.

Two possible candidates are the electric hot water heater (conventional Rheem 50 gallon with dual 4500 watt elements) and the electric range (GE Profile, smoothtop, conventional oven - NO convection). How noisy are these?

The only things that are noisy are devices with semiconductor power controls; UPS, SCR controlled light switches and the like. Since most RFI is radiated and picked up by an antenna, your approach is costly but ineffective, unless you bury it all including the primary out to where it is no longer within line of sight of the tallest antenna you plan to install. Just out of curiosity, what, besides your radio do you consider quiet?

Induction motors are one of the quietest loads found as far as RFI is concerned unless it is equipped with an adjustable speed drive (ASD) whereupon it becomes among the noisiest and hardest to cure. The water heater and range are silent, UNLESS they use semiconductor power control. Even universal motors are getting quieter these days, and can be easily quieted with a couple of capacitors on the brushes. What else?

Hi Stan,

I hope you are not using Romex wire. Throw it all away and go with MC wiring. The galvanized steel jacket is best but the aluminum is a close second for shielding. Romex wire acts as a giant antenna for noise any and all. Usually the wire is long enough to pick up nearby lightning strikes and send that energy into all of your household items that are plugged in. The MC wire that is galvanized steel works well against magnetically induced noise (H field) as well as electrically induced noise (E field). The less expensive wire which is aluminum MC is only effective against electrically induced noise. Two panels is a complete waste of time and money. Put your time and money into using the right materials and an effective grounding system. More noise from switching and motors is the result of a bad or poor ground. Make sure you use a lightning protector at the main panel and Triplite noise/surge protectors at every electronic device in the house. You will not have any noise problems or lightning issues. Remember to use only shielded wire for everything in the house. This includes heating system low voltage wire, phone lines, RG6 for cable TV, door bell wires, and last but not least the garage door opener sensors and button wires. If you forget anyone of them, noise and lightning will remind you soon enough on a mountain.

Good luck,
Frank (N1SIF)

I put in a single 350 amp feed underground to service panel when we build 13 years ago. From the service panel I feed 100 amps underground to my barn. Even arc welding in the barn or use of other high wattage items in the barn cause no voltage drops of noise problems at the house. I wired any watt hungry items with the next largest gauge wire above recommend size (30 amp load I used 8 ga instead of 10). This got rid of any voltage drops when these items start. For the wiring that went to my radio room, I took a path that allowed me to stay as far away as possible from other general house wiring. Stay away from the high wattage wiring as most of these watt hungry items have thermostats that have point contacts for switching. For the 220 line to the radio room I used shielded entrance cable, splitting off 220 for the amp and 2 110 lines. I never get noise from any motors or heat elements. I do get a little noise from the microwave at times, the monitor for the computer here in the radio room is my biggest RFI producer.

2200. email from ARRL - president - eqsl's and DXCC !

Hello interested Hams...

I have had some interesting, courteous, and informative emails with the ARRL president Jim Haynie, W5JBP concerning the recent flap about eQSL acceptance for DXCC.

Jim was also nice enough to forward to me in-house ARRL email from Bill Moore to Jim which goes a long way to further explain the likelihood of eqSL cards being accepted for DXCC as eQSL web site now states. Jim has asked me not to include the actual verbatim email from Bill..but has encouraged me to post "just the facts as Bill has laid them out" (Jim's words to me) .... and so to the best of my abilities I'll do that now....if you want to skip ahead I can tell you it still looks like eQSL cards can be and will be accepted by the ARRL as long as some important steps are taken....

Here are cut and paste excerpts from Bill's email to Jim....
1. It seems people have not read the entire message, especially the part that says "acting as QSL manager". On his site I see where he has OK for sending e-QSLs, not paper QSLs.In order for us to accept anything from him we would need a letter from each station he "manages" authorizing this

2. Then, we'd need something better than his word that he is verifying logs each time a request comes in (something we do not think he will be willing to do with all the stations he has logs for).

3. The requesting station must send information listing the specific QSL information then the manager must check the log for it. I believe the term for not doing this is pre-emptive QSLing.

4. As I have mentioned to all who have written, that ARRL has not changed its policy in any way regarding electronic QSLs.

end of cut and paste.....

To all,

I have recently acquired thousands of new 3.5mm mono and stereo adapters.
These are Audio Accessories model PA103, and are available for .25 cents each, or $2.00 for a box of 10.

Great for using stereo headphones with most mono scanners.

Check out http://www.qsl.net/w8mmq/adapters.html for additional information.
Email me with any comments or questions. Detailed pictures are available at the web site.

No, giveing bands as "wavelength, frequency, wavelength" is what was strange.

Don't see much ham equipment on the scanner group.

"The coziness between the administration and Enron means that the scandal could conceivably implicate political figures in ways that demand an independent prosecutor. But that hasn't happened yet; nobody has credibly alleged a crime by a member of the administration. And as long as the focus of the inquiry remains on crimes by the corporation and its accountants, the Justice Department can handle the matter."

- An excerpt from the Washington Post's February 9, 2002 editorial pooh-poohing Senator Fritz Hollings' call for an Enron independent counsel.

"Whitewater represents precisely the kind of case in which an independent counsel ought to be appointed. We say that even though -- and and this should be stressed -- there has been no credible charge in this case that either the president or Mrs. Clinton did anything wrong. Nevertheless, it is in the public interest -- and in the president's as well -- to put the inquiry in independent hands... Nor is it protection enough to say that the investigation is in the hands of career [Justice Department] attorneys. To whom do they report?"

- An excperpt from the Washington Post's January 5, 1994 editorial pooh-poohing Attorney General Janet Reno's assertion that there wasn't enough in the Whitewater allegations to warrant the appointment of an Independant counsel. Funny how this "liberal" newspaper managed to get it wrong both times, and played right into the hands of the nation's conservative movementarians, both times.

A few years ago MindSpring politely suggested, like the gentlemen they are, that using this NG to flame was not the right thing to do. So Tim, KK7HO, and I started using alt.radio.scanner.flame_fest for that purpose and it turned out successfully. .As I view this board again, I notice slam banging, screaming, flaming etc. once again. This group should cater to ham radio related subjects and nothing more and if you continue posting off topic subjects, off topic garbage stuff, your ISPs are going to get ticked.

You have a complaint about a fellow ham? Exercise it but NOT here. Come to the flame_fest board and if you do, leave out defamation of character, libel, attacks on family and filthy language in general. It's indeed possible to vent your discontent without resorting to sewer materiel. Furthermore, when on flame_fest, do NOT cross post. Other groups have no interest in what battlers say; please realize it so don't push the envelope of netiquette.

Care of: firas74@hotmail.com

To Rich Riel,

I commend you on a letter that has proved that not all "conservatives" have to use profanity in saying that "Bush is da man!" However, I don't think you or many of "your friends" understand what has happened to America in the last few months.

Contrary to your belief, America did NOT humiliate Bin Laden. I would say the opposite happened. Here's a guy in a cave who managed to sneak up on the GREAT U.S. of A and kick it's ass... even if for a few tragic seconds. It does not take much for a country as strong and wealthy as America to topple one of the weakest countries in the world, but it took some extensive and cunning planning for the likes of Bin Laden to do what he did. Anyone can shoot at a frog from far away and kill it, but how do you live down the fact that the frog managed to cut off the legs of an elephant before it was shot?

Instead of being proud of your President at having beaten down the beggar, you should be wondering how it was that such a great country as ours managed to be blind to an event that must have taken years of planning... right here in our back yard. While I am not condoning what Bin Laden has done, I am just tired of the general public simply absorbing what is said by our kiss-ass media and believing that we are the victors here.

Here we are being fed stories about how we should not let the terrorists win. That's why you practically have to get naked before boarding a plane. You have to surrender every email you type to the possibility of it being read by a federal agent (by the way, if an agent is reading this, please kiss my ass and get a real job!). You have to buy a car to "keep America rolling", and if you tape an American flag to your car you are automatically promoted to a patriot.

Meanwhile, Bush gets to spend the 80 billion dollars on the military he has been wanting to spend. Our Social Security fund has been tapped into. And after a presidential campaign of mostly fighting about how the surplus should be spent, we now have a deficit. And of course, all this time, we should only worry about what our ex-president did with a cigar and a pussy, but we should never even think about asking for an explanation on how a few friends of Bush and Cheney managed to steal billions of dollars worth of people's retirement accounts.

Funny, it seems to me that what Bin Laden has done is to give Bush a green light for everything the Republicans have been begging for during the past 9 years. All of this, and the press would have you believe that 80% of the "public" support the president. Yeah right... and frogs can kill elephants.

Welcome to the ever increasing group of people who derive a great deal of pleasure and knowledge from improving things we don't fully understand. They call us "Hams". I wouldn't be surprised if your next tuner was "Homebrew". BTW did you notice the quality or lack of it, of the tuner's internal components? Bet you could do better with some surplus compnents and a big steel chassis.

The FCC has some killer questions on its exam when it retests people. Some of the questions are word problems designed to discover if the prospective amateur operator can work with antennas, supporting cables, and the resulting guying and weight problems without simply plugging numbers into handbook formulas.

KC8JBO got the correct answer to the following problem on his first try:

"A coaxial cable draped over the peak of a roof is the same length on each side. It weighs one third of a pound per foot. On one end hangs a monkey holding a banana, and on the other end a weight equal to the weight of the monkey. The banana weighs two ounces per inch. The coax is as long (in feet) as the age of the monkey (in years), and the weight of the monkey (in ounces) is the same as the age of the monkey's mother. The combined age of the monkey and its mother is thirty years. One half of the weight of the monkey, plus the weight of the banana, is one fourth as much as the weight of the weight and the weight of the coax. The monkey's mother is half as old as the monkey will be when it is three times as old as its mother was when she she was half as old as the monkey will be when when it is as old as its mother will be when she is four times as old as the monkey was when it was twice as its mother was when she was one third as old as the monkey was when it was old as is mother was when she was three times as old as the monkey was when it was one fourth as old as it is now. How long is the banana?"

Unfortunately, he missed the question on how to calculate the peak voltage of a 120 volt rms sine wave.

Maybe next time ...

When the heck is Glenn Baxter going to have his Ham ticket taken from him? How much more proof does Riley need to take action? Baxter played his stupid "broadcast" again on 14.275 this evening and it was the same drivel he has been playing for the last week. Gee whiz! His "sh_t" is getting old, and getting old real fast!
It is time for Baxter to go by the wayside and the sooner, the better. Riley...please, please rescind Glenn's license and pop him with a hefty fine, too! How much longer are you going to let him go on?
Glenn's broadcast closed with a statement, "Ask what you can do for Ham Radio." Hey, Glenn. What you can do for Ham Radio is to get off the air! You would be doing Ham Radio a real service for the first time in your life.

Unfortunately for your sorry, pathetic, loser ass, the peak voltage question is on the _Extra Class _question pool and reads as follows:

Question E8A08

What is the peak voltage at a common household electrical power outlet?
a - 240 Volts b - 170 Volts c - 120 Volts d- 340 Volts

B is the correct answer.

Try again. and if you're so proud of your ham license, why is it you never

I'm using WinAPRS.

1) How do I know if I'm being received? I found the "where is _1___" page, but there's a significant time delay, and I'm trying to figure out how little power I can get away with. If possible, I'd like to see the text from the station digipeating me.

2) What's the format for lat/lon in the packets? It looks like ddmm.mm, but I can't find it anywhere in the documentation.

3) Will my TNC continue to beacon properly when WinAPRS is down? I checked using a dumb terminal program, and the beacon text isn't used by WinAPRS.

Please respond directly to cruiser1100NOSPAM@cox.net, removing the NOSPAM,
as I don't get to this group very often.

Actually I find it pretty normal. We refer to them in the ways they are most often labelled. Nearly everyone I know calls 144-148 MHz by it's wavelength as with 50-54 MHz. But .70 cm is most often referred to, at least hearabouts, by it's frequency. So it seems perfectly normal to me.

Then how come you answered 169.69 volts? Answer: You don't know about significant figures. Answer "b" is correct to two or three significant figures (depending upon how you count the trailing zero), but the five significant figures that you were using were incorrect.

Fortunately, you correctly answered the banana lengh question, as did John Kimball.

One other possibility is to contact the Quarter Century Wireless Association at http://www.qcwa.org and get them to look it up for you. They maintain a library of old call books to verify people's eligibility for membership when, like you, they no longer have their original information.

When I joined, they were able to find my original call very quickly.

It wouldn't be in the ARRL Manual (sic) anyway; it would be in the Radio Amateur's Call Book, no connection with ARRL. Flying Horse (the publisher of the call book) had a website up at one time; I don't know if they still do. They might be able to help if they're still around.
They no longer publish a hard copy version, however they were doing CD-ROM versions. I don't know if they still are.

I don't know if QCWA will be much help, either. I doubt they've computerized the entries in all the call books they have, and without that, it'd be tough to cross reference by name or location since the listings were only by call letters.

You might also try the FCC. I seem to recall they had a service available for when people were trying to get old calls back in the Vanity Call program.

He's a sanctimonious hypocrite. He says out of one side of his mouth that his days of "radio wars" are over, and says the opposite with the other side of his mouth. He threatens people over the air, and is waging a "radio war" with K1MAN. How the FCC lets that go on is something else.

They still are.

You can also take a look at http://www2.arrl.org/news/stories/2002/02/13/3/?nc=1 where it is claimed that "Records of licenses expiring from 1975 to 1994 are on microfiche, and the FCC can review these by call sign or by licensee name."

I'd take that to mean that you have an excellent chance of getting the FCC to look up the license for you, perhaps for a small fee.

And as to the Callbook, I haven't looked at an old one in quite some time, but I thought that it too was cross indexed by licensee name. In that case, an old Callbook, such as those retained by the QCWA should also do the trick.

If you came upon Roger Wiseman struggling in a raging river, and you had a choice between rescuing him or taking a prize-winning photograph, what shutter speed would you use?

Yes, you can run PACTOR ARQ with a sound card BUT NOT UNDER WINDOWS!

It is WINDOWS that is the problem. RITTY version 2.xx by K6STI will operate RTTY and PACTOR (RX and TX) using a sound card. But RITTY only operates under DOS! Unfortunately, RITTY is NOT free. You must buy it!

But Note the newer versions of RITTY only support RTTY not PACTOR. But I understand that you can still buy licences for version 2.xx from K6STI

If you really want to operate PACTOR without spending very much $$$, pick up an old RTTY terminal Unit like the AEA CP-1 for $10 off EBAY and run the FREE TERMAN93 program under DOS. TERMAN93 will let you operate RTTY, AMTOR and PACTOR under DOS using a simple TU.

(Another choice is to use the BMK-MULTY software by G4BMK which is apparently a little better than TERMAN93 but costs$$).

RESCUE RADIO: HAMS AID AT FALLBROOK CA. FIRE

Ham radio was on the scene as a wind-whipped fire raced through the remote north-western portion of Fallbrook California on Sunday February 10th. Sixteen homes were destroyed along with one sheriff's vehicle and two fire trucks. Among the houses that suffered damage was that of Grammy winner Rita Coolidge. An estimate 2600 acres were burned as this report is being prepared. Amateur Radio Newsline’s Norm Seeley, KI7UP, has the details:

--
According to Bob Gonsett, W6VR, Amateur radio operators were more than ready when the emergency the emergency hit. And so was their local repeater system:

W6VR: “We have two repeater systems that are tied together on Red Mountain that serve Fallbrook and Fallbrook is fortunately a hotbed of Amateur Radio activity. Lots of logistics communications took place in support of Red Cross activities, animal evacuations, people evacuations and it was a very, very busy repeater system which, incidentally, is backed up by emergency power.”

--

Gonsett, who is editor of the CGC Communicator broadcast industry newsletter says that hams were posted at key points in the community. This included the fire department, the sheriffs department, the hospital and the evacuation centers. Some hams provided mobile communications for animal rescue operations. Others, who specialize in evacuation matters and health and welfare traffic worked in conjunction with the American Red Cross to provide support. W6VR says that it was just about a textbook ham radio communications effort for both people and equipment.

--
W6VR: “Their performance was outstanding in every respect. The repeaters worked flawlessly. There was no jamming. The greater community pulled together on this one.”
--

Volunteers came from across the region. Bill and Wayne Dewey, WD6AHW and WD6AHX, served as the Net Control operators. A father and son team, the Dewey’s spent hours directing all radio communications on the Fallbrook Amateur Radio Club's repeaters. Another ham volunteer was Jess Mauk, KD6YEI, of San Diego. He manned a RACES van sent in from San Diego County. In all close to thirty radio amateurs served in the first wave of volunteer communicators. Gonsett says that hams were there because they wanted to help:

W6VR: “It was really heartwarming to find such an outpouring of devotion from the ham community in people coming up here and making their presence known and contributing as they could. They were all useful and the community leaders thanked us repeatedly for our roles.”
--

Most communications took place over the Fallbrook Amateur Radio Club’s dual redundancy repeater system This is actually two separate machines designed and built by Chris Durso, AA4CD. One outputs on 146.175 MHz and the other on 445.600 MHz. Both carry the same audio. In time of emergency anyone with a scanner radio in the Fallbrook and Temecula California area can tune to either frequency and hear all of the ham radio communications.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Norm Seeley, KI7UP.

One last note. According to Gonsett, one of the luckiest hams on Earth has to be Joel Brown, KE6FHS. Brown is the president of the Fallbrook Amateur Radio Club. His home survived the wildfire. Sadly, his immediate neighbor’s' house burned to the ground. (ARNewsline(tm), W6VR)

RADIO LAW: COURT THROWS OUR PIRATE RADIO LICENSING BAN

Just because a person one operated a pirate radio station is not enough reason for the FCC to ban him from ever getting a broadcasting permit. So says a Washington D.C. Federal Appeals court. Amateur Radio Newsline’s Paul Courson, WA3VJB, reports from the nations capitol:

The government is not allowed to use your past as a bootleg radio operator to block you from holding a legitimate broadcast license, according to a ruling from a federal appeals court February 8th.

But any victory might be short-lived for onetime pirate operators wanting to turn legit.

The case out of Washington DC involved Greg Ruggiero, a onetime bootleg radio station operator around New York. He challenged an FCC rule that bans those found guilty of pirate broadcasting from ever holding a license, or being formally associated with the recently-created low-power radio station service, an industry that has become known as FM microbroadcasting.

The appeals court agreed with Ruggiero's claim such a ban is unconstitutional as the law is now written. But the court also left open the possibility Congress could write a more narrow law in line with the First and Fifth Amendments. Part of the argument centered on a protest philosophy held by many unauthorized microbroadcasters, who see their bootleg ops as civil disobedience.

The appeals court, siding with the former bootlegger, said there was some evidence Congress, in writing the ban into broadcast law, meant to punish those with a protest message, without really improving future compliance with the law. They called it viewpoint discrimination, and said ... not allowed.

Communications law experts are mixed whether the ruling has implications beyond FM low-power broadcast licensing, including whether FCC can use violations in one service to administer broader punishment.

Traditionally, the FCC has kept open the option of revoking other licenses held by a violator, beyond the service where the violation took place. For example, someone in violation on the ham bands might have his commercial radiotelephone license pulled as well.

And what might this decision mean to Amateur Radio? Especially those cases where ham licenses are challenged based on character issues. According to retired ARRL President George Wilson, W4OYI, probably very little. George, who is also an attorney, says that despite the ruling, the FCC still has the authority on a case by case basis to deny a license to a pirate broadcaster. They can also still designate for hearing the license of any station who breaks the law or violates government rules. (Published news reports)

RADIO LAW: FOIA BECOMING MORE DIFFICULT

Hams fighting the FCC over enforcement and other issues are finding it a lot more difficult to obtain government records under the Freedom of Information Act. This is because of an administration policy change made a month after the September 11th terrorist attacks. That’s when Attorney General John Ashcroft directed all agency leaders to be more cautious in releasing records.

Over the years, some hams who have been tagged with violations by the FCC have tried to use the federal Freedom of Information Act to try to get a line on their accusers. Most of the time the government refuses unless the person making the request can show good reason for the information to be released.

While not of a national security nature, none the less, bureaus like the FCC will most likely be heading the words of Attorney General John Ashcroft who says that agencies must carefully consider things including the effectiveness of law enforcement before releasing any documents. Ashcroft says that agencies that legitimately turn down requests made under the Freedom of Information Act will have the backing of the Justice Department in doing so. (Published news reports)

ENFORCEMENT: LOS ANGELES AREA PAROLED RADIO OPERATOR RE-ASSERTED FOR PROBATION VIOLATION

A Bell California man on parole for jamming police communications is now being held without bail for violating his probation and allegedly making death threats on the 2 meter band. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, has the details.

--
You may remember that back on November 14, 2001, the FCC set aside an Amateur Service license and the call sign KG6IRO that it had issued to one Jack Gerritson. That grant was made only a few days earlier on November 8th. The Commission took action after it received information that Gerritsen had been arrested in 1999 and convicted in 2000 for interference to the Los Angeles Police Department radio system.

Gerritsen was out on parole after serving one year of a five year prison term on that conviction. On January 29, Los Angeles FCC agents participated in the pre-dawn re-arrest of Gerritsen after authorities received complaints of death threats allegedly made by him on several Amateur frequencies.

As Gerritsen was on parole in the earlier case, a no-bail search and arrest warrant was served. This is because the terms of his probation banned him from possessing any kind of radio transmitting equipment.

But at the time he was taken into custody Gerritsen reportedly had over twenty radios at his premises. Of these the FCC says that eight were capable of operating on frequencies in the Amateur, Marine, Land Mobile and Public Safety bands. The FCC says that Gerritsen even had a Marine radio with batteries connected to it, and a length of antenna line running outside his residence hidden in a closet.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, in Los Angeles.

The FCC says that after they set aside Gerritsen license that he continued operating and causing deliberate interference to numerous Amateur radio repeaters in the Los Angeles area. It acted on these complaints. Now Gerritsen may spend the next four years in jail. (FCC release, other sources)

ENFORCEMENT: FCC ORDERS POWER COMPANY TO HELP A HAM

The FCC has told an Alabama power utility that it has to clear up interference it is causing to a local ham radio operator. Amateur Radio Newsline's David Black KB4KCH, has the latest from our South East Bureau in Birmingham:

For more than two and a half years, Dan Jeswald, W4NTI, says his ham radio communications have been hampered by a pesky problem: interference. Jeswald moved to Anniston, Alabama, in June, 1999. It wasn't long after that, he says, that he began experiencing interference on numerous high frequency bands. He says 6 meters became unusable because of popping sounds and other interference Jeswald says sometimes rates full scale on his equipment. He says the noise is worst during cold weather and sometimes goes on for days.

Jeswald suspected a faulty transformer or other power company equipment. He says he contacted Alabama Power. Jeswald says the power company responded and began working on the problem. But in midstream before the problems were eliminated, Jeswald says there was a change of people he dealt with at the power company. Jeswald says his efforts to get help with the problem since then have gone nowhere.

With few options left, Jeswald contacted the ARRL, which put him in touch with the FCC. On January 30th, Special Counsel Riley Hollingsworth sent a letter to Alabama Power's Chief Executive Officer. In the letter, Hollingsworth advises the utility about Commission rules governing equipment that generates unintended interference. And he informs the company of its responsibility to fix the problem, or possibly face fines if a violation is found.

A call to the power company seeking comment was not returned. Meanwhile, Dan Jeswald just hopes the airwaves clear up--and soon.

From Birmingham, Alabama, David Black, KB4KCH, for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

Alabama Power was given thirty days to advise W4NTI as to what steps it was taking to solve the interference. (FCC release)

THE CHANGING OF THE GUARD: WAYNE WILLIAMS, K4MOB - S.K.

A radio amateur who dedicated almost a quarter of a century editing a ham radio magazine has crossed over to the other side of the Ethereal Abyss. This with word that Wayne Williams K4MOB, editor of the SouthEastern Repeater Association magazine "The SERA Repeater Journal" has passed away.

According to Gary Pearce, KN4AQ, Williams died at home early Tuesday morning, February 12th of complications from cancer. He was 65 years old.

Pearce says that Williams passion in Amateur Radio was FM and repeaters. He became active in SERA's predecessor, the Carolinas-Virginia Repeater Association, in the early 70's. This, at a time when two meter FM was just beginning to gain in popularity.

In 1977 Williams became the editor for the group's magazine, the Repeater Journal. The Journal was already a respectable size 44 page booklet, with regional advertising from local dealers and hamfests. But over the next 23 years, K4MOB built it into a quarterly magazine featuring full-color covers and both national and regional advertising.

Gary Pearce KN4AQ: “Through the Repeater Journal and through the coordination body Wayne helped to provide the infrastructure that we enjoy today on VHF and UHF FM. Repeaters that we can operate with a minimum of interference and maximum of range and quality of enjoyment.”

In parallel with his SERA activity, K4MOB also established Williams Radio. He started the business by amassing a huge inventory of crystals. In that pre-synthesizer era, two meter FM radios required a pair of crystals for each frequency used. Other crystal sources made hams wait days or weeks for delivery but Williams Radio was one of the few instant sources of crystals for almost every frequency, and for almost every radio. Later, the business added accessories and several lines of radios. It was a family affair, with Williams wife, brother and sons pitching in at hamfests across the region. K4MOB retired from Williams Radio in 1997.

Wayne Williams, K4MOB, is survived by his wife Gerry KB4SER, and two sons, Wayne Jr. and Chris. A third son, Greg, passed away in 2000. Pierce says that Wayne Williams was a very special man in ham radio. All that knew him say that he will be missed. (KN4AQ)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: HAMS ASKED TO HELP NANOSAT PROJECT

Ham radio is being asked to provide technical support for an upcoming satellite project. Jeramy Boot, G4NJH, says it is a bird called Nanosat:

--

John Heath, G7HIA, the Secretary of the National Space Centre Amateur Radio Society, reports that Bristol University is asking the world-wide amateur radio community to assist with data capture from their forthcoming Nano Satellite Project.

Hand-launched from the Space Shuttle during a space walk, the 6.5-kilogram satellite will send data that can be decoded with software available free from their web site. The software is not yet written because the university wants to give amateurs the chance to have input into how they would like the data stream: 1200 baud AX25 packet, 9K6 packet, Bell 202, or Soundcard etc. More information and an on-line survey form is available on the web at www.handsat.co.uk

Never thought I would agree with Wogie about anything, but after listening to Lloyd this afternoon I must admit that I can see Roger's point.
While I would NEVER stoop to the level Roger adheres to, I must grudgingly admit that Roger's critique of Lloyd may have a certain amount of merit.
Lloyd seems to be living in a netherworld of his own making. He must have some sort of notch filter built into his hearing aids because he is seemingly able to tune out common sense at will.
Lloyd appears to be extremely upset with our current President and his policies. The problem is that Lloyd has no alternate suggestions of his own.
He quite simply likes to P and M.
Lloyd...you and that old fart from California should hook up and exchange QSL cards. Form a club. Call it the Dour Old Men club or Sourpusses International...
OK, Rog.
I know you are chomping at the bit to rebut me...so, go ahead.

Does anybody have the info on changing the PA tube (8950) over to the 6HF5 in the 1011 series? Have one I want to put on 10 meters, the 8950 is missing and more expensive than hens teeth.

Also need a meter for this radio or a suggestion for a replacement.

Thanks

Re: Amateur Radio license K7ILS

Dear Mr. Martinez:

On July 6, 2001 your application to change your name was granted.

We are routinely reviewing that grant. Section 308(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, gives the Commission the authority to obtain information from applicants and licensees.

Therefore please provide justification for the name change. If a legal name change was granted, please provide a copy of the documentation. You are requested to respond within 20 days of the date of this letter, and send the information to 1270 Fairfield Road at the letterhead address.

Hello folks,

I bought a cheap 2nd (3rd?) hand IC-T21CP dualband 2M transceiver today, probably a variant of IC-T21A. It was bought from an auction site in Hong Kong (I'm in Hong Kong). It looks exactly like a IC-T21A, and I guess it is operated the same way.

It was cheap so there was no manual. I can't really figure out how to use it. To switch it on to VFO mode I have to power it on using (Function + B + Power) and then key in 0123. Otherwise it'll be a mode with which you can only use stored memory channels. The settings (like saved frequencies) are not really saved and disappear the next time I switch it on. I can't figure out how to scan, what does channels T1-9 do, etc...

I read the whole manual of IC-T22A (from Icom's website) to try to work out how Icom thinks. Despite the model numbers being so similar, it's actually quite a different radio! Can someone help me with the operations of the radio? Better still, can someone pleaseeeeeee send me a copy of the manual? If you do, I'll let the world know of your good deed!

Pleaseeeeee!!!!!

Thank you.
Bobby.

PS I've searched groups.google.com and several just requests were without reply. Please help me! :~(

Resistance elements are completely quiet. The fact that the noisey stuff is on a seperate feed helps to supress conducted noise, however you still have radiated noise to contend with. I believe you could do as well with relatively common AC line filters. Usually harmonics of the radiated stuff is what you're fighting.

Dimmy has a life. Between Mike's Package Store and that little Red Hovel on the Highway he has plenty to do.
Go ahead and call him on his lies. Call him everything he is. Call him an asshole. Call him a drunk. Call him a drug abuser. Call him a bottom feeder.
Now watch. He will get on the air and whine and cry that one of his "fans" is stalking him.

New book coming out.

"Of Curtains and Keyboards, The Life & Times of Woger Wussman"

Woger hides behind curtains and keyboards, no life, no clues, just the smell of half-eaten rotted pizzas and the grease soaked boxes they were delivered in. The only light in Roger's room comes from the steady glow of the Usenet monitor, as Woger stuffs his cheeks with cold pizza. Yes indeed, as Ed Norton would say, Something DOES stink, and it is in Glendale!!!!!!

I believe it would be more descriptive to call it:

Of Curtains, Keyboards and Mother Marie's Stank Pussy. The title almost tells the entire story :)

"Basios"...word Woger uses when he gets neeeerrrrvous.
"Behing"...a cross between being and behind?
"Feamle"...I think he meant female.
"Losser"...only loser Roger can do it better.
"Ignroant"...typical, considering the source.
"Sluprs"...only Rogie knows what this means.
"Travelled"...a Rogerism, replete with ignorance.
"Postss"...pssst...Roger..that should be Posts.
"Defgenerate"...well, it's Roger's word...
"Faity"...he meant to say Fairy, but you know Roger.
"Distribiution"...Roger likes using phonics.
"Biotch"...he meant Bitch, but his phonics took over again.
"Methjadone"...a West Virginia substitute for Heroin.
"Anoinymous"...a cross between anonymous and annoying?
"Sumbliminal"...one of Roger's favorites.
"Recepticle"...either of Roger's moist cavaties.
"Cociane"...a West Virginia drug of choice?
"Tiome"...Roger meant to say Time...but his fingers were numb.
"Beraking"...no definition. Could mean 'beraking' the leaves,
"Amny"...he meant 'any',
"Nlay"...a town in Maylaysia? Vermont?
"Al;ong"...only Wussman knows what this means.
"Becasu"...well, becasu Roger is not the brightest bulb on the tree.
"Seperation". Why? Because Roger cannot "seperate" from his mommie!

Greetings readers.

Just upgraded to my General from Novice. Been out of the hobby for a fair while, but just got back in thanks to a co-worker.

Plannin on buying a new rig (TS2000 crosses fingers) soon and had a couple questions:
1) I have a 20 amp power supply... The rigs I'm thinking of buying all want 23 amp supplies. Can I use the 20amp supply? And if so, at what cost? (I would presume it will drive the rig receiving, and just keep me from peak output on xmit).
2) We don't have room in our yard (VT trees and rocks) for a big dipole. Hopfully this spring I'll have time to clear it. In the meantime, I was thinking of running a LONG random wire. However, I'd like to solder it to a piece of coax to feed into the shack (cut down on RF). Anyone have any experience with end-fed, longwires? Any traps to watch out for?

Thanks for any input... I appreciate it.

Brian KA3ZKE

With your antenna, a long random length of wire will work fine - use an autotuner (i.e. the icom smart tuner) which is hooked directly to the length of wire (and also to a ground) - from there you run coax back to the radio. I have used a similar tuner (from Alinco) in a similar situation before and had very good results from it - easy to do, and not to bad on the hip pocket. Just be aware of the directional effects of the antenna (if in a straight line) when running multiples of wavelengths - one way that I have beaten this is by looping the wire around some of the trees forming a bit of a box shape.
If the power supply is a 20A continuous, you will be OK, if it is a 20A peak, you should be OK - just don't drive it flat out, but I personally prefer to run larger power supplies - I have a couple of 30A continuous power supplies (lots of radios).

All the best

Matt

Truth be known? One of the posters once said that Roger suffers from Tourette's (for Roger they have a seperate one called "Toilette's" Syndrome.) Syndrome. That may be close. Others think Roger is just a severely disturbed middle aged man. This is true.

Going to a coax lead in will have little effect at all on rf. All you are doing is slightly extending the long wire. I don't like end fed long/random wires myself. Lots of problems, but they can work if you can get nothing else up. I'd much rather have a center fed antenna of whatever type. You don't say what bands you want to work. MK

FWIW, I think 'NTI is a gentleman, and, yes, a grouch, but a brilliant man with a damned deep understanding of life and living. I don't see him as a slob "swingin' from the gummint tit," but rather as a guy who (like thousands of men before and after him) gave the absolute best years of his life, risking everything to serve a nation who didn't seem to give the proverbial rat's rump for his sacrifice. I was a baby during the Vietnam years, but I remember my Dad reading stories from news periodicals describing hippies throwing sacks of human waste at the returning vets.
I'd bitch, too...even if I was serving in the rear. Only thing the man's guilty of
is doing the right thing.

Bitching all of the time? Yeah, I kinda think the man earned that right.
(ever met or loved someone with PTSD? It's not an easy thing, but giving him the respect he deserves is easier done than said)

Truth be known that LLLLLLLLARDASSSSSSSS Lllllllllllllloyd got arrested in Athens, AL again for fucking pumpkins. He needed a substitute for when he's away from his mommy, the $2 crack whore of Belle Plaine, Iowa.

Here's an account of his first such arrest:

This was just faxed from the Birmingham Field office:

The Great Pumpkin
Birmingham Post-Herald
October 14, 2000

Police arrested Lloyd A. Davies, a 27 year old white male, resident of Athens, Alabama in the Anderson Pumpkin patch at 11:38pm Friday. Davies will be charged with lewd and lascivious behavior, public indecency, and public intoxication at the Athens Municipal Courthouse Monday. The suspect allegedly stated that as he was passing a pumpkin patch, he decided to stop. "You know, a pumpkin is soft and squishy inside, and there was no one around here for miles. At least I thought there wasn't." he stated in a phone interview from the Athens Municipal Courthouse Jail.
Davies went on to state that he pulled over to the side of the road, picked out a pumpkin that he felt was appropriate to his purposes, cut a hole in it, and proceeded to satisfy his alleged "need". "I guess I was just really into it, you know?" he commented with evident embarrassment. In the process, Torrance apparently failed to notice the Athens Municipal police car approaching and was unaware of his audience until officer Brenda Taylor approached him. "It was an unusual situation, sure." said officer Taylor. "I walked up to (Davies) and he's... just working away at this pumpkin."
Taylor went on to describe what happened when she approached Davies. "I just went up and said, 'Excuse me sir, but do you realize that you are screwing a pumpkin?' He got real surprised as you'd expect, and then looked me straight in the face and said,
'A pumpkin? Damn... is it midnight already?"

Use a 6KD6 and change the plate cap, rebias, re-neutralize.
Check the pinout first I believe its the same.
You will have to go easy on it since the 6KD6 rating is less than an 8950.

>Also need a meter
Ray, I wouldn't invest to much $$ in that set, they are junk and drift worse than HW-101's
I doubt you will be keeping it if you get it working

I picked this radio up from a friend a while back but it had no manual with it. It works well but I am having problems figuring out all the functions. Most especially the timer. The radio comes on daily at 1pm. I have no idea how to shut it off & it won't shut off on its own. I really need a copy of the manual!

Also, what is the value on this radio? I did some trading with him for this & some other items so I have no clue & neither did he.

If you email a reply that would be most helpful as I don't read this group that often & also my ISP's news sever drops/looses/deletes some messages.

Thanks for any help anyone can give!

I have for sale two Yaesu hts.One is the dualband FT-470 that comes with several batteries,charger,box and paperwork.This radio is in execelent shape and works flawlessly.Its a great radio for someone starting out,as its easy to program and work.I am asking $225.00 shipped in the USA.
The second is a Yaesu VX-5r triband that has box,manual and charger.This radio does mars/cap and freeband.It is a little finicky when in vfo mode but does work ok.I think it may be a bad solder joint with who ever done the mod to it.Anyway I am asking $225.00 for it shipped also.
I am looking for a Bearcat scanner,either the 3000 or the 9000 model which I would trade for one of these radios.I am also interested in the 1000 channel scanner that Radio Shack puts out.
Let me know what you may have that may interest me.(Triband mobiles etc?)

I'm just starting off with PSK-31. At this point I'm only trying to copy and decode signals. No xmitting yet. Using the audio out from the DIN connector on the back of my TS-570DG. I'm using Ham Scope and a Vortex sound card. Has a SoundBlaster compatible mode. Problem is that while I am hearing the signals though the PC speakers, nothing appears to be getting to the program. On the lower screen of Ham Scope I see no evidence of signals. Is this a comman problem when using non SoundBlaster cards? Anyone using the Vortex with a similar experience?

Thanks,

I live on the fringes of a capital city and would like to be able to listen to a AM band radio but the computer drowns it out, the radio has a terminal to connect an external aerial but not an earth lead.

Any suggestions as to how long, high or since no earth is it advisable at all????

sounds like you need to go into the programs settings and tell it the audio is coming in the correct port either line in or the mic jack which ever you have it in then it should work

Actually, they DIDN'T round up... The correct answer IS 170 volts...
Well, okay, they rounded up by .32 volts.. that's POINT 32 volts...
The question dealt with the PEAK voltage in a 120 volt RMS circuit...
Peak voltage on a 120 volt RMS circuit is 169.38 volts, hence the answer 170 volts IS correct and accurate...

You're contradicting yourself. They did round up, and the amount they rounded up is moot, even though it's .32 volts. (Which if you subtract from 170.00 = 169.68 V!)

> The question dealt with the PEAK voltage in a 120 volt RMS circuit...

169.68, not 169.38.
Maybe that's a rounding error in your calculator, I have mine set to 3 significant digits.

>hence the > answer 170 volts IS correct and accurate...

Raymond, I am not saying it wasn't accurate. If they had an answer of 169.68 that would be the real correct answer, wouldn't it?
My scientific graphing calculator concurs it is 120 V * 1.414 = 169.68 V.
Some of these anonymous idiots were saying my figure of 169.68 was incorrect.

Some, idiots, even when staring a calculator in the face, don't know how to use the square root key. You see, the peak value of any sine wave given in rms units is the square root of two multiplied by the rms voltage.

The square root of two is an irrational number, which means that its digits continue endlessly without repeating themselves. If you use 1.414 as the root, you can't get an answer which has more than four significant digits in it. What you should do (and what the FCC has done) is to use as many significant digits of the square root of two as your calculator will provide, and THEN round the result off to the number of significant digits you are seeking.

Again, for the mentally handicapped, the calculation goes

2

and that comes up with an unrounded result of 169.70562748477 on the Windows calculator. To five significant digits, the answer is 169.71 volts, and to three digits it is 170 volts. On the Windows calculator, you have to use "inverse x^2" in place of SQRT to come up with a square root (I mention that, because I know it may be too complicated for you to figure out on your own).

You just can't escape it, JBO, no matter how much you squirm. You have been getting the wrong answer for weeks and then insisting that your erroneous answer is correct. Duhhhhhh.

Hello friends !

During one of my surf on the Internet, I have downloaded a song entitled "Ham Radio Operator", sung by a man who seems to be called "Jeff Wiley".

I can not finf informations about the song and its author on the internet : it is exactly like if this song had been wroten, sung and nothing else. Quite surprising, isn't it ? My capacity to speak and understand English is not welle nough to allox me to understand the real subject of the song, but it is clear that it is talking about amateur radio, or maybe C.B.

Here is a short description of this song :
- rock, maybe hard-rock, but not too much
- instruments played : bass and guitar (well the guitarist is not a beginner I think ...)
- What does it sounds like ? Dire Straits in more "hard", some hard Lynyrd Skynyrd, or something like Deep Purple, so something quite agressiv anyway.
- duration : 4min 56 of pleasure ;-)

If someone knows it, and eventually can transcript the lyrics, this would be very nice, If You want to listen to it more closely I may send it to You through the interney via e-mail,

Best 73 from East France to all and sorry for my bad English-speaking,

I don't consider .32 volts out of 169.38, which is a matter of .18% to be significant rounding... Also, keeping in mind that typical AC power can fluctuate quite a bit, the 120 volt figure is the nominal voltage for household service it would seem that the answer 170 volts would be an accurate average of peak voltage occurrances. Considering the fact that anyone with half a brain would have exercised common sense and realized that 169.68 is practically the same as 170, and realized that the instructions to the test say to select the MOST CORRECT answer, it would seem pretty obvious that the BEST answer is 170 volts.

Your figure of 169.68 volts is correct, but it was NOT one of the choices! You tell me what the difference between 169.68 volts and 170 volts is. .32 volts... Less than the ripple that would be caused on that very same circuit by someone talking on a cordless phone in the same room!

Woger was kicked out of the West Vagina schools. His parents gave him
"homo" schooling. He never got much farther than sex "education".

I've read a number of posts about suggestions for text over video (composite), but none are recent and many of the devices have been discontinued or are hard to get. Some of the devices mentioned:

sgs-thomson STV9426
Philips PCA8515 OSD chip
NEC uPD6145

My interest is creating a mobile device which will overlay a composite video source. My options are using my 68HC11A1 platform or a PIC16F877-20 type device. For those hams out there, my other use will be for call sign ID on atv (when I get around to that part of my project).

I've read a lot about pre-built solutions and researched many of them - but after all this is a hobby project and like to avoid paying someone else for something I would much rather build on my own. :) Thanks in advance for any suggestions.

You could look at

http://www.myson.com.tw/mtv/MCU.htm and specifically the 64K FLASH ISP+OSD model

http://www.myson.com.tw/mtv/data%20sheet/Mtv230M/MTV230M(AE).pdf

This integrated OSD is one of the reasons the separate OSD devices are being phased out.
This one is ISP Flash + STD 80C51 core, so suits your application.

No sure of the stocking, but you could always suggest a 'Samples for App-note' trade to the vendor :-)

Well, frankly EM 80, EM 81 and EM 84 is not hard to find at all in Europe. Maybe in US.
I have plenty in stock of all these types + EM 71 and a few EM 87 (and some NOS 6U5). Sorry, no EM 4/11/34/35

OK, have a look at (it's in English):

http://home.t-online.de/home/w.otterbach/projects.htm

This is exactly what you are searching for. It's based on the STV5730A.

Ok, no problem. There is enough documentation, so you can build your own (and you have to write your own software).

I'm currently trying to rebuild this with an AVR controller.
No I'm not the author.

Kind regards

Drop the "3D". That is an artifact of the newsposting software (or something).

BWAHAHAHAHAHA!!! Archived, fuckwit. You remember when you were saying that 120 V * 1.414 = 169.69?

You now have the opportunity to admit you were wrong:

No, fuckwit, I didn't LIVE in West Virginia when I attended school.
BWHAHAHAHAHA!!

And at LEAST I didn't have to complete my education in PRISON like YOU did, CONVICT'S BITCH. You have yet to post any evidence that you EVER attended even elementary school.
